THE JERUSALEM

The States await!

From Israel, just dial: 177-100-2727

FBI: Progress in Olympics blast probe

ATLANTA (Reuter) - US investigators hunting a white American man they suspect holds the key to the Allanta Olympic Games bombing said yesterday they are pursu-ing promising leads and making good progress.

The bomb, a crude homemade device made more deadly because it was laced with nails and screws, exploded in a packed public park during a rock concert in the early hours of Saturday. A 44year-old Georgia woman was killed and III people were injured in the blast.

We are looking for a white American man who made a 911 emergency call immediately before the blast," said a police spokesman. The call, from a pay telephooe beside the popular

Centennial Park, was made half an hour before the explosion.

Jamie Gorelick, deputy attorney-general in charge of the investigation, said investigators are closely looking at the theory that an American was responsi-

"That is one of the principal theories we are pursuing," she said on NBC-TV's Meet the Press wheo asked if the FB1 is looking for a "homegrown terror-

Gorelick told CBS TV's Face the Nation: "We have very promising leads, but we're not going to be releasing them as we go along.'

Georgia Sen. Sam Nunn told the same program the leads were not centred on one person or group. He said the speed at which the 911 call was processed was also the subject of investigation. White House chief of staff Leon Panetta said the 900 FBI agents assigned to the case "have a lot of leads.

"They feel like they are making good progress," Panetta told ABC television. President Bill Clinton vesterday said called for sanctions against, Iran, Iraq, Libya and all other countries that promote ter-

He invited leaders of Congress to the White House to discuss expanding wiretapping and chemically "tagging" explosives to help crack down on terrorism.

Clinton told a group of dis-abled veterans he had invited the leaders of Congress "to help to agree on a package that will provide these additional protections against terrorism and any other measures we need to take to increase the protection of the American people.

British terrorism expert David Capitanchik said the case is beginning to look more like a domestic group opposed to the reelection of Clinton.

"Many of these people on the extreme right of the American political spectrum are very concerned that if Clinton wins the election ... this time he will really go for the guns and for these militia groups," he told Sky television.

Israeli expens echoed this view, saying the amateurishness of the bombing suggests it was more likely the work of an angry or frustrated American than international terrorists.

The type of pipe bomb used is a popular weapon with US mili-tias. But one of the main local militia groups denied it was responsible.

A spokeswoman for the "112th Regiment Militia-at-Large for the Republic of Georgia" iold a news conference: "It's so absurd when they say we're doing some-thing like this. This is the last thing we want.

The Olympic park, designed to be the heart and soul of the games and a public passageway between venues, was still closed off and surrounded by vellow police tape yesterday, as forensic experts sifted for clues.

Olympic International Committee president Juan Amonio Samaranch said he was impressed by the work of the security forces after the blast.

"We are very grateful to the authorities for their excellent response and for the security

Navon panel finds fault with MDA, falls short measures they have taken." he told a news conference

Atlanta Mayor Bill Campbell said the swift work of the security forces saved "literally hundreds" of lives.

French President Jacques Chirac and Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu tetephoned Clinton vesterday to express dismay at the Atlanta park bombing. the White House said.

Spokesman David Johnson said Clinton took the ealls while flying from Washington to New Orleans ahoard Air Force One to address a convention of disabled war veterans.

Chirae and Nejanyahu both offered condolences on the blast in Atlanta. They also said they supported Clinton's efforts to fight terrorism and offered whatever help they could provide.

listerian say

findings at a oews conference at Jerusalem's Bible Lands Museum yesterday.

Army lifts closure

THE IDF announced late last night that it was lifting the closure on Jodea and Samaria imposed early Friday, follow-ing the drive-by attack near Beit Shemesh in which three members of the Munk family were killed.

As of 4 a.m., Palestinian lahorers are being allowed to

Two generations wiped out in one fell swoop' Terror victims Uri, Ze'ev Munk buried enter Israel, the army said. The restrictions had kept YOCHI DREAZEN teos of thousands of Palestinians from their jobs. HUNDREDS of mourners attend-The army said the lifting of the ed the funerals of terror victims Uri closure would bring the situa-Munk, 53, and his son, Ze'ev, 30, tioo back to that of July 18, wheo 25,000 married of Moshav Mevo Betar, yesterday. The two, along with Ze'ev Munk's Palestinian meo over 29 had wife, Rachel, 24, were killed in entry permits. Friday morning's drive-by sbooting near Beit Shemesh. Ze'ev succumbed to his wounds early yesterday morning.

Two generations wiped out in one fell swoop," said moshav member Yoav Lit. "Where do you find the strength to bury a son and a father, an entire family, in the same day?"

In sharp contrast to the funerals of Yaron and Effie Unger, killed in a similar attack on June 9, many of the speeches at yesterday's funerals were noticeably political.

"I appeal to Prime Minister [Binyamin] Netanyahu and Internal Security Minister [Avigdor] Kahalani to help us guarantee that these are last sacrifices," said Meir Vezel, head of the Mateh Yebuda Regional Council. "Listen to our security plans; we know how to defend ourselves."

MK Ze'ev Boim (Likud), who represented the Knesset at the funeral, said the location of the attack was irrelevant. "It doesn't matter if this crime took place within the Green Line or outside of it," he said. "Their blood must be avenged.~ But the most politically charged - and emotional - words belonged to Rabbi Uri Dasberg, father of the murdered Effie Unger.

"Ze'ev, Rachel, Uri, I didn't know you, but fale has brought us together," he said. "And let me just say that if someone is not doing his job, no matter how short of a time he's had it, it's time for a change." All Ze'ev's vital organs were donated to the organ bank, and several have already been used in

83-year-old earns BA transplants.

completed his BA in Jewish history at Ben-Gurion University and will begin studying for his MA

He completed his degree with honors and was awarded a full scholarship last year and will also elderly person can have," he said. Vilan was the commander of Negba during the War of Independence. (ftim i of calling for dismissals

THE Navon Committee appointed six months ago to investigate the Ethiopian blood donation affair announced yesterday that there were "many shortcomings in the decision-making process" inside the Health Ministry and Magen David Adom.

But the majority of the committee members did not recommend the dismissal of anyone involved. including MDA blood services director Dr. Amnon Ben-David.

Linited Ethiopian Immigrants Organization reacted with rage and disappointment to the report. It declared it would hold an emergency meeting of communal leaders today to demand that the government establish a state inquiry commission into the whole gamus of issues related to the aliya and absorption of Ethiopian Jewry.

Former president Yitzhak Navon, who chaired the six-meniber committee, declared at a press conference at Jerusalem's Bible Lands Museum that "no racism was involved" in the official decision to discard blood donated hy all Ethiopian immigrants because of the relatively high rate of HIV In the community.
The [officials] were not evil.

They worried about stigmatizing the community." Navon said. "although after the fact, we believe they should have told the immigrants the truth (when they came to donate blood)."

Instead of an across-the-board ban on accepting blood from Ethiopian immigrants, the committee recommended that blood should not be taken from anyone who spent at least six months during the 10 years before coming to donate blood - in any of 63 countries where AIDS is endemic. including southern Asia and parts of South America, the Caribbean, and Africa.

In addition, blood would not be accepted from anyone who returned during the previous 12 months from an HIV-endemic country: from hemophiliaes. homosexuals, drug addicts, or prostitutes; or from anyone who had sex during the past year with someone who is in one of the above mentioned high-risk groups.

Navon conceded that the largest group that would continue to be affected is Ethiopian immigrants. For years, the Health Ministry had appealed to the press not to disclose the high rate of HIV carriers antong the immigrants.

The committee was appointed in February by then prime minister Shimon Peres after the disclosure by Ma'arir investigative reporter Ronel Fisher that the immigrants' blood had been destroyed without their being informed by MDA. A few days after publication, there was a tempestuous and somewhat violent Jerusalem demonstration by tens of thousands of Ethiopian immigrants. The committee had originally included seven members: Navon; retired Tel Aviv District Court judge Eliahu Winograd; Youth Aliya social worker Natmar Hillel; Ben-Gurion University epidemiologist Prof. Lehaim Hadassan-Universit Hospital hematologist Prof. Eliezer Ruchmilevich; former MK Yehezkel Zakai; and (now Labor MK I Adissu Messele, chairman of the immigrants' organization.

The High Court of Justice ruled that Messele had to resign because he had publicly demanded Ben-David's firing; the organization's secretary. Shlomo Mula. who briefly replaced Messele. was subsequently forced to step down as well. Rachmilevich, the target of a more recent Fisher investigation, chose not to appear at the press conference.

While Hillel and Zakai blamed Ben-David for "lying" to the

NABATEAN TOUR

2 Days/ 1 Night on B/B

PETRA One Day Tour

immigrants, the majority of the committee said the blood-dumping policy was conceived in the Health Ministry, and that the MDA blood services director had merely continued a policy that existed when he took office.

Navon said that the most disturbing testimony, aside from the blood controversy, involved the failure of the rabbinate to recounize the Jewishness of the Ethiopian community.

The report was presented first to Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu, who asked the committee what could be done to prevent the spread of AIDS within the community itself. The members urged serious educational efforts among the imntigrants to cope with language and cultural problems. This could be implemented by setting up a well-financed interministry team responsible to the Health Ministry. Convening a second press conference in the museum after the Navon Committee's ended. Messele and Mula charged the comminee - "and others outside who wanted to delay the report until public interest waned" -with foot-dragging." They noted that the commission charged with investigating the naurder of

(Continued on Page 21

Gov't pledges increase in living standards for settlers

DAVID HARRIS

A NEW approach will be taken in developing the territories which will raise Israelis' standard of living in Judea, Samaria, and Gaza, Avigdor Lieberman, director-general of the Prime Minister's Office, said yesterday.

Senior government officials have begun working on a program of far-reaching policy changes that will affect the entire country. Three committees of ministry directors-general met yesterday. and another is scheduled to assemble today to discuss future priorities, speeding up construc-tion work, belp to northern confrontation line communities, and developing the Gulf of Edat: Speaking to journalists, Lieberman said a new approach would be taken to developing the territories. While refusing to reveal detailed proposals in any of the major policy areas, be pledged to raise the standard of living. improve public services, create employment opportunities, and bring industry to the settlers in Judea, Samaria and Gaza.

Lieberman pointed out a series of administrative anomalies in the territories which will be reformed. For example, he said, in 1991 a list of settlements was drawn up, with residents receiving considerable incentives to live there, but those in settlements not menconed have not been entitled to such help.

With regard to construction, Lieberman said there was a 40 percent slowdown in both the public and private sectors during the last five months of the Labor government, this has led to a considerable reduction in availability. The statistics Lieberman presented also show a reduction in work being carried out by the local, regional

The plan is to build 60,000 apartments throughout the country, particularly in the central area, during 1997 and '98. However, the government also intends to increase the housing supply in Eilat and the South, a program that's been on bold for 10 years, according to Lieberman.
(Continued on Page 2)

Tel Aviv:

Haifa:

Jerusalem:

and authorities. AN 83-year-old kibbutznik has next year.

For Subscriptions

Please call:

Ya'acov Vilan, of Kibbutz Negba, traveled to Beersheba three times a week for his studies, never missing a lesson.

JUBILEE AT THE PHILHARMONIC.

SIX DECADES OF EXCELLENCE

A SEASON TO CELEBRATE

03-5251502

02-240896

04-8664167

be exempt from tuition next year. That is the greatest bonor an

> For Sale in Tel Aviv Building with open sea view!!! 162 Hayarkon St., plot of 600 sq.m. net

Building contains 34 apacious one-room apartments; rights for additional building.

An urban building plan has been submitted by Tel Aviv Municipality, covering the construction of a 75 room hotel. The building will be transferred to the buyer, vacant and empty. BAUHAUS LTD. Tel: 03-5244154. Fax: 03-5243308

JORDAN DISCOVERY $299 Per person in 4 Days/ 3 Nighta B/B For these departures only: 14/7, 28/7 ACROSS THE JORDAN RIVER & down to Agaba $299 Per person in Oouble room 2 Days/ 1 Night on B/B EGYPT visit Calro, Pyramids, Egyptien museum $125 Per person 4 Daya/ 3 Nights Bus one way to CAIRO CALL-NOW 03-5252999 FOR GROUPS CALL GALIT AT 03-5105160 GALILEE TOURS BRANCHES: TEL-AVIV, 42 BEN YEHUDA ST. JEBUSALEM 02-256866 EILAT 07-335145 RICE PER PERSON IN DOUBLE ROOM * DEPARTURES ONLY IN JULY & AUGUST PRICE DOSE NOT INCLUDE REGISTRATION FEE, TAX, TIPS, VISA.

super charter and Galilee Tours

THE LEADING COMPANY TO JORDAN AND EGYPT

JULY AUGUST SPECTAL OFFERS

Israel rebukes Palestinian Police over peace accords violations

THE IDF rebuked the Palestinian Authority yesierday, warning that every violation of the peace accords will be met with sanctions. This was relayed to the Palestinians by OC Judea and Samaria Maj. Gen. Gabi Ofir in a meeting with Palestinian com-

The meeting came following repeated Palestinian violations of the Oslo accords. The latest occurred yesterday morning. when Palestinian policemen at a Ramallah roadblock opened fire at a Border Police jeep preparing to go out on a joint patrol. No one was injured, though the shots hit the jeep, the army said.

The Palestinians said the shooting was an accident, but Ofir demanded an in-depth investiga-

He stressed to the Palestinian Police representatives he met with after the shooting that the movement of Israelis in Ramallah could not be restricted, and that he would raise the incident in his meeting with his Palestinian counterpart.

There is a policy of taking a tougher line with all violations now," a military source said. "The army has been instructed by the Defense Ministry to impose sanctions, like declaring sections a closed military area, which hurts the Palestinians economically.

Palestinian and Israeli policemen confer after Palestinian police fired at an Israeli police jeep near Ramallah yesterday. (Knaled Zighari)

wherever there are violations," The territories have been sealed since Friday's deadty ambush near Beit Shemesh in which three raised the matter of Abed Salem Hirbawi, a Jerusalem resident Ramallah. The IDF sealed off the Arafat, in Saudi Arabia, seeks work for Palestinians

JON IMMANUEL

Authority PALESTINIAN President Yasser Arafat flew to Saudi Arabia yesterday and was expected to ask King Fahd to allow Palestinian laborers to return to the kingdom to help relieve the economic plight in the West Bank and Gaza.

Arafat was also expected to discuss the peace process, direct financial aid, and his recent meetings with Foreign Minister David Levy, French Foreign Minister Herve de Charette, and Syrian President Hafez Assad. But the return of Palestinians to the Gulf was the uppermost issue in Palestinian newspapers.

Al Hayat al-Jadida, a newspaper

close to the PA, emphasized quotes from Mustafa Sheikh Dib. the PLO ambassador to Saudi Arabia, who said that Arafat will discuss the effects of the closure with King Fahd and ask that he take in Palestinian workers "to reduce the pressure on the residents of the West Bank and Gaza."

The Gulf states and Saudi Arabia expelled about 300,000 Palestinians after the Iraqi inva-sion of Kuwaii in 1990. Although relations between Saudi Arabia and Arafat have improved - this is at least Arafat's third visit since the Gulf War - Palestinian workers have not been invited back.

The Netanyahu government is in favor of easing the closure, but said died at Tulkarm Hospital on March 9 after Israeli soldiers kept the ambulance carrying him waiting for over an hour and a half.

They said the boy, suffering from pneumonia, died of hypothermia

last Thursday night's terror attack, which killed Rachel, Ze'ev, and Uri Munk near Beit Shemesh attributed to the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine - pushes back the prospect of a significant increase in the number of Palestinians being allowed to work in Israel soon.

Without economic prosperity. the Oslo peace process is "doomed" said MK Ephraim Sneh, a declared candidate for the Labor Party leadership. Sneh met with Arafat in Gaza yesterday, the first ex-minister to do so since the elections. Such said that the peace process requires joint combai against terror, economic prosperity in the PA territories and no expansion of settlements.

Arafat gave a militant speech on Saturday at Al-Azhar University. affirming that Jerusalem would be forever the capital of an independent Palestinian state" and counting slain bomb-maker Yihya Avyash, responsible for several bus explosions, as the latest Palestinian martyr.

Sneh told Arafat that comments like that "could make Israelis despair about peace.'

WAFA, the PLO news agency. quoted Arafat on the Beit Shemesh attack as saying: "We should move carefully and with awareness to confront such behav-

Nofech-Mozes testifies in wiretapping case

MIRIAM Nofech-Mozes, a director and main shareholder of Yedior Aharonoi, was summoned to give evidence in the media wiretapping case yesterday, after recent developments which led to the questioning last week of the daily's publisher, shareholders, and senior personnel.

Comptroller Yinon Angel was also called to give evidence. Yedior security officer Haim Rosenberg, under house arrest, also was summoned for further questioning for alleged wiretap. ping, suborning wimesses, and disrupting a police investiga-

The media wiretapping case broke when police discovered a bug on Nofech-Mozes's phone. Mo arir publisher Ofer Nimrodi has been charged with commissioning the tap.

Last week, Yediot publisher Amon Mozes was questioned several times under caution for his alleged involvement in wireianping rival family members, whom he is battling with in court.

A senior police source said that police are also probing whether Mozes was behind the commissioning of wiretaps. via intermeRAINE MARCUS diaries, on businessmen and Ma'ariv personnel,

Although police have had hearsay evidence for more than a year that Yedior may have been involved in commissioning illegal wiretapping, the turning point occurred when private investigafor Ze ev Laufer, awaiting trial on 14 charges of wiretapping, decided to cooperate with investiga-

Evidence given by Ya'acov Tsur, who turned state's witness against Nimrodi and others linked Laufer with Yediot. Tsur told police that he and his former partner, Rafi Friedan, carried out wiretapping on behalf of Laufer, who he believed was employed by rediot. At the time, Mozes and Rosenberg were questioned, but since no concrete evidence tvas available, inquiries were postponed and not pursued openly. Over the last month, however, police launched an undercover investigation. Police arrested Rosenberg last week, and are trying to discover if Mozes ordered the alleged offenses and how Laufer was Laufer was charged with tap-ping the phone and fax of Ze'ev Mozes, whom Amon Mozes is trying to oust from the daily. Tsur and Friedan allegedly carried out the bugging, and the tapes were transferred to Laufer, who is also charged with bugging Ze'ev Mozes's lawyers.

He was also charged with bugging the phone of Ya'acov Kedmi, Ma oriv's former markeong manager, with the help of Tsur and

The pair reported the bugging of Kedmi's phone to Ofer Nimrodi and his security officer David Ronen, who decided to leave the bug in place to provide disinformation to "the enemy."

Police were told that Yedio: was allegedly behind the bug on

With Laufer's cooperation, police are reportedly acting on more concrete evidence. It is still not known exactly what deal Laufer reached with the district attorney and police for bis cooperation and possible testimony.

Israel compensates Palestinian family NIS 25,000 for infant's death

THE Defense Ministry has reportedly paid NIS 25,000 in compensation to a Palesonian family who sued Israel for the death of their one-month-old infant, whose ambulance was held up at a checkpoint during the closure imposed after the wave of suicide

'We reached a settlement and

ARIEH O'SULLIVAN

paid them the amount which they deserved," said a Defense Ministry spokeswoman. She declined to say how much the family was compensated. But Palesocian sources told the Associated Press the sum was NIS and could have been saved had he arrived earlier. The case involved the family of Shaker Shawahneh, who doctors

The IDF Spokesmao said at the time that an inquiry found no link between the boy's death and the delay, which it claimed was only 30 minutes. Still, it reprimanded an officer who was at the roadblock for "insufficient sensitivity" in dealing with the situation.

Jakobovits calls for division of Jerusalem

FORMER British chief rabbi Lord Jakobovits yesterday accused Israelis of living in "cloud-cuckoo-land" and advocated a functional division of Jerusalem, "if it were to lead to a gen-

"Let the Palestinians fly their flag in the parts which they already occupy," he told the Sundoy Telegroph. "It wouldn't mean shifting a single person from one area to another. There would be a relationship between the two authorioes, but they would have their own

"Giving freedom to people and recogoiz-ing their national aspirations is a Jewish Jakobovits also supported returning the Golan Heights to Syria. "Just as I can see no

Jewish if it did oot have to rule over two mil-

DOUGLAS DAVIS LONDON

reason why there cannot be a Palestinian enclave within Jerusalem, if it were to lead to a genuine peace, I see no reason why ... there should not be autocomous Jewish settlements. in the Golan Heights under Syrian sovereign-

The president of the Board of Deputies of British Jews, Eldrad Tabachnik, appeared to support Jakobovits.

We should pursue every possible avenue. subject to guaranteed security, to secure peace, even at some territorial cost. I would go further and say Israel would be much more

However, non-Jewish parliamentarian John Marshall, chairmen of the British-Israel Parliameotary Group, said the proposal would place parts of Jerusalem under the cootrol of an alien organization," and declared that many will disagree, with sadness, with Lord

Jakobovits, 75, was widely regarded as the spiritual mentor of former British prime minister Margaret Thatcher, who knighted him and later elevated him to the peerage.

He aroused controversy in the 1980s when he called for territorial concessions in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, prompting former Ashkenazi chief rabbi Shlomo Goren to appeal to British Jews to "spew him out."

Army beefs up Jordan Valley force

REELING from the deadly ambush of a Jordan Valley border patrol, the IDF has reportedly reinforced the area with regular soldiers and has started retraining reservists in shooting. charging, and throwing

The regulars are from the fDF's mechanized brigade and have been in place "in the past few weeks," Army Radio said. They have been assigned the sensitive points along the border.

We mourn the passing of our beloved

DANIEL SETH RUDEN

The funeral will take place today, at the

New Ra'anana Cemetery, at 3 p.m.

The Jewish Agency for Israel The World ZionIst Organization

share the grief of

Halm Zohar

on the death of his mother

TEHILAH ZOHAR

and offer condolences to the family.

On the Shloshim for

DAVID BLUMBERG

We will meet at Herzliya Cemetery on July 31, at 6 p.m.

The Directorate and Staff

Avraham Burg, Chairman, The Jewish Agency

Estelle end Ell Ruden and Family

ARIEH O'SULLIVAN

The report said the soldiers were transferred from action in Judea and Samaria due to the faulty reaction of the reservists during the June 36 ambush.

Gunmen crossing over from Jordan opened fire on an IDF patrol, killing three soldiers and then stole the vehicle's heavy machine gun as two other soldiers fled without firing a shot. An IDF inquiry into the attack found that a second patrol, which arrived much later, also failed to engage the enemy or pursue them. The brigade commander was dismissed.

The Family

According to the new orders, a larger force will now respond to any incident, Army Radio said. IDF engineers have also cut down the brush along the Jordan River's banks to give troops a broader view. The IDF Spokesman declined to comment on the report.

NAVON

(Continued from Page 1)

Yitzhak Rabin "tonk less than six

The two demanded that Ben-

David (who is currently on a visit to Russia and could not be reached for comment) be fired immediately. They added that the eruption of the scandal led to the stigmatization of the immigrants,

even to fears by kindergarten teachers to bandage the cuts of Ethiopian children or of other public health, but all of our HIV carriers are known - unlike those in the rest of the population," Messele said. "We object to the all-encompassing ban on accept-ing our blood, which it is a privilege for us to donate like every-

The immigrants' organization will launch a "class action suit" against the government and MDA for refusing to accept their blood,

They said they regretted the fact that violence broke out at the January demonstration and would do all they could to prevent a recurrence, if additional protests are called, but added: "If this does happen, the government will be from the Health Ministry.

No comment was available

he added.

responsible.

We do not want to endanger pupils to sit next to them.

POLICY ular mendon of drainage and sew-

(Continued from Page 1) The government also is promis-ing large-scale financial help to communities along the northern confrontation line. That commitment is being made to both Jewish and Arab settlements. Four Arab villages have already been pinpointed for aid - Arrabe, Fassuta, Ghajar, and Ma'ilya.

"Everything that Jewish settlements receive, they'll receive," Lieberman said, "We see ourselves as the government of everybody."

In more general terms, he said the government has every intention of improving the infrastruc-ture in Arab areas, making partic-

The committee examining the development of Eilat has been charged with speeding up Improvements to its transportaoon links with the rest of the country and internadonally.

Among the proposals being considered is a train. No route was mentioned, but existing Treasury and Foreign Ministry proposals include plans for railway lines to Beersheba and into

No timetable has been set for relocating and expanding Eilat airport to a proposed site some 10 km. north of town.

BEZEQ. The Israel Telecommunications Corp. Ltd.

Tender No. 68/97/0501/0 Light Commercial Vehicle

The following general conditions apply: 1. Pre-conditions:

be given CIF only.

a. Parties submitting blds must comply with all laws, including the requirement to keep account books, be an authorized trader, hold valid licenses to trade, and comply with all relevant standard specifications.

b. Willingness to provide a guarantee, as explained in the tender c. Compliance with the 'minimum' conditions, given in the tender

2. The tender documents can be obtained from the Tenders and Ordering Department of the Purchasing Division, 15 Rehov Hazvi, Jerusalem (Room 609), Tel. 02-395614/5, between 9 a.m., and

12 noon, Sunday to Thursday. The tender documents will be provided on submitting a receipt of payment for NIS 1,000 (non-returnable). The tender documents are available in Hebrew only. Prices should

In Israel, payment should be made into Bezeg's Postal Bank account no, 5-31 1757.

Overseas suppliers should make payment into Bezeq's account oo. 12-901-97633/64, at the Jerusalem main branch of Bank The receipt, with details of your company, and authorized trader's number may be faxed to 972-2-378113. Please phone afterwards (phone numbers as above), to obtain confirmation of receipt Bids should be placed in the tenders box at 15 Rehov Hazvi, Jerusalem, not later than September 10, 1996, at 6 p.m. . No undertaking is given to accept the lowest or any bid, or to order the entire work from one source.

Bids sent by fax or telegram will not be considered.

PRIME MINISTER NETANYAHU How many more Jews must be sacrificed on the altar of this suicidal peace process? Stop demanding that Arab terrorists fight terror against Israel! "A leopard doesn't change its spots..." and Chief P.L.O. Terrorist Arafat will not change his covenant - or his commitment - to destroy our Jewish homeland, Eretz Yisrael!!! The Israel Defense Forces are e brave army!!! Let them do what must be done, to protect the people of Israel -regardless of world opinion!!! Enough Holocaust museums!!! Enough memorial ceremonies in Washington!

A strong and secure Israel is the only true and lasting monument for all Jewish victims!!! "Wherefore should they say among the nations...where is their G-d?" (Joel)
Sponsored by VICTIMS OF ARAB TERROR

INTERNATIONAL (VAT) Please contribute generously to help us continue our vital activities for Israel - especially at this critical time. Make checks payable to: VAT INTERNATIONAL.
In Israel: P.O. Box 32103, Jerusalem, Tel./Fax. 02-821-106
In the USA: One Penn Plaza, Rm. 100, N.Y. 10001, Tel./Fax.

718-375 2532 Noted speakers and documentaries available.

DO THIS TODAY! HELP MAKE A LITTLE BOY'S DREAM COME TRUE:

Craig Shirgold is a 7-year old boy who lives in Keene, N.H. He is dying from craig stanged is a 7-year out boy with lives at researce, it.i.f. He is dying from an Inoperable brain tumor. He made a wish to the Children's Wish Foundation that he would like to have 1,000,000 "get well" cards sent to him by August 15, so that he can make the World Book of Records before he lies. Cards can be bought or made. Please send cards to:

Craig Shirgold c/o Children's Wish Foundation 32 Perimeter Center East Atlanta, Georgia 30346, USA

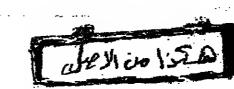

*Please pass this message on and make a little boy's dream come true. Thank youl

NEOT HAKIKAR TOURING Co. SINAI SAFARI | 2 DAYS PETRA

4 DAYS $199 Last minute booking!

including Wadi Rum $169 5 Star Hotel in Petra

02-236262.

amily

erusalem

TER NETANYAH

with the satinficed on th e komo doronia i

TW 100 0 120055?

group of the species. A charge is 1 Emple 1's 1321'

STATE OF STATE OF STATE

1 mm

THE High Court of Justice overturned the Parole Board's decision to release leading underworld figure Ya'acov Alperon yesterday, saying the decision was extremely intreasonable in light of Alperon's lengthy criminal record.

Alperon, 42, had served four prison terms prior to his current one, starting in 1975. He received parole on three of these occasions, but each time returned to a life of crime. His most recent parole, which began in February 1993, lasted only two weeks before he was re-arrested on charges of aggravated assault and sentenced to two years and nine months in prison, coupled with four months and 19 days from his violated parole and four-and-a-half years from a 1989 case, whose verdict happened to be handed down at the same time. Minus the time he had already spent in jail during his arrest, this came to a sentence of almost six years.

Despite this sorry record, the Parole Board decided last week to grant Alperon parole, for the same reasons it had done so in 1993: The Prison Service's excellent report of his behavior in prison and the Parole Board's impression of his sincere desire to rehabilitate himself. In addition, the board was impressed by two letters of recommendation which police officials filed on Alperon's behalf. The state then petitioned the High Court against this decision.

Justices Aharon Barak, Shlomo Levine, and Dalia Domer agreed with the state that this decision gave improper weight to Alperon's personal good at the expense of the public interest. First of all, they noted, having failed to rehabilitate himself after three earlier paroles, it would require considerable evidence of change to justify a fourth - evidence which Alperon failed to provide. The Parole Board did not even address the issue of his past recidivism in its decision.

"[Alperon] has abused the trust placed in him in the past more than once," the justices wrote. Secondly, they said, the Prisons Service's description of his model behavior did not mesh with extensive police intelligence information showing that Alperon was continuing to run underworld activities from his prison cell. The Parole Board dismissed this information, on the assassinate judges, policemen, and local council members. However an grounds that no indictment had been filed on account of it. However, the justices found this information credible

RAINE MARCUS

Finally, they said, the Parole Board erred in the importance it attached to two letters from police officials. The first, from head of the police intelligence department Cmdr. Hezi Leder, mentioned Alperon's "honest efforts ... to mend his ways, and his good behavior in prison." However, the Parole Board ignored the bottom line of the letter, which was that despite this, Leder considered Alperon too dangerous to be allowed prison

The second letter was from Asst. Cridr. Rafi Levy, spokesman of the Internal Security Ministry, and praised both the way Alperon honored all his commitments to the police and his commitment to rehabilitation. The state, which was told of this letter only at the Parole Board's hearing, later found out that despite being on ministry stationery, it represented Levy's private opinions and not those of the ministry. It asked to send a letter of clarification on this point to the Parole Board, but the board refused to accept it.

given light sentences.
Shoshana Alperon has since become religiously observant, as has

Mussa Alperon's wife, other family members, and former journalist

Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu hands his wife Sara her MA degree in educational psychology, while Hebrew University President Prof. Hanoch Gottfreund looks on during a private ceremony at the university yesterday.

$1,000 hotel room launches new controversy for PM's wife

WITH the dust barely senled over the mud slung by two ex-nannies, a new controversy brewed yesterday over a pricy hotel suite ordered for Sara Netanyahu, The media jumped her, after learning that the price tag for a suite ordered for her at the Grand Hotel in Stockholm was $1,000 a night. Sara Netanyahu was to have travelled to Sweden next month to attend an international conference on children.

"At a time when the government is cutting the budget for family allowances and old-age pensioners, Mrs. Netanyahu owes us an explanation of why she Iris Mizrahi said. Shai Bazak, Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu's spokesman, said Sara Netanyahu had nothing to do with ordering the suite, and decided not to make the trip as soon as she learned of the cost.

Bazak said the Foreign Ministry had made the arrangements for the suite, and claimed the story was leaked to hurt her image.

The Foreign Ministry also said Netanyahu was not involved in making the arrangements and is launchan investigation into the affair. (ltim)

Police fear more violence if Alperon released

UNDERWORLD figure Ya'acov Alperon, whose parole was over-turned by the High Court yesterday, managed according to police, to run his criminal business from his prison cell. Police also think the violent gangland wars, which have seen underworld kingpins gunned down strewn in Tel Aviv. might escalate if Alperon, with a long record for violence and extortion, were set free. His brother Mussa lost a leg, after a bomb was planted under the driver's seat of his car in January 1995. No arrests were made, but police said at the time that the family "surely knows who was responsible" for the attempted mirrder.

Several months later, Gad "Shatz" Plume, a particularly violent criminal and an enemy of the Alperon family, was shot dead outside a Tel Aviv cafe. Off the record, police pointed an accusing finger at the Alperons.

Ya'acov Alperon, between prison sentences, is the undisputed leader of the family. Soft spoken and intelligent, he was the director of a debt collection agency which used violence to convince debtors to pay up. One man was tied upside down to a tree and beaten badly when he couldn't pay. Usually, the name Alperon was sufficient for debtors to empty their children's saving

While awaiting trial on charges connected with the collection agency, Alperon was arrested for stabbing a man who insulted him during an argument.

Ya'acov's brother, Nissim, was recently released from prison after serving an eight-and-a-half-year sentence for narcotics and violence

While his brothers were in prison, the youngest brother, Zalman, took over the family businesses, which included casinos here and abroad, restaurants and debt collecting.

Sister Shoshana Alperon has also been in trouble with the law several times. Both she, Ya'acov, and Nissim were arrested for plotting to undercover agent in the case was Yossi Hayman who worked with the family at the debt collection agency. proven a liar, and the three were indulges in such luxury," Israel Radio commentator petitioned the High Court of Justice yesterday to be granted certain benefits that spouses of deceased officers normally receive.

For School: Large choice of hard-back satchels and Indian cloth bags Photo Album for 300 photos 10x15 cm

Homosexual petitions for spouse benefits EVELYN GORDON

Steiner fived with Col. Doron Meisel a senior medical officer. from 1984 until Meisel's death from cancer in 1991. Steiner was widely known as Meisel's live-in partner. After Meisel's death, Steiner asked the army for the compensation it normally pays bereaved spouses. The army refused, saying such benefits only apply to heterosexual couples, and Steiner's appeal of this decision is currently pending before the Tel

Aviv District Court. Steiner has also asked to be treated as Meisel's spouse for the purpose of memorializing him. According to army custom, this means the right to contribute to the item on Meisel in the army's memorial book, invitations and free transportation to memorial services, a grant for personal memorialization of the deceased, and a card and gift from the defense minister on the deceased's

The petition noted that these are all items of small financial value,

ADIR Steiner, the homosexual but of great moral and emotional

Both the army and the Defense Ministry refused Steiner's request, saying that, as with the compensation money, they see these benefits accruing only to heterosexual couples. Steiner therefore petitioned the High Court.

The petition, filed by the Association for Civil Rights in Israel, argues that the language of the law does not specify heterosexual couples only, nor does it speci-fy spouses only. In fact, such benefits are generally given to live-in heterosexual lovers, the petition said, and therefore, according to previous High Court precedent (in the case of El Al steward Yonatan Danilovitch), they must be given to live-in homosexual lovers as well.

Furthermore, the petition noted, the army has treated Steiner as a spouse in the past – for instance, when conducting Meisel's security check, or when they paid for Steiner to accompany Meisel overseas for medical treatment

Not to give Steiner these benefits, the petition charged, consti-mes unwarranted discrimination on the basis of sexual preference and a violation of the Basic Law: Human Dignity and Freedom. -

Group: Breastfeeding treaty is often violated JUDY SIEGEL

THE Israel Childbirth Education Center (ICEC), based in Haifa, maintains that an international agreement encouraging breastfeeding is violated on a regular basis here, "often with the knowledge and approval of the Health Ministry." International Breastfeeding Week will be marked from August 1 to 7, with an educational campaign to persuade mothers that nursing is best for their babies.

Six years ago, the innocenti Declaration on breastfeeding was signed in Florence, Italy, by representatives of the World Health Organization and UNICEF. The declaration categorically states that breastfeeding is the best way to feed babies and listed ways of promoting

CELLULAR PHONES RENTAL/Sales NO Daily Service Charge! We also RENT TV's, Video players and projectors VIDEO CITY 43 Jeffe Rd., (Zion Sq

Although Israel committed itself to implementing the declaration, it does not enforce all of the commitments: to bar photographs of babies on infant formula packages and require manufacturers to print on them the words: "Mother's milk is the best food for baby." In addition, the declaration prohibits distributing free samples or advertising baby formula to new mothers in hospitals or family health centers. It also bars giving newborns formula unless the mother specifically asks for it.

The ICEC says that giving formula late at night is standard procedure in most obstetrical wards, and that other parts of the declaration are also violated. According to the voluntary organization, breastfeeding educa-tion for women in hospitals is inad-equate, and "those who do it are sometimes poorly trained."

The Health Ministry said that it is aware of the declaration, and that if the ICEC has any proof of viola-tions, it would investigate them.

The ICEC calls for legislation that would allow working mothers with babies to continue breastfeeding to ensure that all health institutions are "baby friendly" and help mothers to breastfeed; to enforce the Innocenti Declaration provisions; and to establish a national committee to initiate and coordinate activities with the aim of promoting breastafter the 50% reduction.

Also available via TELE∺SAL

Look out for more surprises ...

Artist's Kit

Bomb explodes in Kashmir, killing six

ANANTNAG, India (AP) - A bomb kept inside a motorscooter exploded near the headquarters of a Moslem rebel group in Kashmir. killing six people and wounding 17 others, police and witnesses said yesterday.

So powerful was the blast that 26 houses in the neighborhood were damaged, said Ghulam Ahmed Bhatt, a police official in Sarnal where the explosion occurred Saturday evening.

Elsewhere in the northern state. where Moslem separatists are baliling Indian troops for indepen-dence, 17 people were killed in the past 24 hours, the government said in a statement.

"The bomb was real powerful," said Bhatt. "It was so powerful that 26 homes in the area were damaged.

Bhati declined to give details of the incident, saying it may hamper investigation, but another police official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the office of the rebel group was the target of the

"We understand that two people came in an auto rickshaw and wanted to park the vehicle near the gate of the rebel group's headquarters," the officer said. A gunman posted at the gate told the men to drive out. When they showed reluciance, he fired at the vehicle from his AK-47 rifle, he

Some of the bullets hit the gasoline tank and that set off a fire and the bomb that was inside the vehi-

The auto rickshaw became a fireball and I felt as if there is an eanhquake," said Mohammed Alam, a witness who escaped with minor injuries. "There was noth-ing left but a big hole," Alam, who was walking past the area.

Ananmag is 55 kilometers north

Elsewhere in Kashmir, 12 rebels and five civilians were killed in various other incidents, the govemment said.

Ten rebels were killed in Kurali Parey village in Baramullah dis-trict, about 60 kilometers north of capital Srinagar, when Indian troops fired at them after being fired at yesterday, said a government statement. The other fatalities occurred in four other inci-

Kashmir is the only state in India with a Moslem majority. In the rest of India, Hindus account for 82 percent of the 930 million population.

A dozen militant outfits have been fighting Indian soldiers to make Kashmir break away from India since 1989. Some want Kashmir to become independent. while others want it to join with Pakistan, India's archenemy. More than 14.5(0) people have been killed since the insurrection.

Russian sailors rest on top of an ammunition case filled with shells that were to be used as fireworks yesterday to mark the 300th anniversary of the founding of the Russian fleet.

Turkish doctors in battle to save hunger strikers

ISTANBUL (Reuler) - Turkish doctors struggled yesterday to save critically ill leftisi prisoners after the end of a two-month "death fast" which has so far claimed 12 lives. The Turkish government, under strong pressure at home and abroad, partly accepted demands on Saturday from the hunger strikers for better prison condi-

More than 300 inmates immediately halted their 69-day protest but human rights workers said about 20 lives were still at risk. A 12th inmate died overnight and others were in critical condition, they said.

Hayati Can died on his way to hospital in Bursa last night - he is the 12th of the hunger strike," a spokesman for the independent Human Rights Association (IHD)

About 170 prisoners bad been taken 10 hospital so far and around 20 of them were in critical condition, human rights workers said. Others were being treated in

"There is one, Refik Linal, for whom there may be no tuming back," an IHD spokeswoman said. She gave no further details.

The state-run Anatolian news agency reported that doctors in the western town of Izmir had managed to revive another inmale, Gulien Isik, after her heart stopped beating early yesterday.

Vedat Oz. head of a crisis center set up in the Health Ministry for the hunger strike, told Anatolian that several of the patients suffered damage to internal organs, particularly the brain, and had metabolic problems.

Nazis smuggled gold 'Britain knew

LONDON (Reuter) - Recentlyreleased secret documents show the British government knew about transfers to Swiss banks of gold looted by Nazis during World War II, Jewish organizations said yesterday. Greville Janner, a member of Parliament, chairman of the Holocaust Education Trust and vice-president of the World Jewish Congress, said he would release documents and correspondence from a new investigation into the looted gold.

worked for decades to find out what happened to hundreds of tons of gold they allege was taken from Jews by the Nazis before and during the war.

The British government has

A return to Jewish roots...

LITHUANIA

LATVIA

ESTONIA

ST. PETERSBURG

A Jerusalem Post Travel Club tour planned

by Geographical Tours / Neot Hakikar.

The Baltic States, before the Holocaust home to hundreds of thousands of Jews, is only now, after the

With an English-speaking guide from Geographical Tours, we'll visit Vilna, the "Jerusalem of Lithuania" and tour its ghetto, synagogues, memorials, etc. Then to Kovna (Kaons) and Riga (visiting the old city, garden of statues, etc.) and the Ramboli Forest. Next on the itinerary is Tallin, capital of Estonia on the Gulf of Finland, with its port and old city. From there we'll continue to St. Petersburg (Leningrad), Russia's second largest city. We'll visit its museums, the Czar's Winter Palace, the worldfamous Hermitage Museum, the Peter and Paul Fortress, the cruiser Aurora (where the 1917 revolution started), the Piskaryovskoje Cemetery, and stroll along the banks of the Nieva River and the renowned Nievsky Prospect.

We'll stay in first-class or quality tourist hotels, travel in air-conditioned buses, be accompanied by a full-time

English-speaking guide from Geographical Tours in Israel, and a local guide where necessary. The price includes all this plus the round-trip flight, half board accommodations (breakfast and evening meal) and admission to all sites.

US$ 1,825 per person in a double room.

For reservations and further information:

The Jerusalem Post Travel Club

Tel. 02-6221679 Fax. 02-236161

Sun.-Thur., 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Ask for Nicole or Tova.

US$ 278 extra for a single room.

Monday, August 26 - Tuesday, September 2,

No Shabbat travel. Vegetarian menu available.

inclusive.

THE PRICE:

demise of the Soviet Union, welcoming visitors.

long maintained it knew nothing about the transfers.

"The released documents from the US National Archives prove previous denials by the Foreign Office and the Ministry of Defense that the British did not know of transfers as false," said a spokesman for the Holocaust

In May, after WJC examination of declassified US government documents, the Swiss Bankers Association broke a long tradition of secrecy over the wartime role

It said an independent commission could investigate the use of the banks in neutral Switzerland by Germany.

The Holocaust Education Trust said a letter was sent in 1942 by British Embassy Washington to the US Treasury giving details of movement of gold from Nazi Germany to Switzerland. It also referred to a five-page document, dated February 1946 and written by the US. British and French governments, esti-mating looted Nazi gold at $400 million.

The Foreign Office said it was checking the allegations.

"Mr. Janner wrote to the Foreign Office a little while ago about these matters." a spokeswoman said. "We made inquiries and replied saving we were unable to find any information. In the light of his most recent letter. received on Friday, we are mak-

Francis declined to answer when asked whether the find was an indication that the explosion occurred in the front of the aircraft, as some news reports have said. He reiterated that investigators were unable to mechanical failure. The southwestern debris field contained the front landing gear and Navy divers on Saturday recovered the leading edge of the right wing, Francis said. -

Dickinson, another NTSB investigator, said videotape footage of those forward areas showed no signs yet of the cockpit.

of that." Dickinson said. Said Francis: "We do know that's a forward part of the fuselage.

age there and it's just going to have to be analyzed."

Francis and the others stressed that recovery of the victims was the top priority, and noted that although two more minor incidents involving the Divers had recovered 150 bodies as of midday yesterday, and 146 of thosehave been identified.

TWA probe focusing on front of aircraft

SMITHTOWN, N.Y. (Reuter) - Investigators of the TWA Flight 800 catastrophe yesterday examined the relative positions of key pieces of the plane on the ocean floor, looking for clues to the flight's final moments.

National Transportation Safety Board Vice Chairman Robert Francis said an major debris field containing parts of the aircraft's front section was two kms to the southwest of a debris field containing middle and

The plane was traveling to the northeast when it exploded in a ball of fire on July 17, killing all 230 on board, "I guess it's fair to say that things that come off first tend to be an indicator of what happened," he conclude whether the crash was caused by a bomb, a missile or by parts of first-class and business-class passenger compartments, as well as the staircase that leads to the Boeing 747's upper deck.

Asked if divers had found the cockpit, Francis said: "No." Al

"As far as instrumentation or the cockpit area, it does not reveal any

Whether that includes the cockpit, we can't tell. There's a lot of wreckdivers' safety occurred overnight on Saturday, water conditions were

ing further inquiries." Burundi ruler: No more Hutu refugee expulsions which they had fled in fear of retribution for the mass

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (Reuler) - Burundi's new military ruler, Major Pierre Buyoya, said yesterday that he was halting forced expulsions of Rwandan Hutu refugees in a move apparently aimed at defusing international criticism of his takeover of power in

Buyoya, a Tutsi, said his government would not force Rwandan Huius to go back to the homeland killings of Rwandan Tutsis by Hutus in 1994. An army operation last week, launched before

Thursday's coup, in which 15,000 Hutus were sent back to Rwanda from northern Burundi was roundly

More than 70,000 Hutus remain in camps in the

GROZNY, Russia (AP) - Russian warplanes delivered several strikes against Chechen rebel positions in the southeast of the breakaway republic following a full in air activities caused by rain

Russian aircraft strike at Chechen rebels

NEWS IN BRIEF

and fog, the military said yesterday. The attacks, all carried out over the last 24 hours, targeted unspecified rebel headquarters and firing positions, while populated areas were not hit, the military command said. Previous Russian air raids often have hit Chechen villages, causing civilian casualties.

There was no immediate comment from the rebel side. Three Russian soldiers were killed and five Moscow-backed Chechen police officers were wounded since Saturday in 11 clashes with the separatists, of them four in the capital Grozny, the military command reported.

Bomb found on railway tracks in Smolensk MOSCOW (AP) - A bomb was found on railway tracks near a western Russian town, the fourth explosive device planted since a Chechen guerrilla leader threatened to wage "rail war" against Russia, officials said yesterday. On Thursday, a bomb exploded on an Astrakhan-Volgograd passenger train soon, after its arrival in Volgograd. The train was empty at the time of the explosion, which damaged one car.

A day later, police found and safely detonated another bomb in

These attacks followed threats from a man claiming to be Chechen guerrilla leader Salman Raduyev, who earlier this week announced plans to bomb Russian railway stations, saying he viewed them as military facilities.

Eight die in Iran border fighting NICOSIA (Reuter) - Iranian shelling has killed eight people in a clash on the border with Kurdish-controlled northern Iraq, the Iranian news ageocy IRNA said yesterday.

It quoted an Islamic Revolution Guard Corps commander in the Iranian border town of Sardasht as saying that the eight were "outlaw aggressors." Several people were injured, IRNA said in the report monitored by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

IRNA said in an earlier report that Kurdestan Democratic Party (KDP) military units crossed the Iran-Iraq border and "attacked several border villages" yesterday in western Iran.

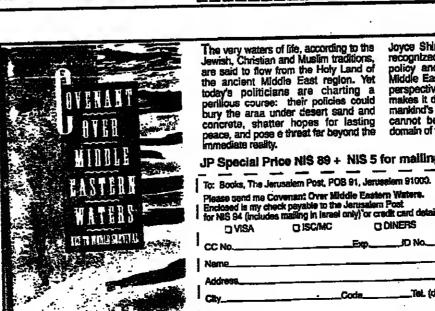

Indonesian police break up fresh protests JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuter) - Indonesian authorities clamped down on protests in Jakarta yesterday, a day after the worst rioting in the city in more than two decades, with police using tear gas and cane charges to break up demonstrations.

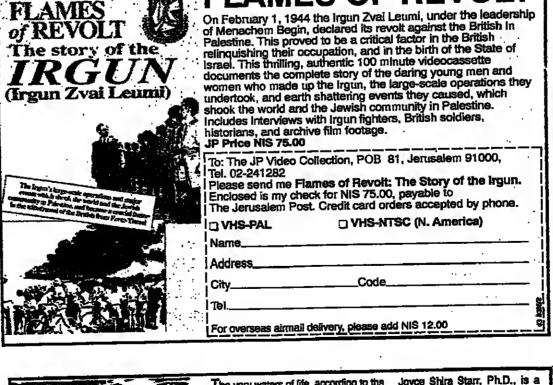

Riot police beat and chased away demonstrators at two places in the city, leaving several bleeding and taking more than 20 people into custody, witnesses said.

But the violence was at a far lower scale than on Saturday, when thousands of people went on the rampage after police stormed and took over the headquarters of the Indonesian Democratic Party (PDI), evicting activists barricaded within.

FLAMES On February 1, 1944 the Irgun Zvai Leumi, under the leadership of reputary 1, 1944 the right 2val Lettin, which the reacets of Menachem Begin, declared its revolt against the British In Palestine. This proved to be a critical factor in the British relinquishing their occupation, and in the birth of the State of Israel. This thrilling, authentic 100 mlnute videocassette of REVOLT The story of the IRGUN Israel. This thinling, authentic 100 minute videocassate documents the complete story of the daring young men and women who made up the Irgun, the large-scale operations they undertook, and earth shattering events they caused, which shook the world and the Jewish community in Palestine. Includes Interviews with Irgun fighters, British soldiers, historians, and archive film footage. (Irgun Zvai Leumi) JP Price NIS 75.00 To: The JP Video Collection, POB 81, Jerusalem 91000. Tel. 02-241282 Please send me Flames of Revolt: The Story of the Irgun. Enclosed is my check for NIS 75.00, payable to The Jerusalem Post. Credit card orders accepted by phone. UVHS-NTSC (N. America) TO VHS-PAL Name Address For overseas airmail delivery, please add NIS 12.00

CHORAL CONCERT

THURSDAY EVENING, AUGUST 1, 1996 AT 8 P.M. HENRY CROWN AUDITORIUM OF THE JERUSALEM THEATER

featuring 200 singers from the United States. Canada, Sweden, South Africa and Israel

> Conductors: MATTHEW LAZAR

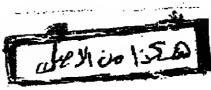

IOEL CAPLAN " NURIT COHEN " AHARON HARLAP TAMI KLEINHAVS " CAROL KOZAK WARD ERICA LIPPITZ * CHARLES OSBORNE

Special Guest Soloists: DAVID BURGER ' JACOB BEN-ZION MENDELSON ALBERTO MIZRAHI . CHARLES OSBORNE

Tickets: NIS 30 available at the Jerusalem Theater Box Office

Har Nof Gardens, Jerusalem Exclusive Har Not Project Few Apartments Remaining 5 rooms, ground floor, scenic view. 6 rooms, 50 sq.m. balcony, garden, Marble floors, modern kitchens, apartments ready in eight months. Prices according to exchange rate of NIS 3.20 =$1. Discounts for cash payments Not Real Estate Tel. 02-375161, Pax. 02-375162

Listen to Arutz 7, 711 and 1143 AM, 105 FM

Plot is a Hal of mirrors

ADINA HOFFMAN

FLIRT

Written and directed by Hal Harrley, Hebrew itile: Flirt. 85 minutes, English, German and Japanese dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.

With Bill Sage, Parker Posey, Martin Donovan, Dwight Ewell, Elina Lowensohn, Miho Nikaido and Hal

Since 1988, when he directed his first full-length feature, The Unbelievable Truth, American independent filmmaker Hal Hardey has acquired a small but devoted following, and rightly so. Hartley's comically dissociated view of the Long Island suburbs (and in Amoseur, of New York City) is singular, crisp and playful, and his quietly honed brand of verbal and visual stylization come as a relief both from the assembly-line movies of Hollywood and the violently derivative genre flicks cranked out by so many young film-school grads and Tarantino

Hartley is, in other words, still engaged in the admirable, and these days (in the US) almost unheard-of task of trying to make his films new - attempting with each of his pictures to gently sur-prise his audience and himself and to expand the possibilities of what a script and characters can do. For his exploratory gusto alone, the director deserves high praise.

The inevitable drawback of genuine experimentation, of course, is that by definition it isn't guaranteed to "work." In the case of Flirt, for example, Hartley has made a game attempt to replace traditional narrative form with a kind of fictional fugue, but the results are questionable. After a promising start, the movie devolves into a self-conscious intellectual exercise. This is not to say that Flirt should be dismissed out of hand:

Sector Consist

. - grotesis

1. 1. A. 18

.....

as failures go, it's interesting.

The film opens in New York City, in 1993, with the words "I feel disgusting," spoken by a pretty young nude (Parker Posey) who lies in bed and demands to know from her lover, Bill (Bill Sage), if they have a future together. In a few hours, she'll catch a plane for Paris where another boyfriend awaits her, and before she leaves she wants to know if she should hold out hope for a relationship with Bill.

In the same clipped, slightly elevated register favored by all of Hartley's people, Bill tells her that he can't answer right now but that he'll go get a car and drive her to the airport. Instead, he walks down the block to a telephone booth where he calls another woman.

Margaret, and demands to know if they have a future together, if he should hold out hope for a relationship with ber...

It's fairly pointless to recount the rest of the story - which is intentionally so spare and generic that it borders on the banal. Even in these early scenes, Harrley fiddles with the idea of so-called universal themes like love, commitment ambivalence, passion, and obviously flirtation. By letting the characters echo each others' lines exactly, though, he works a glee-fully absurdist twist on the romantic notion of lovers who share a "common language." Not only do these people share a common language, they're dammed to speak these words and these words alone, and in a way it renders true communication impossible.

But this, it turns out, is just the beginning of the joke. When the first section ends, the film shifts to Germany, in 1994, and to a strangely familiar conversation between a middle-aged German homosexual (Geno Lechner) who demands to know of his young African-American lover (Dwight Ewell) if they have a future together. He has a plane to catch in a few hours and... well, you get the pic-ture. The story proceeds, with the identical situation and exact same dialogue as the New York section. There are variations in setting, gender, race, language (that is, German instead of English), the actors' blocking and inflections, but basically the script and the slightly detached, ironic air And they shift only slightly in the third and final section, set and shot in Tokyo in 1995. This time the story of the character who must know his lover's intentions before he catches a plane, etc., features Hartley himself as the traveler, a film director finishing a movie in Japan, and a sby-eyed dancer, played by Miho Nikaido, whose recent off-screen marriage to Hartley sounds almost scripted, the fmal. hallooon in this odd echo chamber of a movie.

Hartley was brave to think be could repeat the same story three times, word for word, and still keep us interested. He was also mistaken. It's a preening and selfabsorbed device that requires us to forfeit all interest in more conventional forms of suspense (not just in terms of plot, but also dialogue: as a question is posed, we already know what the answer will be, instead to turn our attentions to the subtle adjustments in the director's technique, his ability to minutely vary the emotional pitch of each new version. It might be effective worked had Hardey genuinely imagined the story anew each time and treated less superficially the shifts in place, race, culture and language. Instead, the panels of the triptycb operate redundantly, as the in serial music, but the filmic Occasionally, a flicker of new

same scene repeated with minor variations by students in an acting

The conceit just might have meaning will emerge, but Harrley quickly steps in and returns the action to its preordained track. Instead of widening the relevance of the characters' dilemmas, this generalizing literalism flattens them out and offers a rather frightening if facetious view of romance in the global village. True love, in Hardey's terms, has a lot in common with the ubiquitous Big Mac.

Director Hal Hartley puts the same dialogue into many mouths.

TUDITY is just a costume for Dancenoise, a twomember company which mixes moving, dancing, theatrical images and comic images."

"I'm fascinated by the visuat image of a naked woman's body." said Lucy Sexion who, along with partner Anne tobst, will be appearing at the Phenomena performance-art festival in Jerusalem,

"It has to do with images of women, and when we are naked but wearing high heels and a wig and smoking onstage, that becomes quite striking. But really it is all matter of fact to us. It's like: This is the costume we are wearing now. We are always setting the midity against something very everyday." Sexion said in an interview from her New York apartment.

The duo started out 13 years ago, when the two dancers, just out of Ohio State University. decided to perform together and on the spur of the moment created the name. "We did something that had dance in it and we were interested in music-making."

Dance continues to be central to their work. "but we started perMICHAEL AJZENSTADT forming in nightclubs and that shaped us. We had to be fast and short in order to get people's attention." As their act took shape, it began to involve a lot of dialogue and "it became more mixed with comedy. We started talking with the audience."

The two are always coming up with new material. The show that we will do in Israel was basically created in the past two months. It is a combination of some majerial developed in our nightelub shows and some material from our version of Sartre's No Exi1."

On the road the two usually appear by themselves, but in New York they also do larger presenta-tions, such as a version of Chekhov's Three Sisters.

The major change between this new show and previous Dancenoise material is the use of

We created, together with Mike Iveson who is with us onstage, some original music for this show. I feel like music is happening all the way through it."

two looking for in an unfamiliar country?

"It would be nice if they enjoy it; we like to entertain. But we are going to take everyone with us on a journey which gets non-linear.

we hope they stick with it."

Dancenoise also has a political message. "After all, we are reacting to the world and that by itself becomes political. We are reacting to images of women, to advertising images. But it is first and foremosi about what happens to us onstage and so it's a linle less political than it used to be in the past."

Dancenoise occasionally performs in large spaces such as the Lincoln Center or the Brooklyn Academy of Music, but usually it prefers to do its act in nightclubs and other intimate spaces. "We like to feel the audience and see their reaction."

Dancenoise performs at the Phenomena Festival in Jerusalem August 3, 4, 6 (10:30 p.m.). On August 6 (6) there is a seminar with the two artists who will discuss their work as well as performance art in New York in gener-

... while local artist shows 'People Who Lose Pants'

NAT Schen is a night person "because then it's eas-A son because the a pipe. Things can come through more

The things are Schen's painting and drawings influenced by and influencing the dozen or so performance art pieces she's done since her first Pipsim ("Beats")

Performance art "is abstract theater, a series of plotless linked images or live visual arts in space and time," Schen explains. "I've heard it defined as time-based art. It's not enough that an audience comes to see my paintings or drawings, because they are past and done. Performance art gives me the immediate link with the audience that I need." Her latest, a reinvention of an installation she first did in 1985, is The Performance of Clouds (& People Who Lose their Pants) which contains Thigh- and medium-level clouds, meteorological data and soap operas on monitors, poetry and healing techniques like that chi and bioenergy which we need to survive in the modern world and to enhance the quality of our lives." Content, Schen says, is a byproduct of what the audience sees and understands from her pieces which "are a collection of images over time that are contposed into a structure."

HELEN KAYE

She perches easily on an uncomfortable office chair. Her short hair is fuchsia, pink and blonde. Her nails are silverspecked blue and she has a Chinese dragon tanooed on her right arm, A sensible big straw hat and kind eyes complement the punk look.

Her own career as a performance artist came "from a gut feeling after I covered a few shows as a reporter for IDF radio." She'd majored in art at the Thelma Yellin Arts High School in Raniat Gan where she'd waffled between theater and painting.

The Performance of Clouds (& People Who Lose their Pants) premieres on August 7 at Phenomena, the interdisciplinary puppet and performance arts festival in Jerusalem. August 3 to 8.

During the day, the kids will be puppet plays including shows from Germany, the Czech Republic, Italy and Holland in and around the Train Theater in the Liberty Bell Garden.

Come evenings, the adult action moves to the Talpiot industrial area where audiences can see a mix of local and imported performance art/visual theater including the world pre-miere of Janie Geiser's (US) Some Velvet Morning which explores the mythology of the American West.

Geiser is also one of the four judges who will determine the winner of the NIS 20,000 Plus Arts prize which will be awarded to the Israeli artist or group for the most unique interdisciplinary approach to any event in the festival, including the puppet the-

Winning would be pretty good for the 37-year-old Schen, who hoots at the idea that she makes a living from her art. She teaches part-time at the Art Teachers College and makes props for theaters and TV.

She performs with and directed the nine-member company who "aren't professional actors. The problem with actors is that they already have a very fixed idea of ... what performance is and so difficult to get a pure concept out of them.

The first Clouds, she says, "was a five-minute solo, very minor, timid and shy. This one is almost an extravaganza."

Cupid, draw back your bow-ow-ow: Love blooms at Keshset Eilon

ITH all those bows around, there's little wonder that Cupid felt right at bome at Keshet Eilon, the violin master course which combines archery with fiddle playing.

So like everyone else at Kibbutz Eilon, Cupid drew back his bow, striking Evgenia Epstein, 23, and Sergey Ostrovsky, 21. The two met at the Pessah session in 1993, were a couple by the summer master course that year and were married in 1994. This year, they're going back again to coach with the likes of Shlomo Rashovsky. They also will play in a chamber ensemble and perform solo in concerts before their peers. They revel in all of it, even equivalent is tedious.

Mintz, Andrea Cappelletti, and

Keshet music director Yirzhak

though performing "puts a lot of pressure on us. The other students' criticisms are very bard, very searching, but we learn a lot," says Ostrovsky, who has just signed a contract to play first violin with the Israel Chamber Orchestra.

Epstein, who freelances with the ICO, the Jerusalem Symphony Orchestra and other local orchestras, says she likes to practice in the kibbutz costume shop, with its racks of gay Purim costumes, "because it's far away and quiet."

Ostrovsky grabs whatever room he's given, and both have scholarships from the America Israel Foundation to attend the master-courses every year. She was born in Ekaterinabure. attended the local music high school and immigrated to Israel with her parents in October 1990. Her coach at the Tel Aviv Rubin Academy told her about Keshet Eilon, and she attended her first session that Hanukka.

He grew up in Gorky, the only violinist in a family of pianists. He finished the Gorky junior conservatory at age 13 and the Academy's high school at 16, and immigrated HELEN KAYE to Israel with his family in 1991. The notice of his expulsion from the Tel Aviv Rubin Academy - "I talked back" - and his fifth place in Italy's Lipizer Competition came almost the same week.

He was also concertmaster of the Young Philharmonic for two years and Epstein was his deputy last season.

Hearts and flowers aside (and Ostrovsky sent Epstein flowers every day when they were courting), the young couple are typical of the talented string players from around the world who comprise Keshet Eilon's student body for three weeks every summer.

This year's mastercourse, the seventh, started July 26 and will end with a gala concert on August 8 at Jaffa's Noga Theater. The fea-tured work will be the world premiere of a violin sextet, Opus 52. by Lebanese composer Bashara El Khoury.

Cellists are attending for the first time this year. The students will also play in three chamber ensembles to accuston them to the styles," says Keshet Eilon administrator Gilad Sheba.

Mintz, who has been involved with the project since the beginning, will give three masterclasses. during his 13-day stay, including one called "Everything you ever wanted to ask Shlomo but didn't because there are 42 students, 20 of them Israelis. The rest come from more than a dozen countries including Singapore, Armenia. Korea and Poland. Of course, it's the archery which makes Keshet Eilon unique among summer music camps. It takes the same muscles to wield both kinds of bow. String musicians take to archery like kids to ice cream, and the archery practice improves the musicians' coordination and con-That could be a lot of questions, centration.

This year US Olympic coach Bud Fox will be at the butts set up on the lawn watching with happy incredulity as tomorrow's Perlmans, Piaugorskys and Zukermans shoot bulls-eyes after 15 minutes.

the task is menial, Personal assistants:

THE major Hollywood producer and her personal assistant slid into the back of the limousine after another mad shopping spree. This time, the producer had purchased 25 CDs. "Here," she said, shoving the music discs at the assistant - we'll call her Carol - across the darkened cab. "Take off the cellophane.' Personal assistanıs Tinseltown: Those who have arrived have them. Those on the way up wish they did. She can do the meat of her life, and I'll take care of the rest," said Bonnie Kramen, personal assistant to actress Olympia Dukakis. "She doesn't have to worry about The job of personal assisting includes a splash of glamour, mixed with a heavy dose of drudgery and, sometimes, a heaping helping of pride to swallow. Personal assistants see and bear everything - that is, while they dump the trash, pick up the dry cleaning, answer the fan mail and, on occasion, peel the wrappers off compact discs. Or catch a Lear jet from Las Vegas to Burbank to pick up a fur coal That's what Robert Urich ordered his assistant to do one morning back in 1981, when he was filming the television series VEGA.

As the then-assistant, Olivia Barham, remembers it, the scene called for Uricb to wear a fur coat. But Urich didn't want just any fur coat off the rack from the

LOS ANGELES wardrobe department. He wanted his own wrap - the one at home in suburban Los Angeles.

CONSTANCE SOMMER

So Barham spent the next three hours retrieving the said coat, aided by numerous limousines and a Lear jet that waited at the Burbank Airport while she sped out to Urich's Sherman Oaks

"I thought, this is so trippy," said Barham, who now works for Star Trek's LeVar Burton. "I'm 22 years old and I can't believe I'm spending $10,000 to pick up a fur

Personal assistants say the money flying out of every window can be heady, but it's rarely theirs.

According to the Association of Celebrity Personal Assistants. salaries average about $800 a week and out of that, many pay for their own health-care benefits.

employer. Carol - who asked that her real name not be used - quit after only six months, sick of chasing to Beverly Hills to procure the

Entertainment, both live and liquid

ORGET the Oktoberfest in Munich. We bave an Augustfest in Ashkelon, complete with beer. It's called Briza and although it features all 23 varieties of Carlsberg and Tuborg beers, the festival has drafted big-name performers to draw in the crowds, August 10 to 16. Yehuda Poliker and Arcadi Duchin will appear on opening night, with Poliker presenting the show of his hit disc, The Child In You. On August 12, Jose Feliciano and David Broza will sing together and solo. Last but not least, for those who missed Shlomo Artzi at Tzemah, the singer will reprise his show Two on August 15.

They'll appear in the 9,000-seat amphitheater at the Ashkelon Park. Tickets cost NIS 60 to NIS 99, but for those who lack the means, there are plenty of free shows by groups from Turkey, Greece and Italy. They'll appear every night on one of two stages at either end of "Beer Alley," the broad avenue where the beer, and food, stands will be set up.

Festival spokesman Tzvika Shafir stressed that beer will not be sold to minors, and that identification will be required if there is doubt about a customer's

Furthermore, written security regulations are in effect, supervised by Ashkelon police. Helen Kaye

★ Cost: from $845 (7 nights) per person in twin room, half board (VAT not incl.) Children under 4 free on B/B. From 4-18 yrs. 50% sharing room with 2 adults. For details & reservations, please call: Eddie or Vivienne 09-829805 / 339171 (evening 09-614146). Fax: 09-829802

THE JERUSALEM

F. DAVID RADLER Chairman, Bound of Directors YEHUDA LEVY. President & Publisher

Founded in 1932 by GERSHON AGRON

JEFF BARAK, Managing Editor ALEC ISRAEL, Associate Editor, Copy DAN IZENBERG. News Editor SAM ORBAUM. Features Editor THOMAS O'DWYER, Foreign Editor Jtioy MONTAGU. Op-Ed Editor AMOTZ ASA-EL. Business Editor

AVI GOLAN. Executive Vice President, Marketing & Advertising PAUL STASZEWSKI, CPA, Vice President, Finance YOSSI HORN, Vice President, Production STANLEY SCHRIGER. Circulation Manager BENZION MILLER, Tel Aviv Office Manager

EDITORIAL OFFICES AND ADMINISTRATION The Jerusalem Post Building, P.O. Box 81, Romema, Jerusalem 91000 Telephone 02-315666, Fax 02-389527, CIRCULATION— 02-315610, Fax 02-389017, ADVERTISING - 02-315608, 02-31567-40 Fax 02-388408, TEL AVIV. 5 Rehov Hamasger, POB 28398 (61283) Telephone 03-6390333, Fax 6390277, HAIFA 315637-40 Fax 02-388408, TEL AVIV. 5 Kenov manasgar, POD 20-39-8 (0120.7) Telephane 03-05-0535, Pax 03-0277, PARPA 20 Nordau, Hadar Hacarmel, Telephone (14-8623)66. Published doily except Saturday, in Jerusalem, Israel by The Palestine Post 20 Nordau, Hadar Hacarmel, Telephone (14-8623)66. Published doily except Saturday, in Jerusalem Post 1996. Reproduction, or stortal. Printed by The Jerusalem Post 1996. Reproduction, or storage in a retrieval system. or in any other form, is prohibited without permission. Editors: 1932-1955 GERSHON AGRON, 1955-1989 ART RATH and ERWIN FRENKEL, 1990-1992 N. DAVID GROSS 1974 TED LURIE, 1974-1975 LEA BEN-DOR. 1975-1989 ART RATH and ERWIN FRENKEL. INTERNET EDITION: http://www.jpost.co.il General E-mail: jpedi@jpost.co.il Editorial E-mail:editors@jpost.co.il

American injustice

PRESIDENT Bill Clinton's decision on Friday to reject Jonathan Pollard's appeal for clemency was a poorly-timed and illadvised act which raises serious questions not only about the American system of justice, but also about the American president and his relationship with the Jewish community.

On the surface, the Pollard case would appear to be open and shut. While serving as a US naval intelligence analyst. Pollard passed along classified information to Israel. He was captured after being turned away by the Israeli Embassy in Washington convicted and sentenced to life in prison. Given the vasi amount of material that Pollard reportedly gave his handlers, as well as its sensitive nature, one could be forgiven for assuming that justice was served in this instance. Yet, even a cursory examination of the circumstances surrounding the case reveals that Pollard has fallen victim to what can only be described as an act of arbitrary injustice.

In receiving a life sentence. Pollard was punished far more harshly than others caught spying for friendly nations by American officials. In the past 12 years, 11 such men and women have been convicted in the US for spying, Most received sentences ranging from two to four years. Only Steven Salas, convicted and sentenced to 14 years in 1993 for spying for Greece, received more than 10 years in prison. Since both Israel and Greece are close allies of the US, it is inexplicable that Pollard was singled out for such a harsh sentence, while others received relative leniency.

Indeed, at no time in American history has anyone convicted of spying for a friendly nation received a life sentence. Pollard's life sentence is the equivalent of that which was given to Aldrich Ames, the central figure in one of the worst cases of treason in American history. Ames, who was a senior ClA officer, passed along information to the Soviet Union for years. right under the noses of his superiors. He exposed American agents in the USSR, leading to the capture and execution of at least 10 people, and significantly weakened the ability of the US to gather information against its Cold War rival. By contrast, Pollard spied for a US ally and is not known to have caused any direct harm to US agents. It defies both explanation and justice that a similar sentence would be meted out to these two men.

Adding to the sense of unfairness is the fact that Pollard agreed to plead guilty and waive a trial in exchange for a promise from the US accidents on Israel's roads is one of the most talked about issues, but very little is being done about it. In the past year, many heavy trucks were involved in fatal accidents and the drivers in many cases were either unqualified for the vehicles they were driving or had been forced by their employers to work hours be-

ALSO GUILTY

The description of the accident in your issue of July 17 is typical. A contractor, S. Barashi, anxious to make the maximum amount of money by using the cheapest labor possible, smuggles in an Arab worker who has no permit to work in Israel and has no valid driving license for the heavy vehicle be then has him drive. In effect, he has handed a deadly weapon to an unqualified person and ordered him to use it.

This contractor is thus guilty of at the very least manslaughter of the two women, if not murder, and

In addition, all contractors should have to abide by stringent safety rules set up by the appropriate com-mittee. They should be required to use only qualified workers and pay them union rates as well as full social benefits. Israel cannot continue to base its construction industry

MISSPELLING

letter (July 121 about the many mis-spellings of his name. I have lived in

Sir. - Dr. Koslowe writes a silly

FRUMIE KASTEN

on the exploitation of workers.

Jerusalem.

should be charged accordingly.

yond safe driving.

Sir, - The epidemic of fatal traffic

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR I

more than "a substantial sentence." it being understood that Pollard would not receive life in prison. In effect, the government ignored the terms of the deal and sent Pollard away for life. Moreover, as American columnist Sidney Zion has pointed out. Pollard's sentence was based largely on disinformation spread by Ames, who tried to cover his own tracks by laying the blame on Pollard for the capture of US agents in the USSR. Even now that the truth has come out, the US intelligence community refuses to admit its error, and Pollard languishes in prison as a result.

That Clinton chose to ignore the circumstances of Pollard's case is troubling, though not surprising. President George Bush also rejected Pollard's plea. But the manner in which Clinton chose to publicize his rejection of the appeal is worrisome. While his spokesman was making the announcement to reporters. Clinton was meeting separately with American Jewish leaders, whom he failed to inform about the decision. Seymour Reich, head of the American Zionist Movement, even asked Clinton directly about Pollard, but failed to receive an answer.

This is the second time that Clinton has rejected an appeal from Pollard, and in both instances, the rejection coincided with Clinton's meetings with representatives of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, It is hard not to view such a pattern of events as nothing less than a slap in the

Though Clinton bas been one of Israel's warmest and closest friends in the White House. he would do well to rethink the manner in which the Pollard issue has been handled. The facts that Clinton maintains a 17-point lead over presidential challenger Bob Dole, and that most American Jews are likely to support him in any event, do not mitigate the dire need to bring this sad story to an end.

In explaining his rejection of Pollard's appeal, Clinton said that to shorten his sentence would be unwarranted and that it would undermine the goal of deterring others from committing similar acts. Such logic is flimsy at best, as the circumstances clearly indicate. The singling out of Pollard to serve as an example, while others receive a slap on the wrist, is ethically indefensible and judicially reprehensible. It bebooves Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu to continue to pressure the United States on this subject. For over 10 years, Pollard has sat in jail, having spent more than half that time in solitary confinement. Pollard did the crime, and he has done Justice Department that it would ask for no the time. And now, he should be set free.

'Fake right, go left'

S PORTS have been called good training for politics. While the implications of that are a bit disturbing, it is a fact that skills picked up on the basketball court or soccer field can be usefully applied to political life.

Take, for example, the injunction to "fake right, go left." We know that right-wing politicians can get away with gestures and actions for which their left-wing counterparts would be pilloried.

Thus, the historians tell us that only Richard Nixon could have gone to China and only Menachem Begin could have given up the Sinai. And in previous elections some voters reconciled to the idea of concessions for peace were tantalized by the slogan 'Only the Likud can" -though precisely what it was the Likud "could" was left vague enough to avoid alienating its tradinonal supporters.

Of course, a good take works in either direction, and the previous government could get away with actions which would be far more damaging to this one. Operation Grapes of Wrath, for example, produced little more than a slap on the wrist from domestic opinion, the international media and the "community of nations" because it was faunched by a Labor government demonstrably committed to the peace process; bad a Likud government done something even less violent it would have been raked over the

Still, the "fake left, go right" variant of political deviation is less common and far less inspir-... ing, which is wby so many observers, analysts, and interested parties have invested so much effort since the elections in trying to understand "the real Bibi."

between two interpretations. The first, based on the Yitzhak Shamir precedent, is that the premier is a true believer determined to stick

HE German role in return-ing the bodies of two miss-have been portrayed as a humani-designed to justify German support for Teheran's fundamentalist

For the past three years the US has sought to isolate Iran (and regimes and limit their ability to conduct terror. Commercial links, technology transfer for military buildup and credits bave been blocked to these countries, their leaders have been denied access to the resources they seek to develop nuclear and other weapons of

In contrast, Germany has had no policy of containment, even after

German firms were shown to have

Germany sells Iran many of the resources the US has sought to embargo, as well as providing massive credits to pay for them. This trade enriches German firms.

which make even higher profits in the absence of US competition for the Iranian marker. German financing also allows the Iranians to divert foreign currency to the purchase of advanced weapons and technology, including nuclear components, material and training

from Russia and China, and missile technology from North Korea.

such as Chancellor Kohl have justified this close relationship with the Iranians on the basis of "a critical dialogue" with the fundamentalist leadership. In this dialogue, we are sold, the Germans attempt to persuade the Iranians to turn from the path of terror and abandon the quest for chemical, biological and nuclear weapons. This was also the justification for the meetings between the head of German intelligence. Bernd

Schmidbauer, and his Iranian

For many years German leaders provided deadly technology to mass destruction.

ing Israeli soldiers may

MARK A. HELLER

to his campaign hardline themes and positions, and that in his approach to questions of Israeli flexibility, compromise and concessions in the peace process "he can, but he won't." This interpre-tation prevailed in the media following Netanyahu's visit to the second, (precedent: The Menachem Begin, at least con-master strategist? The real Netanyahu must soon emerge build political capital on which he can draw as he makes the necessary decisions. In shart, "he can, and he will."

ground in light of the actions taken (and not taken) before and since Netanyahu's meeting with President Mubarak, including easing the closure (reimposed following last week's terror attack), the non-closure of Orient House, and the Levy-Arafat handshake on the Erez lawn.

The Hebron redeployment, albeit with some cosmetic alterations, seems all but a foregone conclusion, and the government has even prevailed upon President Weizman to pardon two Palestinian women convicted of murder so they can be released right if Shimon Peres had done that. There are also persistent reports of an emerging policy on settlements which implies not doing less than the previous gov-emment, but also not much more.

All these developments cause serious apprehension among the prime minister's most hardline constituents, but as long as be uses enough politically-correct thetoric they will not constrain him because they know they cannot mobilize anything close to a majority against him.

Even if Netanyahu nnly "goes left" a little bit, initial expectations among the Arabs were so low that any sign of flexibility will be welcomed as evidence that the peace process is not dead, and the opposition will have no choice but to applaud these inadequate but still positive indications of

This isn't to say that a decisive verdict on "the real Bibi" can already be given, only that the prime minister, despite criticism from within his own party, is pragmatic enough to have concluded that blind adherence to pre-election slogans is irresponsible and harmful.

But serious challenges lie ahead, including the possibility that disgruntled settlers will try to push the government further and faster than it wants to go; the probability that Bill Clinton will be re-elected, and the certainty that permanent-status negotiations will start once the outstanding business of Oslo 2 is cleared

Eventually, pragmatism will not provide much guidance. Either the true believer or master strategist will have to comerge of their make most of the then, the prime minister can prosby standing Teddy Rooseveli's aphorism on its bead and continuing to "Talk loudly and carry a small stick."

The writer is senior research associate at the Jaffee Center for Strategic Studies, Tel Aviv

This is a cynical manipulation of emotion, both of the families of the Israeli MiAs and of the public at large, and it is time for the government to make a strong public stand in opposition to any further

After the Holocaust, Germany, of all countries, should be most sensitive to the cynical use of the remains of Jews for commercial

Under the cloak of a "humanitarian gesture," Germany's negotiations with Iran effectively facilitate the undermining of Israel's security. Iran, the world's chief supporter of terrorism, the major opponent of the peace process, is attempting to build weapons of mass destruction capable of

No German gesture can balance these threats - and this our govemment must make clear immedi-

Evidence indicates that in any case the exchange wasn't primari-ly the result of German mediation

but a response to internal Hizbullah pressure for the return of terrorists' bodies and the release of prisoners. If Hizbullah is really interested in further exchanges, there are many other mediators, including the Red Cross, the UN, Egypt - even

Hizbullah leader Hassan

Nasrallah pledged to continue the negotiations in order to gain the freedom of 70 Hizbullah prisoners still held by Israel or the SLA, and has even promised to look for Ron

Arad, or at least for information-on his fate. No one really needs

German assistance, and (other than easy profits) there can be no justification for Germany's trade

Israel should stop providing the and credit relationship with Iran."

fig leaf under which Germany continues to allow a rogue state to buy weapons of mass destruction

The writer is a senior researcher and finance worldwide terror.

Studies at Bar-Ilan University.

Yasser Arafat.

ately and in no uncertain terms.

killing millions of Israelis.

German dealings with Iran.

Drive around

MEIR RONNEN

BETWEEN 1950 and 1967 my reserve unit spent many a long night laying ambushes along the Green Line, to the north, south and west of Jerusalem. These operations didn't stop infiltrators getting into Israel, but they helped.

The Green Line was incredibly long and it required a lot of bods to patrol it. Its only advantage was that you knew exactly where it was supposed to be.

The Green Line has long gone. and with it the comparative sense of security - the fedayeen groups notwithstanding - that it used to afford.

The area around Beil Guvrin and Mevo Betar, always a yawning gap in our security arrangements, seems more insecure than ever, as Friday's ghastly drive by shooting points up. Little wonder residents of the area are worried. The fedayeen didn't have cars.

They had to come and go on foot. And they didn't have automatic assault rifles either, though a few were armed with Swedish submacbine guns (our weapons weren i any better).

Today's terrorists are theoretically better off. They have a wide range of short and long-range weapons to choose from. But sophisticated weapons are hard to smuggle and hide.

The so-called Halhoul group responsible for the last two driveby killings must have limited resources, for ballistic tests show that they have been using the same weapon, now linked with three sets of killings.

On the other hand, the murderers have no need of missile launchers. Firing from a car affords closing to point-blank range.

The car itself is a means of instant escape. It can be back in home territory even before our security forces are alerted.

The fedayeen couldn't have driven cars across the border, Rnads were permanently cut or blocked off. So the fedayeen came in through wadi beds, well below

WHAT WE have to do is make most of the drivable side roads

Send in the buildozers and drivable roads into Israel totally impassable into Israel totaliy impassable even if this means making Israeli drivers go a long way around before getting to where they want to go in the territories. And every other road has to have manned, fully effective road blocks. Only then will Israelis living within what was once the Green Line be reasonably safe from this particular form of mur-

There's time to do it before the closure is lifted again. A bulidozer or ditch digger can finish the job m a few minutes.

Under the best of pie-in-the-sky circumstances, with a real peace agreement, vigilant and effective Palestine police - not to mention thousands of properly deployed Israeli forces - the absence of a Green Line isn't going to be conducive to a hermetically sealed border.

Even during current closures, today's infiltrators, trying to look for work, come daily on foot over the hills. They don't even bother to keep off the skyline. When caught, they are sent back without even a fine.

Nevertheless, these Arab workers, the great majority of them breadwinners who are not active terrorists, whatever their feelings, are less of a threat to our society than the hordes of foreign workers attempting to settle here permanendy. At least the Arabs, or most of them, go home at night. Every time we lift the closure, as lift it we must, we simply have to find a workable solution to the particular problem that caused us to enforce it yet again. We may never get it totally right. We have no alternative but to go on trying.

The writer is a veteran contributor to The Jerusalem Post.

POSTSCRIPTS

THAT ODOR wasting out of the UN building is not the scent of another diplomatic scandal - just the pungent smell of "Boutras Boutras Garlic."

One hundred bottles of the stuff, marketed by a South African firm in a play on the name of Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, wenl on sale in a

Unlike the UN chief, whose at the BESA Center for Strategic term ends on December 31 and whose re-election hopes are threatened, the garlic carries no expiry date.

cerning Egypt) is that the premier is a master strategist who really does intend to advance the peace process and used the campaign to True believer or

THIS interpretation is gaining

Cynical use of emotion GERALD M. STEINBERG

Washington note that, billions of dollars in profits aside, the tarian gesture, but it was primarily Germans can show nothing for Iraq) via a policy of "dual contain-ment" designed to weaken their

> German dealings with Iran? The government must make a strong public stand opposing them

German planes were used to under increasing criticism, both domestically and in Western Europe. Britain, Holland, Norway and Denmark have joined the US in blocking commercial relations with Iran, and Australia is considering similar steps.

the publicity accorded their role in returning the bodies of the Israelis, and to use this role as evidence of the success of the critical dialogue.

carry the soldiers' remains to Israel. Schmidbauer was visible at every step of the process, including high-level meetings with israeli officials and even a press conference, which was broadcast. in Germany. He also used the promise of future "break-throughs," particularly regarding Ron Arad, to justify continued trade and links between Germany and Iran, adding he was "optimistic that additional missing soldiers and prisoners might be their relations with Iran. The fundamentalists are still in power, propped up by consumer goods and financing from Germany; Hizbullah and Hamas are still terrorizing Israel and the rest of the

Indeed, Germany has come

THIS IS why Kohl and Schmidbauer sought to maximize

Israel since 1975, I lived in two other continents before that and not once has my complicated name been misspelled, It is unfortunate that your correspondent tried to make light of a serious issue: has our prime minister been the victim of inattentive bureaucrats, or has he used atlases, and if so, for what purpose? We have the right to know the answer to this and other questions about his past and it would be easy for him to allay our anxieties, but he hasn't done so. RAFAEL COSLOVSKY, M.D. Rishon Lezion.

Sir, - Being an Orthodox Jew, I have had to think twice before attacking a body which looks after my interests. Finally, though, I felt somebody had to say it.

If a catering hall can have its kashrut certificate taken away because at a party someone brought in a belly dancer, surely the moment the offending advertisement was seen, the rabbinate should have taken action.

I therefore believe the question is not "Who the - is Chacko?", but where in the name of heaven are those who are meant to care for the good of our souls? It has been for ages an axiom that kosher food also means a kosher place and surely that also includes how you advertise the establishment.

DISGRACE

JOSEPH LUNZER

Sir, - I think it is a disgrace that the Olympic Committee has accepted a Palestinian delegation to the Olympic Games. The Olympics are supposedly a politics-free arena, but in this particular case a political statement has deliberately been made - despite being grossiy incorrect.

This decision showcases to the whole world that the Palestinians belong to an internationally recognized sovereign state by the name of Palestine. Palestine, to refresh some memories, was in fact a combination of Israel and Jordan, and has by no means been reclaimed or renamed to suit whatever negotiations are currently taking place. Let us remember that to participate in the Olympic Games one must represent a country, not an autonomy or some fake

Furthermore, the memory of the slain Israeli sportsmen of the 1972 Munich Olympics, victims of Yasser Arafat's cold-blooded terrot. makes it disgusting to see the representalives of this man bearing his face on their uniform badge at the very games that they, in the name of their so-called country, so cruelly

YOSSI LEVY Tel Aviv.

MYANMAR: LONG-TIME FRIEND OF ISRAEL

Sir, - I refer to your editorial of July 14, "The Lady as a beacon." f always considered your paper to be abjective and impartial. Hence I am shocked to read the groundless allegations mentioned in your editorial which smack of the smear campaign of the opposition.

Your editorial quotes the Amnesty International report. Amnesty International in its 1995 report accuses 146 countries, including Israel, of violating human rights in varying degree. The IDF reply in your issue of June 20 calls that "Amnesty re-port 'irresponsible,' " with which I agree. Allegations in Amnesty International reports about Myanmar are also one-sided and lack accuracy and perspective.

With regard to the alleged deten-tion of the NLD members, they were not "locked up" as mentioned. They were called in for questioning and sent back home. Don't you think that law-enforcement agencies have the right to prevent lawlessness and disorder? As to thought police, it is sheer absurdity. The whole Western media is filled with opposition views, not the others' voice which is silenced or blacked out by the syndicated media.

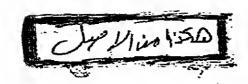

Regarding the allegation about the death of James Leander Nichols, he had a history of high blood pressure and heart problems. More than six medical treatments were given to him during the last two months of his incarceration. He did not die in prison nor under unclear circumstances as you said. He died at the Yangon General Hospital of heart

You compare Myanmar with any Middle Eastern terrorist dictatorship or pariah states. Does Myanmar export terrorism or killing squads? In fact, Myanmar, as a friend of the State of Israel, has stood by it for more than 40 years since its birth, even in the most difficult times such as 1967, 1973 and in the Gulf war. The Jerusalem Post seems to have a short memory. As to the economic boycott it would be wise to ask the chamber of commerce before you write anything about it. KYAW ZEYA

Embassy of the Union of Myanmar counterpart. But critics of the "critical diain Jerusalem and Drive aroun

Tel Aviv,

Sunday, July 28, 1996 Vol. CXLV-No. 50,502 Copyright 6):1996 The New York Times

The New York Times

Weekly Review

Printed and distributed in Israel in associatioo with The Jerusalem Post

Get a Job

The New Contract With America's Poor

By JASON DePARLE

S the movement to repeal welfare boiled across the Senate last week, a noteworthy chart appeared on the chamber floor. Decorated with a sketch of a creeping infant, it advertised a Democratic amendment to provide vouchers to those children — as many as four million — who could be dropped from government rolls if the bill becomes law.

· Through an eerie enumeration, the poster specified what the vouchers could buy:

Clothing. Diapers. Cribs.

School Supplies.

That the Democrats' hopes for the welfare poor has been reduced to a plan to salvage some diapers speaks volumes about the national debate. That the amendment failed says even more.

There's no doubt that the Republican bill, which passed the House and Senate and will be sent to the White House as soon as this week, would "end welfare as we know it.". (To quote a certain President, now immersed in his re-election drive.)

The risk is that it may also end poverty as we know it. By making it even worse.

To the public, that may seem unimaginable, so wretched are the nine million children and four million parents who now receive aid, and so discredited is the program that sustains them. But the Republican plan does not "reform" welfare, which is known as Aid to Families with Dependent Children. Technically, it abolishes it.

It's a Free Market

In its place, it offers laissez-faire bopes that, faced with the consequences of bad luck and yor choices, the needy will somehow sha No doubt, some will.

But the weight of the evidence suggests that most either cannot or will not lift themselves from poverty in an economy where, for more than two decades, the bottom has been dropping out for low-skilled workers. In a nation that already has the highest child poverty rates to the industrialized world the poor may indeed get poorer. And more numerous and desperate as well. Whatever the bill's substantive demerits it succeeds brilliantly in what may be its Continued on page 4 Welfare as we know it: a woman with her 7-month-old son filling out an application at a job fair run by the City of Detroit in 1994. Thousands applied for a few hundred jobs.

Language Wars

Pushing French and German in an English-speaking world.

By Craig R. Whitney

Abortion Pill

RU 486 is more than just taking a pill.

By Gina Kolata

Remembering Pan Am 103

Off Long Island, Echoes From Lockerbie

Debris from Pan Am Ffight 103, recovered in Lockerbie, Scotland, being reassembled in Farnborough, England.

By PETER MARKS

ORNING after morning, they stood shoulder-to-shoulder in their identical dark uniforms, meticulously combing the mud-dy hillsides for the shredded remains of a

It seemed, at the time, that the members of the local Dumfries and Galloway Constabulary and the other Scottish police officers and British soldiers who joined in the recovery had an impossible task. Pan Am Flight 103 had disintegrated into an uncountable number of fragments when it exploded over Lockerbie, Scotland, on Dec. 21, 1988, raining pieces as big as the cockpit and as minute as a luggage key over hundreds of square miles.

Much of the debris fell on the old market town of Lockerbie, and in the days after the crash, the townspeople dutifully fished seat belts and broken toys and charred bits of fuselage out of their gardens and stacked them, for collection, at the curb. Bodies, too - 259 in all - tumbled out of the sky and onto rooftops and lawns. In the surrounding countryside, searchers planted small flags next to the tiny impressions made by the bodies that landed in the damp earth.

The view from that hillside, where I stood as a reporter eight years ago, came back vividly last week — eveo before yesterday's explosion in Atlanta evoked images of yet another form of terror. Compared to the teams now searching for evidence in the crash of T.W.A. Flight 800 off Long Island, the investigators who spent weeks looking for wreckage in the Scottish grass were lucky, at least in the conditions under which they had to look. At Lockerbie, the authorities and recovery experts did not have to contend with punishing waves, poor visibility, submerged victims and the corrosive effects of sea water on their most important evidence, the broken jetliner itself.

And that, undoubtedly, was an advantage in the investigation of the crash of Pan Am 103. Just seven days after the disaster, the British authorities announced that they had cooclusive evidence that the Boeing 747 had been destroyed by a bomb. It has now been more than 10 days since Flight 800 broke apart and fell in flames into the sea, and investigators counted it a major accomplishment last week to have recovered the recorders of in-flight data and conversations, and to have located two of the four engines, even as they kept trying to locate the rest of the 230 victims.

At Lockerbie, forensic scientists quickly established that two parts of the metal frame of the jet's luggage pallet, the struc-ture that contains the baggage in the jet's holds, showed the effects of high explosives. (Metal fragments also were found in some bodies.) Within months, investigators had concluded through the recovery of tiny fragments of electronics that a plastic explosive made from Semtex had been hidden in a radio-cassette player that had, in turn, been hidden in a suitcase.

The combing of the countryside yielded other evidence that led to the indictment in November 1991 of two Libyan intelligence agents in the bombing. The indictment said one had purchased a shirt in Malta, where the luggage containing the radio-cassette player had been put on a flight before being transferred to Pan Am 103. The indictment said a fragment of a timing device was found embedded in that shirt.

In the American psyche as well as the annals of investigations of terror in the air, Pan Am 103 is the forerunner to T.W.A. 800.

Continued on page 3

arde icial

mo assada

The Cuban Connection Why Che Guevera is James Dean's chief rival in Europe. By Bella Thomas

The World

For Europeans, Cuba Hasn't Lost Its Magic

By BELLA THOMAS

UROPE and the United States are ciearly at odds over Cuba. The new Helms-Burton law, which could allow American courts to punish foreign companies that "traffic" in property confiscated from Americans, could yet provoke a serious crisis between America and some of its principal allies. In a sense, the issue isn't so much Cuba as the extent to which one country can force others to comply with its own legislation. But the quarrel reveals something deeper—the different perspectives in which the United States and Europe view Cuba itself.

It is not that Europeans idealize Cuba in a political sense, as was fashionable in the 1960's and 70's. Officials of the European Union io Brussels say that they are keen to promote democracy in Cuba but that they do not believe the embargo has worked or will work. There is a strong case to suggest that it has been counterproductive; it provides Fidel Castro's regime with its strongest underlying rationale.

Turning the Screw

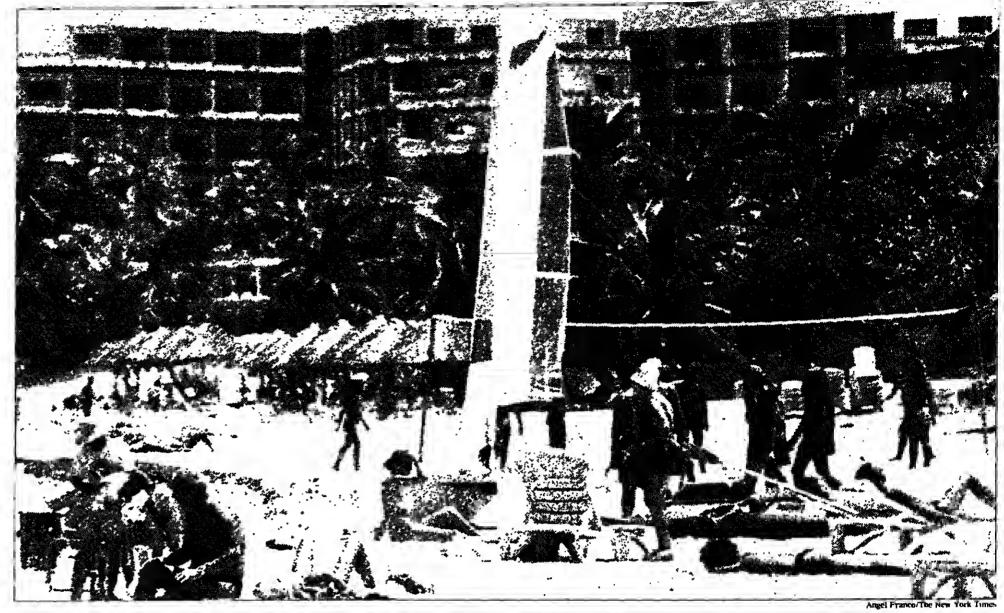

And for good or evil, a nation that has stood up so doggedly to a neighboring superpower moves people on this side of the Atlantic. So the more the Americans turn the screw on Cuba, and try to forbid others to do business there, the greater its allure for the rest of the world. It is the simplest psychology in the book: the appeal of the underdog. This was not nearly as marked during the long years of Soviet subsidies, when Cuba too could be accused of aggression. But the mood is different now.

Cuba is not conceived of as a utopia any longer by most left-wing iotellectuals in Europe, but the retreat has been gentler and less radical than it was with the case of the Soviet Union. This may be partly because Europeans don't have to think about Cuba all the time — it is a long way away, and it doesn't needle Europe in the same way that it does the United States. In addition, even Europeans who reject Communism tend to have a less apocalyptic view of it than do many in the United States, particularly now that it is all but over in Europe.

Americans often argue over what importance to give the dictatorial aspects of the Cuban system, in light of some of its more positive achievements such as education and health care, particularly in cootrast to the glaring inequalities in the rest of Latin America. This debate has been less heated in Europe (except perhaps in Spain, where exiles broadcast many of the iniquities). But Europeans in general accept the ambiguities without forcing a conclusion: they have the leisure to think both things at once.

The Issue they know more about is the American embargo, which does make them slt up. This is what preserves Cuba's radical chic in the streets of European capitals. In London, for instance, there are bars like the Bar Cuba or the Café Fidel, with walls smothered in revolutionary memorabilia. Of Bello Thomas is o British journalist who writes about Lotin Americo and has traveled to Cuba several times.

Foreign tourists on the beach at Varadero, Cuba, with the Hotel Melia Varadero - a joint venture between Cuba and Spaniards - in the background.

course Cuba has always been an intoxicating subject. Revolutions are more so, and Che Guevara remains a pin-up rivaled only by James Dean. (Café Fidel, io one of London's richest districts, was set up by an Italian who said she chose the name because it was "a bit outrageous," although she added: "I'm not interested in politics anymore, but I love the man." The cafe inside is actually a highly sophisticated restaurant, serving Italian food, and is patronized by smart, conventional professionals.)

Europeans are now going to Cuba by the tens of thousands. They have a lot more to say when they return, not all of it about politics. The history of the island's political passions is a source of romance. The Spanish colonial buildings are a further pull. The island's partially forbidden nature provides magnetism. And then, given the tourist's choice between Miami and Havana, many choose Havana simply because there is something hard about the glitter of Miami and mean about its streets.

Europeans are also charmed in Cuba by the features that they do not have at home (and that they would doubtless be hard put to live with): the gentle pace of the streets, the fact that the crowing of cocks drowns the noise of cars in city centers, and the distinctively anti-modern air given off by the texture of the cities, which can be an enthralling contrast to the bright sheen and sharp edges of their own metropolises. The wide-winged Chevrolets, the dim, white lighting, the crumbling architectural surface of Old Havana and the capacious vaulted rooms of public spaces all give ample room to frolic in nostalgia for a seemingly distant past. If they go into people's houses and absorb some of the appalling conditions in which people live, they may get a sense of the arduousness of the Cuban existence; but if they stick to the streets they need only wonder in amazement.

No to Smugness

Paul Hollander, in his book "Political Pilgrims," which looks at the way many Western intellectuals were captivated by particular Communist countries, says that, in Cuba's case, it represented "an alternative to a smug and undynamic or Inauthentic social order in their own countries."

order in their own countries."

This tendency may have declined, but other fears in Western society — of environmental degradation or consumerism —still work in Cuba's favor. Mr. Castro has capitalized on those by casting Cuba as an environmental haven, although this happened because of the shortage of fuel and fertilizers, which was obviously not planoed.

Cuba is also surreal; Bréton and other early surrealists had a heyday there in the 1920's. I could only think of them when, for instance, I fouod two young boys fast asleep in a hotel elevator, or when someone tiptoed up to me in the street and whispered he could do me a special deal in chickpeas. On a deeper level, anthropologists refer to Cuba's dominant religion, Santería, as a form of sincretism, in that several different beliefs merged and blurred. Cubans today seem, in a sense, to be trying to do the same with politics: they are communists and capitalists at the same time and simply ignore or gloss over the contradictions.

And European businessmen, at least until Helms-Burton, have been traveling to Cuba in droves. (Spaniards, so closely tied to Cuba over the centuries, invariably feel they are coming home.) Not all businesses have made much money. Some are just gambling that the embargo will inevitably collapse. Others are there for short-term profits. But they know, in the long run, like the owners of the Café Fidel in London, that Cuba has a thoroughly marketable edge. Mr. Castro no doubt enjoys the paradox.

A European ambassador to Havana reported a lighthearted conversation with Mr. Castro at a reception that, in an oblique way. bints at the difference between Cuba's relationships with America and with Europe, and how be plays one against the other. The subject was Manuel Fraga, the president of Galicia and Franco's former Information Minister — a significant pillar of the right in Spain and the only Western dignitary who was prepared to entertain Mr. Castro abroad in the early 1990's. The two had much to talk "Gallego." Mr. Castro was describing how much be admired Mr. Fraga: "He is a good man," he said. "I would not even mind meeting Margaret Thatcher. . . . In fact, if 1 had been a European, perhaps I too would have been on the right." Part of Mr. Castro's charm is his ability to stagger his audience. It is this very unpredictability that frustrates Americans, but that can, partly because they have less at stake, still fascinate Europeans.

The Language Wars

To the Barricades, Speaking in Tongues

By CRAIG R. WHITNEY

EVER mind the French military might that rumbled down the Champs Élysées and roared overhead on Bastille Day. The struggle closest to French patriotic hearts is being fought out at the Olympic arenas of Atlanta — and not by the athletes. The French Foreign Ministry includes a whole office devoted to spreading the French language; its head, Margie Sudre, insisted venemently on giving the Freoch language its full due in Atlanta as the second official language of the Games. So 1,000 French-language interpreters have been in place to roam the Olympic village; scoreboards are written in French as well as English, and Mrs. Sudre was there in person on opening day to check up on how well the American organizers kept their promises to be multilingual.

French Fries Allowed

Americans may have trouble understanding why the French care so much about their language's survival in an increasingly anglophone world. For all the official prickliness about French industrial espionage, no one in the United States talks of banding french fries as a subversive influence. But in French-speaking Quebec, stores are banned from using signs with English words in bolder type than their French equivalents.

There is lots of talk in Europe, too, about cultural diversity these days, but on this side of the Atlantic the phrase stands for the desire to preserve the separate cultural and linguistic identities of the European nation states even as they move toward closer unity. Nobody wants nationalistic rivalries like the ones that caused two world wars, but nowadays nobody wants a United States of Europe, either, a federal state where everybody sees the same movies, buys the same store brands and speaks the same language.

If that kind of federalism ever did triumph here, survival of the fittest would probably mean that the common lingo would turn out to be English. So France resists — and so does Germany — putting up a valiant fight to spread the culture and the values their languages bear, along with commerce.

In Germany's case, proselytizing for the tongue of Luther and Goethe is partly a way of telling people that Hitler and the Holocaust are not all there is to German history. The larger reason for the sensitivity, and the one Germany and France share, is that the Continental tongues are so badly outnumbered in the world today. French, notably, remains the official language of 21 countries and the co-official language of five more, including Canada. But the number of French speakers in all of them — about 200 million — does not even equal the population of Brazil, where the lingua franca is Portuguese. English, though, is used by one out of every seven people on the globe.

European colonialism is what originally spread French (as it did English, Portuguese, and Spanish) so widely. Now, the French language is helping keep the colonial-era ties alive. Mrs. Sudre, who heads the Francophone Secretariat in the French Foreign Ministry, was born in French Indochina in 1943 and didn't even learn French, her father's language, until she was 8 years old.
Ho Clu Minh's revolutionaries expelled the French colonial regime io 1954, but Vietnam has invited France's President, Jacques Chirac, to Hanoi next year for the seventh annual meeting of the 49 nations of the francophone movement, or Francophonie, which includes lands where the language is culturally respected if not exactly widely spoken.

"I don't think that you can compare the situation of French in the world with English," she said. "The English that is spreading around the globe is really Anglo-American, not the pure English of Shakespeare's day. We want to try to preserve the richness, subtlety and precision of the French language against the challenge of this new form of English."

Purity of language and the ideals of freedom get talked about a lot at gatherings of the Francophonie, but France also wants to preserve economic influence in the world, and is wary of the advantage that speaking English gives to English-speaking countries like the United States in global trade.

French speakers are not the only ones with a messianic urge. The German Government spends $200 million a year spreading German and German culture through 150 Goethe Institutes in 70 countries, but the German effort lacks the defensive overtone of the campaign led by France, which spends $1 billion on francophony. It doesn't bother Germans, for example, to call the programs that run computers "die Software." The French, on the other hand, insist "logiciel" is better.

The New Battleground

More people in places like Poland, Hungary and the Czech Republic speak German than French, and the French fear that in the long run their influence in the European Union will wane as these countries become members. French used to be the language of diplomacy, not of war, and in part France yearns for the power and influence that it had when Cardinal Richelieu and Talleyrand had to be listened to in the royal courts of Europe

So Mr. Chirac insists that the heads of international organizations nowadays should be able to speak French—one reason France is eager to re-elect Boutros Boutros-Ghali, who speaks fluent French, as the United Nations Secretary General even though the United States opposes him.

In a moment of humility, Mr. Chirac might concede that the language spoken by most people today is Mandarin Chinese. But then, he might say, it does not need to struggle to preserve itself.

COUNTRY LIVING/CITY KIDS: SUPPORT THE FRESH AIR FUND

elin ager

Ideas & Trends

The Smallest Olympians Pay the Biggest Price

By SUSAN GILBERT

consticts team arrived in Atlanta for the Olympics with their prospects for victory clouded by injuries: one bad a four-inch stress fracture in her leg, another bad tendonitis in her forearm and wrist. The team members played through the pain and won a gold medal. But their quest for glory might cost them their health, doctors say.

All athletes risk injury, but the danger is particularly great for young female gymnasts whose growing bodies are especially vulnerable. Writing in The New England Journal of Medicine last week, three doctors criticized organized gymnastics for the physical and emotional hardships it imposes on young girls. Although girls and boys begin training between ages 5 and 7, girls have a limited time — usually from 12 until 19 — to compete. While the sport rewards strength in male gymnasts, who compete well into their 20's, it prizes a small childlike body in the female athletes.

Training for more than 20 hours a week puts girls and boys at risk of stress fractures and spinal damage like scoliosis and spondylolysis, says Dr. Lyle J. Micheli, director of sports medicine at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston and one of the authors of the journal article. Elite athletes train for 45 hours a week. "I've seen gymnasts and former gymnasts with a high incidence of back deterioration, wrist problems and knee problems that can be quite debilitating and limit their activity as adults," Dr. Micheli said.

Intense training can suppress estrogen, delaying puberty and causing 18-year-olds to resemble 12-year-olds.

Girls' intense training suppresses estrogen production, delaying puberty and causing 18- and 19-year-old Olympians to resemble 12-year-olds. The lack of estrogen keeps their bones thin and puts them at risk of osteoporosis. Estrogen production and bone density return when they ease training or leave the sport. They begin menstruation — though sometimes not until their mid-20's — and fertility is unimpaired.

Still, some permanent damage may occur. "We think fine bone trabeculae, part of the structure of the bone, is lost and doesn't come back, and this leaves the girls at risk of arthritis," Dr. Michell said. They may also never reach their full adult height, he said.

There may be long-term psychiatric consequences too. As many as 62 percent of these girls have eating disorders, compared to about 2 percent of the general population. "I see bad eating disorders and a lot of Kerri Strug of the American gymnastics team executing an Olympic vault that led to a sprained ankle.

Male gymnasts are prized for strength, females for their small childlike bodies.

depression in gymoasts when the sport ends," said Dr. Barri Katz Stryer, a child psychiatrist and clinical instructor at the University of California at Los Angeles and one author of the New England Journal report.

The idea that these gymnasts are at their peak in their teen years reflects trends as whimsical as those dictating hemlines. In the past, top Olympic female gymnasts were in their 20's, occasionally even their 30's, but younger gymnasts came into vogue in 1972, when Olga Korbut of the Soviet Union won three gold medals and a silver medal at age 16. The trend continued when 14-year-old Nadia Comaneci of Romania won a gold medal in 1976.

Favoring the Pixies

Coaches, judges and television audiences now favor pixielike gymnasts. "The routines have changed to accommodate them," said Dr. Ian R. Tofler, another author of the report who is director of child psychiatry at Children's Hospital in New Orleans and secretary of the Ioternational Society for Sports Psychiatry. "The Yurchenko vault requires gymnasts to be lightweight and agile, but it's the most dangerous event."

The sight of girls tumbling in mid-air has helped turn the sport into one of the most popular Olympic events. It has also increased their chances of injury and even death. Kerri Strug of the American team fell during the vault and sprained her ankle Tuesday night, only to make history by getting up to do it again. In a 1988 competition in Japan, Julissa Gomez, an American Olympic hopeful, broke her neck and later died.

While acknowledging the dangers, Luan Peszec, a spokeswoman for U.S.A. Gymnastics, which oversees American training, says, "A lot of people make inaccurate accusations that female gymnasts are pushed too hard, but the athletes can speak about this better than anybody else, Kerri bas said she wanted to do the vault and win the gold medal more than anything."

U.S.A. Gymnastics has proposed several changes to make training safer for girls, including educating coaches about nutrition, child psychology and too much training. The problem, Dr. Micheli said, is enforcement.

So far, the only actual change is the decision made last month by the International Gymnastics Federation to require the athletes to be 16 before entering international competitions. It remains to be seen if that will ease the stresses of training.

Dr. Tofler sees two possible benefits: Girls will be able to delay their most intensive training, and the tide may turn in favor of taller, more physically mature female gymnasts.

Plane Crashes and Politics

The Latest Casualties Are Factual

By MATTHEW L WALD

SMITHTOWN, N.Y.

The day after T.W.A. Flight 800 exploded in the skies south of Long Island July 17, the local congressman amounced that one of the black boxes had been found. Over the next few days, the President's chief of staff said investigators were looking closely for signs of terrorism and had detected "chemical leftovers" on plane debris. The Governor told the world, including the anxious families, that divers had found "dozens and dozens" of additional bodies.

At the time, all of the statements were wrong. The people who usually disseminate information after such incidents, the investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board, said little publicly.

The hours after a plane crashes are a time of information chaos, a torrent of purported facts, many of which turn out to be false. But in this crash and the last big one, the Valujet DC-9 that plunged into the Everglades in May, something more has been happening: culture clash.

On one side are the old bands in aviation who know where the answers are. In this case the answers are in the debris nine miles offshore and 120 feet down, waiting to be pried from the sea by divers and decoded by metallurgists, chemists and compoter specialists. It could take months.

Grounded

On the other side are elected officials, who are of late drawn to such accidents to see and be seen, to offer comfort to the victims and reassurance to the public and press. Flanked by cameras and microphones, they eagerly spout information, even if it later turns out to be false.

The approach has its perils, as Secretary of Transportation Federico Peña discovared after going to the Everglades in mid-May to declare that Valujet was safe. The airline was grounded weeks later.

Thrown into the mix of agencies and politicians in the T.W.A. crash is a top F.B.I. official who acknowledges that be has never dealt with a plane that crashed in water. Yet by its size alone the F.B.I. has come to dominate the investigation even though it is not in charge unless foul play is officially determined.

F.B.I. involvement has created several sources of information where usually there is only one, the safety board. The N.T.S.B. is a jealous agency that has in the past given an unceremonious boot to officials of other agencies who disclose any findings. Last year, it yanked a New York State investigator off a subway collision case because he persisted in publicly offering theories and explanations before the board was ready. In the case of T.W.A. flight 800, the board bas been unable to turn away high-ranking elected officials, who may misspeak or not fully understand what technical experts have told them. The resulting spectacle had the Federal official in charge of the recovery and investigation, Robert T. Francis of the safety board, announcing that buman remains were being brought to the surface as fast as possible while Governor George E. Pataki was implying that large amounts of human remains were being bypassed.

The White House finally stepped in, to impose discipline, if not necessarily order, on the flow of information. President Clinton contradicted his chief of staff, Leon Panetta, after Mr. Panetta's comments on terrorism and cautioned against premature conclusions. Then Mr. Panetta met with the chairman of the safety board, James Hall, and officials of other agencies to resolve what Mr. Francis later called the "furor" of conflicting information.

Senator Alfonse M. D'Amato and F.B.I. Assistant Director James K. Kallstrom at a Long Island news conference on the crash.

Mr. Francis then stated publicly and sternly that his agency would be making the amouncements — although in theory it had been all along. Mr. Pataki said later he had given out the information as he understood it at the time. In a separate oews conference, Mr. Francis said, "Miscommunications are always unfortunate."

An Information Fix

But the board's information system, some of its officials realize, is outmoded. The cycle of sending people into the field every morning and holding a progress meeting every evening followed by a news conference at 8 or 9, worked better before the age of all-news television. And in this crash, there is even less tolerance than usual for the normal delays of an aircraft investigation, and a sense that the trail of the bad guys (if they exist) is growing cold.

But if politicians are tempted to step in again, they might consider the fate of Mr. Peña. At a recent Senate Commerce Committee hearing, he was quizzed by Kay Bailey Hutchison of Texas, who was on the safety board in the mid-1970's. During her tenure, she said, secretaries of transportation never went to crashes — why did he?

Mr. Peña said he went to make it clear that the safety board is in charge. The Senator replied that the board had always performed well for itself.

Ms. Hutchison said that Mr. Peña should think about leaving the safety board to do its job, "without calling press conferences that tend to confuse the situation."

An Echo

Continued From Page I

Although the F.B.I. and other agencies say they have yet to determine what caused the T.W.A. crash — late last week, mechanical failure had not been ruled out — there are eerie echoes of Lockerbie, and they seemed to reverberate more loudly by the day.

Eveo the recovery of the T.W.A. cockpit voice recorder brought back memories of Pan Am 103. Officials of the National Transportation Safety Board said the device had recorded oormal cockpit conversation, followed by a brief, unexplained interruption, then silence.

"I got goose bumps because it reminded me so vividiy of Pan Am 103," said Vincent Cannistraro, the C.f.A.'s former chief of counterterrorism operations, who led the Pan Am 103 investigation. He added that on the Pan Am cockpit recording, "a crunching sound like the airplane breaking up" also interrupted the pilots' conversations. "That was the bomb."

In the days after the bombing, Lockerbie — where Scottisb officials had set up their beadquarters for investigating the crash and dispensing information to the world's press, which descended on the town — was bustling but emotionally muted. The town hall became a makeshift morgue; there were few public displays of anger over the pace of the recovery, as there have been since the T.W.A. crash.

It was not that victims' families had no complaints. In their 1990 book, "The Fall of Pan Am 103" (G. P. Putnam's Sons), Steven Emerson and Brian Duffy reported that a week after the crash, many British and American families "still had no word on when they could recover the bodies and at least give them a proper burial." Lockerbie itself was not just a crime scene; Il of the town's residents died after the fiery debris from the jet struck their houses.

But Lockerbie was not media-driven New York. Scottish police officials had tried to persuade relatives not to go to Lockerbie for fear the experience would be too traumatic. Many did go, but they were largely sbielded from reporters.

Perhaps the ferocity and swiftness with which some T.W.A. 800 family members have taken their case to the news media—and the media's desire to hear them—can be traced to the experience of Pan Am 103. Many Pan Am 103 families, furious at what they viewed as security lapses in airports before the bombing, and Government Indifference to them after it, formed support and lobbying groups. Their vigilance, some officials have said, helped keep pressure on investigatory agencies to find the bombers.

It was an Investigation that had started in the hills and meadows around Lockerbie, a search so painstakingly executed that, months after the crash, some relatives of the victims were getting heartbreaking reminders of what had happened over Scotland. So meticulous had the Scottish police been, in fact, that when some of the victims' clothing was returned to American families, it came back cleaned and pressed.

Ideas & Trends

RU 486: It Isn't Just Popping a Pill

By GINA KOLATA

ARCIA B., a 30-year-old married sociologist who lives on the West Coast, knew she was pregnant as soon as she missed her menstrual period, and she knew she did not want to have the baby. "I did not want to be pregnant one second longer," she said. It was too early for a suction abortion, but she discovered she had another option. A clinic nearby was participating in studies of an abortion pill, called RU 486 in France and mifepristone in this country, and she could have an abortion with this method immediately. So she seized the opportunity.

In retrospect, she says, "Anyone who thinks it's just a matter of taking a pill is going to be let down."

Mifepristone is expected to be widely available soon in America and has already been used by more than 200,000 women in Europe. The Population Council, a nonprofit organization, obtained a license to market the drug in the United States from its maker, the French company Roussel Uclal, and tested it here, in clinics like the one that Marcia visited. On July 19, an advisory committee to the Food and Drug Administration concluded that the drug was safe and effective, clearing the way for the agency to license it for sale.

What are the practical realities, though?

Abortion rights groups said that if the drug is approved, abortion will become more private and more widely available. Worried about violeoce and harassment from opponeots of abortion rights, fewer and fewer doctors are willing to give surgical abortions. Fully 89 perceot of counties have on abortion provider. Yet in a survey last year of obstetrician-gynecologists by the Kaiser Family Foundation, half said they were likely to use mifepristone if it is approved.

Not Yet a Home Remedy

Dr. Elizabeth Newhall, who tested the drug in her Portland, Ore., clinic, Everywoman's Health, said it would be easy for gynecologists and for many internists and general practitioners to offer the drug, and eventually, she said, "I have no doubt that women will be able to do this at home." For now, though, the Population Council intends to restrict its use to doctors' offices.

"We are making women hang around in clinics in my opinion because we do not want anything bad to happen to anyone who takes the drug," Dr. Newhall said.

"The political aftermath would be so horrendous" if a woman took the drug and hemorrhaged at home.

The cost differences are negligible. A mifepristone abortion is expected to cost the same as a suction abortion, about $250.

What about the experience? Dr. C. Wayne Bardin, a consultant to the Population Council, said 82 percent of women who took the drug reported intense uterine cramps, a dull pain that, Dr. Newhall said, is like the spasms from appendicitis or a gallstone attack.

Suction abortions also can hurt. "I think the pain attached to a suction abortion is much worse, " Dr. Newhall said." While it is much much briefer, the pain is more intense." In a suction abortion, a woman lies on a table and receives several sbots of a local anesthetic in her cervix. like the kind a dentist uses before drilling. A doctor uses an instrument to grasp and pull her cervix open, inserts a flexible plastic tube into the uterus, and suctions out its contents. After several minutes, it is over, although cramps can last for a half hour or more. "It takes from one hour to two hours from your arrival at the clinic until you feave," Dr. Newhall said.

One woman says she left the clinic not knowing whether she had had an abortion.

Marcia B., who asked that her last came not be used because her mother does not know about her five abortions, has tried both types. She has had four suction abortions and has worked in an abortion clinic, so she knows what they are like. She said the amount of pain is unpredictable, "I had one that barely hurt — it was like mild menstrual cramps," she said. But, she added, the last one she bad "was excruciating."

She found out that there are drawbacks to milepristone abortions, too. The first hurdle was "the time commitment," Marcia said. It required three visits to the clinic, the first two lasting for hours.

On her first visit, on a Monday, Marcia had an exam, filled out a questionnaire and gave informed consent. She was at the clinic for several hours before she finally took three milepristone tablets and went home. The pills block the action of the hormone progesterooe, which is necessary to sustain a pregnancy.

The Next Step

On Wednesday, she returned to the clinic for the oext step of the abortion, taking another drug, misoprostol, that makes the uterus contract and expel the embryo. Then she waited for the abortion to begin, joining a handful of other women in the clinic, in a room equipped with cots and two bathrooms. At five weeks since her last menstrual period, Marcia's pregnancy was one of the earliest — a few of the women were 10 weeks pregnant. (The Population Council's studies included women who were up to 10 weeks pregnant, but the group has only applied to market it for women who were up to 7 weeks pregnant.)

"I definitely noticed a pattern," Marcia said. "The women who were later in pregnancy bad a much barder time. They had really bad cramping and a lot of bleeding. It was kind of alarming." She said they soaked through pad after pad as their uteruses emptied.

"Those of us who were early were sitting there saying, 'When is this going to happen?' 'Marcia said. She waited at the clinic for six or seven hours, she said. Nothing happened for the first three or four hours, then she bled a little. But she left the clinic not knowing whether she had had an abortion.

"A couple of days later, I was spotting a little and 1 passed something," she said, which she thought might be the remains. And then her pregnancy symptoms disappeared. She returned to the clinic and was proclaimed no longer pregnant.

Her experience was atypical. Dr. Irving M. Spitz of the Population Council said that 54 percent of women had their abortions within four hours after taking misoprostol. Only 8 percent had to wait more than 24 hours.

Dr. Beverly Winikoff of the Population Council said that women said they "like this method overwhelmingly," and that women praised the mifepristone abortions as being more "natural" and for giving them "control." But Marcia said she didn't feel that way. "With a surgical abortion, you have the advantage of knowing that when they turn the machine off you are not pregnant anymore," she said. But with mifepristone, she said, she had no idea when or even whether her abortion would be complete. Natural? "That is baffling to me," she said. "To me it seems incredibly unnatural."

New Contract For the Poor

Continued From Page 1

deeper purpose: putting an electioneering President firmly on the spot.

If he signs the measure as is, President Clinton will appear to have fulfilled his famous pledge about ending welfare. In truth, he will have abandoned the vision that animated the slogan. Having sought office with the aim of a redefined social contract — health care for every American — he will be seeking re-election with a bill that begrudges poor infants their Pampers.

If he vetoes the bill, Mr. Clinton can preserve his allegiance to his original purpose, which promised more for the poor while demanding more from them. But he can also expect a rainstorm of Republican ridicule, from here to Election Day. In sending back a welfare bill for the third time, he will insure a parade of 30-second relevision ads calling him a back-tracker and a flip-flopper, a pledge-breaking defender of the status quo.

Welfare slogans are often at odds with welfare substance, as Mr. Clinton himself well knows, being a master of both. He underscored the distinction last week, in giving earthy consideration to what the Seoate called welfare reform. "You can put wings on a pig, but you don't make it an eagle," he said.

No Promises Now

But what the President didn't say last week was equally important. He didn't say he would veto the bill.

"He keeps his promise and he abandons his principles — or he keeps his principles and abandoos his promise," said Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York, Mr. Clinton's most vocal Democratic critic.

"That's the dilemma he's in."

While the President is caricatured as a defender of the status quo, it's his activism that has landed him in this thicket.

"Eod welfare as we know it" — it was remarkably bold and utterly vague, this snippet of 1992 campaign rhetoric that now holds social policy hostage. Had a Republican first said it, he or she would have been diagnosed with a case of hard-heartedness. But Mr. Clinton, a child advocate and husband of a child advocate, brought the notion instant credibility.

And great misunderstanding. Many people heard only the first two words: end it. But Mr. Clinton was mindful of the as-we-know-it qualifier. He was talking about new training programs, expanded child care, universal health care and, if oeed be, last-resort government jobs for those who exhausted a two-year limit.

When he finally put his plan in writing, in June 1994, it would have "invested" an extra $10 billion over five years in the hopes of future payoffs. Now he faces a plan that heads $70 billion in the other direction. It cuts $60 billion from the anti-poverty budget and ends welfare by, well, ending welfare.

Under the Republican plan, families may receive no more than five years of benefits in a lifetime, and states can set much lower limits — as little as, say, 30 days.

The Republican bill offers more than earlier versions, but whom will it hurt?

According to estimates by LaDonna Pavetti of the Urban Institute, if the five-year limit were in effect today, about 2 million adults, with 4.5 million children, would be instantly shorn from the rolls. They are among the nation's least educated people, and are concentrated in the most blighted areas. In Detroit, 67 percent of the children receive welfare in the course of a year, in New York It's 39 percent. On what will they get by?

The Republicans haven't answered that question as much as they've turned it around: the middle class supports itself, so why can't the poor? With a handful of Democratic allies, they've put the status quo on trial. "We know the present system is a complete disaster." sald Representative Clay Shaw, a Florida Republican and an architect of the House bill.

and an architect of the House bill.

Senator Joseph Lieberman, a Connecticut Democrat, says the apocalypse is now. "Millions of children are in poverty, with their parents leading lives of desperation and hopelessness," he wrote last week, in urging the President to sign the bill.

Virtually no one defends the current system, whose ameliorative successes are invisible (money for shoes or a bowl of cereal) and whose major flaws are on full display. It is an affront to prized values — work, family, mitiative and independence. The public hates it for good reasons (its indulgence of the indolent) and for bad reasons (its disproportionate support of racial minorities, who stay on the rolls longer).

The Risk of Chaos

But to say the current system has failed is not to say it can't get worse. The few Democrats trying to salvage the safety net include the system's most acute detractors. Mr. Moynihan's fame originally derived from his warnings about illegitimacy. Edward I. Koch, former Mayor of New York, made a career of denouncing freeloaders. Now he asks, "Are we at the point in our history when we will permit children to starve?"

Of course not — the Republican bill would not do that. Indeed, it offers more than last year's version (more day care money, more medical care), which is partly what tempts the President to sign it.

The risk isn't starvation; it's just additional chaos, hurt and need. The Urban Institute estimates the bill will drive 2.6 million people below the poverty line — not to mention what it might do to those already there.

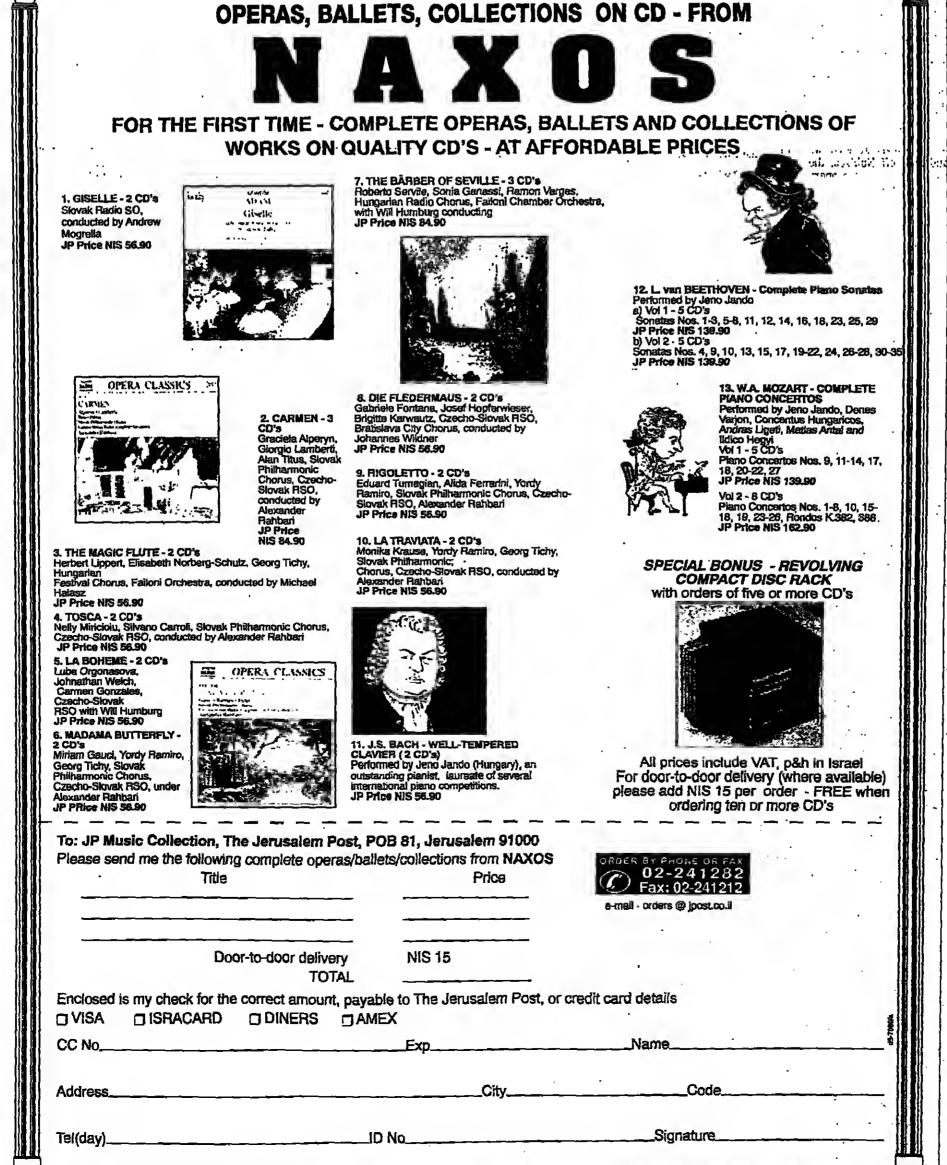

The nation's most successful job-placement program for welfare recipients, in Riverside, Calif., trimmed caseloads by about 10 percent; in removing anyone who has received benefits for more than five years, the Republicans assume that fully half of those on welfare can make it on their own. The Riverside program raised job earnings 26 percent — to an average of $286 a month.

No doubt the harsh reality of an empty stomach will cause some people to do better. Some may indeed get jobs and marry, as Mr. Shaw predicts. Others may turn to prostitution or the drug trade. Or cling to abusive boy-friends. Or have more abortions, Or abandon their children. Or camp out on the streets and beg.

No one knows because no such risks have ever been taken. But if misery were motive enough, presumably the poor would have reformed themselves by now.

How odd that such a bill may become the chief legislative legacy of the first children's advocacy President. In deciding whether to affix his signature, Mr. Clinton will have to choose between welfare reform as the knew it and welfare repeal as his opponents came to define it.

ECONOMY

 $\mathcal{P}_{\mathbf{v},\mathbf{v}}$

4.0

. . .

 $4\pi R_{\rm c}$

.

in their

• • •

. .

Chass

Keeping Cool in a Room Full of Smoke at RJR Nabisco

By BARNABY J. FEDER

CTURE this job listing: Wanted, chief executive for tobacco/food company with restive shareholders; duties include shedding highly regarded food operations, reviving tobacco products that have been declining for decades and competing at bome and overseas with larger, deeper-pocketed rivals; must have thick skin and get used to being called a "merchant of death."

Since leading such a company is not most top-flight managers' idea of fun, the board of RJR Nabisco Holdings had few obvious options when gruff Charles M. Harper told them he wanted to quit last December after 18 months on the job. They could have begun an arduous search for an impressive outsider, though experience suggested that any recruit might come with one eye on the exit. They could have promoted one of their two seasoned vice chairmen, but one of them, H. John Greeniaus, the chief executive of Nabisco Holdings, had scant interest in tobacco, and the other, James W. Johnston, had been shunted into restricted roles by Mr. Harper after failing to light up the struggling tobacco business.

The other choice - and one reached unanimously and quickly - was 5teven F. Goldstone, who had recently been named president after coming to the company as parttime general counsel less than a year earlier. Mr. Goldstone, 50, who is shorter than average but not as slight as he looked next to the 6-foot, 6-inch Mr. Harper, had rapidly become the chief executive's most trusted strategic adviser. He had also impressed the board with his ability to speak clearly about the most complicated issues and won the respect of other RJR executives who found him far more approachable than his

When the appointment of the little-known Mr. Goldstone was announced on Dec. 5, many on Wall Street regarded him as a possible short-timer in the executive parade that has marched through RJR's New York City headquarters since 1989 when RJR was taken private by Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Company in the largest leveraged buyout in history. Of his six predecessors, the longest reign had been the four-year stint of Louis V. Gerstner Jr., who cut out on the last year of his five-year contract in 1993 to take the more lucrative and influential job of turning around I.B.M.

These days, though, it looks as though Mr. Goldstone, a cigar smoker who gave up cigarettes at his doctor's insistence 17 years ago, has every intention of staying indefinitely - and he has the directors' strong backing to do so. He was elected chairman in May as Mr. Harper completed his transition to retirement.

Clearly, stability at the top would give the company a better shot at solving some problems that have festered in the tumultuous years since the buyout Like every tobacco company, RJR has had to battle growing public condemnation of its products and marketing practices, wave after wave of lawsuits and the threat of tougher Government regulation.

But it also has its own set of woes. Though it had revenue of $16 billion last year, it continues to lose ground at home to the Philip Morris Companies, a much larger rival, and is outguined in the race to expand globally by both Philip Morris and B.A.T. Industries of Britain. It is still struggling to stem a long decline of premium brands like Winston and Salem. Mr. Goldstone, like his counterparts in the 1980's, is chafing at the low value Wall Street places oo RJR stock. "What the market wants out of this company is a sense it is in control of its fate,"

Mr. Goldstone said The closer Mr. Goldstone comes to satisfying the market, of course; the more assured will be his place in the anti-smoking lobby'a pantheon of arch-villains. At the same time, though, Mr. Goldstone, a corpo-rate lawyer who had oever run a company, would win not just acclaim on Wall Street but the chance to cash in on a rich, incentive-laden contract, including a bonus of 200,000 shares if RJR's stock, which closed at $30.25 on Friday, reaches $43.75 in the next three years.

Mr. Goldstone sympathizes with Wall Street's skeptical attitude, which he sees as a predictable response to RJR's rocky history since 1988. It was in October of that year that F. Ross Johnson, then chairman and chief executive, ignored the advice of Mr. Goldstone, his outside lawyer, and announced a bid by an investment group that he led to take RJR private.

The ensuing buyout battle, which Mr. Johnson and his team, including the apprehensive Mr. Goldstone, lost to Kohlberg Kravis, raised RJR's stock price beyond Mr. Johnson's wildest dreams. But it also cost him and many of his senior lieutenants their jobs. And it saddled RJR with $25 billion of new debt, much of it junk bonds with interest rates that climbed as high as

As RJR's oew owners, Kohlberg Kravis recruited high-profile executives to clean up the financial mess. First came Mr. Gerstner from American Express, who impressed subordinates with his attention to detail but who also made it clear from the start that he saw the company as a stepping stone to other jobs, several company insiders say.

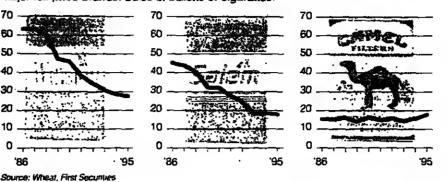

After a brief interlude when two executives from the Gerstner team.acted as cochairmen, Kohlberg Kravis lured Mr. Harper, who was then 66, from Conagra Inc. to finish the financial restructuring. Mr. Harper, who had given up smoking after a heart attack, was renowned for building Conagra from a small Nebraska food company into a multinational giant. He closed his tenure with the introduction of the spectacularly successful Healthy Choice food products.

His primary missions at RJR were to pare debt and split off Nabisco, the food But the spinoff plan bogged down in a blizzard of anti-tobacco lawsuits after the initial public offering in January 1995 of 19.5 percent of Nabisco's stock. Frustrated, Mr. Harper announced plans in December to return to his home in Omaha to be with his ailing wife, and he persuaded the board to turn over the reins at RJR to Mr. Goldstone. It was not a hard sell. Mr. Harper, who goes by the mickname "Mike" but has been RJR Nabisco is struggling to halt the decline in domestic sales of two of its three major full-price brands. Sales in billions of cigarattes.

'Yes. Mike.'

called Big Foot behind his back, was known for intimidating subordinates. "Conflict is extraordinarily desirable in coming to good decisions," an unapologetic Mr. Harper said

Maybe so, but in this case, it wasn't enough to produce the sort of results that would have made him a hero to the RJR board. The company's share price inched up 8 percent on his watch, to $30.25 from $28.125, while shares of RJR's archrival, Philip Morris, soared nearly 80 percent in the same period.

To be sure, Mr. Harper could assert that forces beyood his control were at work, including Kohlberg Kravis's sale of its 40 percent stake in the company. Earnings also suffered from a ferocious price war initiated by Philip Morris in 1993 in response to Mr. Gerstner's earlier bid to grab market share with bargain cigarette brands.

Still, Mr. Harper delivered no pleasant surprises to offset such setbacks, and Mr. Goldstone, who had joined RJR in February 1995, quickly established himself as a potential leader.

His rapid advance from part-time to fulltime work, and in October, his promotioo to president, were welcomed by many senior RJR managers, who were only too happy to drop by his office and let him serve as mediator with Mr. Harper.

Mr. Goldstone's most obvious assets the legal skills and financial experience accumulated during his years as a lawyer specializing in corporate mergers and acquisitions - became steadily more valuable as lawsuits piled up, along with demands from dissatisfied shareholders led by Bennett S. LeBow and Carl C. Icahn, to hasten son to lead the battle against LeBow," said Lawrence R. Ricciardi, the former RJR general counsel and president, who eventually followed Mr. Gerstner to I.B.M. Perhaps his most deft feat was winning the trust of so many senior RJR executives while working so closely with the increasingly unpopular Mr. Harper. "His fingerprints are on all my key decisions," Mr. Harper said. "He participated in the imporThe New York Tunes tant people changes, and not just by saying,

Mr. Goldstone has been involved in RJR affairs much longer than most outsiders realize.

The son of a manager at a nightgown factory, he grew up in the Westchester County suburbs of New York City and went straight to work as a Wall Street lawyer after graduating from New York University Law School. He represented RJR when it acquired Del Monte in 1979 and Nabisco wheo it merged with Standard Brands in 1980, four years before the food company was acquired by RJR. He caught the attention of RJR's general counsel, Mr. Ricciardi, during a 1994 review of tobacco litigation and became Mr. Ricciardi's first choice as successor when he departed.

Before moving from his law firm to RJR, Mr. Goldstone said, he gave considerable thought to the anti-tobacco sentiment in the United 5tates.

"If I believed a lot of the stuff I've read I'd be troubled," he said, "But I'm comfortable that it's a legitimate pleasure for adults with known risks." He noted that he takes flying lessons, exposing himself to a danger that his friends describe as lunatic. "Not to sound too red-white-and-blue about it, but taking risks is what this country is about," he added.

Asked about the recent comment of Bob Dole, the likely Republican Presidential nominee, that tobacco isn't necessarily addictive to all smokers, he said: "Millions of adults enjoy the products and also millions bave choseo to stop smoking without the aid of treatment ceoters, clinics or drugs. I don't think there's a lot more to add on the

Mr. Goldstone's more immediate concern is not smokers' perception of bealth risks, but investors' qualms about the risk of buying RJR stock. To court disgruntled shareholders, he pushed through a dividend increase and a $100 million share-repurchasing program this spring.

The measures were modest compared with what investors have come to expect annually from Philip Morris, but RJR hopes that by moving in the same direction for the, first time since 1988, it can show Wall 5treet that it no longer should be trading at such a large discount to its rival.

Mr. Goldstone also argues that the company is in a better competitive position overseas — an explosive growth market than most American investors realize. While smoking in the United States has declined 20 percent in the last two decadas, exports of American cigarettes have more than tripled. And the big producers, includiog RJR, have invested billions of dollars to acquire production capacity in newly open markets in Asia and Eastern Europe. In the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe alone, where tobacco was formerly controlled by state-run monopolies, smokers light up 700

American companies' share of world cigarette production is just 13 percent, but consumer surveys show smokers' preferences in many countries shifting toward 'American blend" products like Philip Morris's Marlboro and RJR's Camel and Win-

billion cigarettes annually, compared with 500 billion in the United States.

"There's a 10-year window to grab enough market share that you are too big for even Philip Morris to crush when the dust settles," said Jason Wright, a company spokesman. Mr. Goldstone predicts that the company's $3.2 billion international operations will grow at least 10 percent this year, and by steadily increasing percentages for many years after.

A reminder of how hard it could be to meet such goals cropped up in RJR's second-quarter earnings, reported on Tuesday. International sales were flat because of economic disruptions in Russia. Over all, the company had operating profits slightly above Wall Street forecasts, although there was a net loss of $27 million after absorbing a $246 million charge for restructuring at Nabisco.

For now, RJR is focusing most of its international effort on building its leading brands in big markets where the company already has a significant presence, like its heavily advertised program for Camel Lights in France. One of its toughest tasks will be reversing the decline in its share of cigarette sales in the Uoited States, now down to about 25 percent. The erosion has come despite the strong performance of its discount Doral brand and the stunning turnaround of Camel, after decades of weakening sales, into one of the fastest-growing

One of RJR's newest marketing ploys has been the creation of the Moonlight family of brands, specialty cigarettes like Metro at City Lights that are sold in nightclubs, discos and other urban gathering spots. They are aimed at smokers looking for novelty, juch as microbreweries have been a hit among beer drinkers seeking more variety.

The company also maintains hopes for Eclipse, the nearly smokeless cigarette that it is now test-marketing. So far, it is performing better than Premler, the company's previous stab at creating a market for products that primarily heat tobacco rather than burn it. If either the Moonlight line or Eclipse gains even 1 percent of the $45 billion market, it would be the industry's most successful product introduction since the 1970's.

At the same time, the company continues to experiment with adjustments in the taste, packaging and image of its mature brands. The newest Winstoo slogan, "No bull," for example, is an allusion to the absence of additives, like moisturizers and flavors, in the tobacco of Winstons being test-marketed in Florida.

We are trying to put innovative ideas behind a portfolio of products," Mr. Goldstone said. "Salespeople get charged up if they get a sense they are working for a company that isn't brain-dead."

Most tobacco analysts say the industry ia undervalued and a few argue that RJR ia actually a better bet than Philip Morris at current levels. 5till, Wall Street remains skeptical: in recent months, Philip Morris has traded roughly 12 times its projected cash earnings, whila RJR has been at 8 times. If the gap closed to the single point that prevailed in 1988 before RJR became so beholden to its bondholders and to Kohlberg Kravis, RJR's share price would soar by about 40 percent, to around $42.

"Most companies trading at eight times cash earnings are in miserable shape," Mr. Goldstone said. "We're not. We've just got to demonstrate we're through punishing shareholders." Even a lawyer would have a hard time arguing.

4.80%

5.07% Up 3 basis pts.

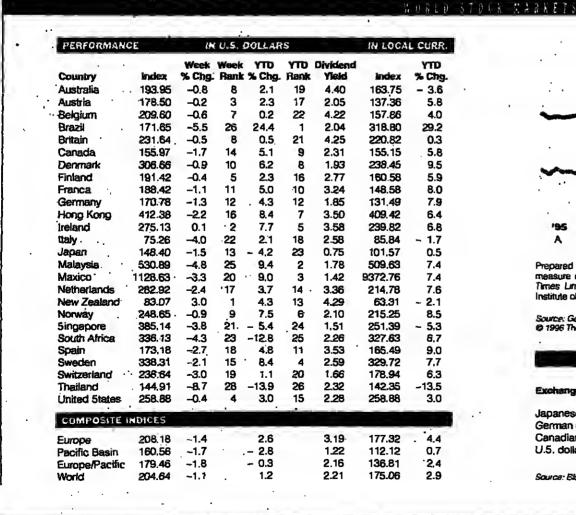

2.32%

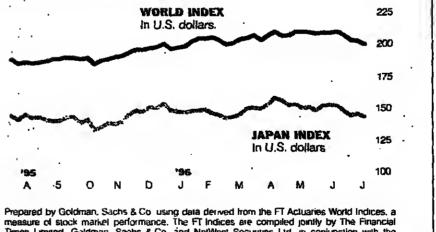

+100

-100

Up 1 b.p.

Up 2 basis pts.

Times Limited, Goldman, Sachs & Co. and NatWest Securities Ltd. in conjunction with the Institute of Actuaries and the Faculty of Actuaries.

Source: Goldman, Sachs & Co. Exchange rates as of Friday's London close © 1996 The Financial Times Ltd., Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Standard & Poor's.

G U R	RENCIES
Exchange rates	Friday	Last Friday	Week % Chg.	Year Ago
Japanese yen to the U.5. dollar	108.37	107.95	+0.38	88.15
German marks to the U.5 dollar	1.4822	1.4865	-0.28	1.3815
Canadian dollars to the U.5. dollar	1.3745	1.3691	-0.39	1.3671
U.5. dollars to the British pound	1.5545	1.5455	+0.58	1.6004

Source: Bloomberg Financial Markets, exchange rates as of Friday's New York close.

EPS AND DOWNS

Tuly 22 26. Small Stocks Continue to Slide as the Rond Market Waits to Hear From the Fed

Sources: Bank Rate Monitor; Bloomberg Financial Markets: The Bond Buyer; Datastream; Goldmen, Sachs; IBC's Money Fund Report, Memil Lynch, Standard & Poor's; Ryan Labs

PRICES DOMESTIC EQUITIES		DOMESTIC BONDS		AROUND THE WORLD		BONDS		OTHER INVESTMENTS
Broad market S.&P. 500 index	Down 0.44% 635.90	Treasuries Ryan Labs. Total Return	Down 0.24% 185.69	European stocks F.TActuaries Europe	Down 1.44% 206.18	Long bonds 30-year Traasurias	7.01% Up 3 basis pts.	Money market funds Taxable average	U
Blue chips Dow 30 industrials	Up 0.85% 5,473.06	Municipals Bond Buyer index	Up 0.05% 114,38	Asian stocks F.TActuaries Pacilic Basi	Down 1.73% in 160.56	Notes 2-year Traasuries	6.27% Up 7 basis pts	Bank C.D.'s 1-year small savers	U
Small capitalization Russell 2000 index	Down 2.17% 314.57	Corporates Marrill Lynch Master inda	Down 0.16% × 801.50	Gold New York cash price Foreign indexes are given in dollar ten	Up 0.10% $385.70	Bond Buyer Index 100 base points = 1 percentage	5.99% Down 1 basia pt.	: Stocks : S.&P. 500 dividend yie	.ld
90-DAY RELATIVE TREM) (1.15%) 24.15%		+15%		+15%	90-DAY RELATIVE TRE Change in basis points.	31D +100	Change in basis points.
برينيس	0		. و حدث		-0.
			- AB				-100

They'll Never Know

So Senator Joseph I. Lieberman and

73 other senators of both parties think the latest welfare reform bill is better for people on welfare (Op-Ed, July 25).

Has any one of them ever tried to feed

a family of five on food stamps; tried to find work in a ghetto where few jobs exist; tried to raise children to be good citizens in communities where a knife wound is easier to come by than a textbook: tried to get by for a month on $352.10? "Welfare as we know it": luckily for them, they never

SUSAN WOLLMAN

New York, July 25, 1996

JOSEPH KELLARO

Oceanside, L.I., July 24, 1996

The New York Times

Founded in 1851

ADOLPH'S OK'HS. Publisher 1896-1935 AHTHUB HAYS SULZBERGER. Publisher 1935-1961 ORVIL E. ORYFOOS. Publisher 1961-1963 ARTHUR OCHS SULZBERGER, Publisher 1963-1992 ARTHUR OCHS SULZBERGER JR. Publisher

JOSEPH LELIVELD. Executive Editor GENE ROBERTS. Managing Editor Assistant Managing Editors

SOMA GOLDEN BEHR DAVID R JONES GERALD M BOYD CAPOLYN LEE WARREN HOGE JACK ROSENTHAL ALLAN M. STEGAL

HOWELL RAINES. Editorial Page Editor PRILIP M BOFFEY. Deputy Editorial Page Editor

RUSSELL T LEWIS. President and General Managar JOHN M. O'BRIEN, Executive V.P., Deputy Gen. Mgr. WILLIAM L. POLLAK, Executive V.P., Circulate PENELOPE MUSE ABERNATHY, Senior U.P. Planning and Human Resources RICHARD H. GILMAN, Senior V.P. Operations JANET L. ROBINSON. Senior V.P. Advertising RAYMOND E DOUGLAS. V.P. Systems and Technology DONNAC MIELE. VP. Human Resources CHARLES E SHELTON. ER, Distribution DAVID A. THURM. V.P., Production

A Storm Surge of Terror

Olympic officials and the Atlanta host committee made the correct decision in going ahead with the Games yesterday. The fact that they announced the decision promptly does not indicate they made it casually. They consulted with the White House and Federal law enforcement officials before dawn. As a result, most Americans awakened to receive simultaneously the news of the attack at Centennial Olympic Park and the announcement that the events scheduled for yesterday would continue.

Terrorists vary in their political goals. But their psychological game is almost always the same. They want to put the public and their leaders into a panic that weakens their will, their judgment and their faith in their political structures - what President Clinton called "the spirit of our own democracy." Prudence and persistence are the qualities that can and were brought to bear against the initial surge of dismay that everyone feels when killers convert the most dreadful fantasies into reality. "We must be firm in this," Mr. Clinton said yesterday as he applauded the response of local officials and promised an intense Federal investigative response. "We cannot be intimidated by acts of

Sadly, the tactic of intimidation and even the structure of the bomb had a sharp historical edge for Atlanta. The city and the region suffered through a rash of such bombings over three decades ago. The bomb - a shrapnel device stuffed with nails and other sharp objects - was of a type used in the South in the 60's. That history is recalled here not to prejudge the origin of this attack, but to make the point that these evil acts come in waves. After being buffeted with assassinations, bombings and hijackings, the United States enjoyed a decrease in such acts during the early 90's. The Olympics had been blessedly free of violence since the horrendous assault oo Israeli athletes at Munich in 1972. Now, alas, we seem to be back in a storm surge of violence. The hopes for a prolooged cessation in Ireland and the Middle East have dimmed. Murderous terrorism has in recent years touched Manhattan, Oklahoma City, American troops abroad and, if the worst suspicions prove true, the Long Island crasb site.

After Mr. Mandela

Few leaders in recent history have forged a

This grim list argues for a smart and firm response from the American Government, especially given our role as the bellwether state when it comes to a coordinated international offensive against terrorists of all stripes. Mr. Clinton got off to a good beginning with his resolute comments and quick tactical response to the Atlanta bombing. Now he needs to keep the pressure on the Justice Department and other law enforcement, intelligence and military units involved in fighting terrorism. That means a continuing focus on the immediate problems, as well as a searching review of the Government's spending and strategy during what could be a protracted spasm of terrorist attacks.

In the next few days, there will be plenty of wbat-ifs about Atlanta. Under concentrated Presidential leadership, Washington needs to be asking what next, and to be devising strategies for breaking the momentum of the terrorists before they erode our capacity to choose prudence over panic.

The Government's first budget shifted only 3 percent of spending toward the poor. The Government promised a million houses in five years. It has built only 12,000. Poor people trust Mr. Mandela, and popular sainthood as durable as Nelson Mandela's. The veneration the South African President received on his trip to Britain and France early this month inspired one cartoonist to portray him walking across the English Channel. More important, two years after his election, Mr. Mandela retains the trust and support of his people. South Africa's transition has been astonishingly smooth, largely due to Mr. Mandela's commitment to democracy and reconciliation.

But his term expires in 1999, and the 78-year-old Mr. Mandela might step down sooner. His successor, undoubtedly, will be a mere mortal. What will happen then? The answer is probably nothing. South Africans are a lot calmer about the question than foreigners, who tend to believe that the success of the transition rises and falls with Mr. Mandela. In fact, the African National Congress's depth is impressive. The Cabinet and provincial governments boast many capable leaders.

Mr. Mandela has said he would like to be succeeded by Deputy President Thabo Mbeki, who is running much of the Government day-to-day and met last Thursday with President Clinton. There are credible challengers for the A.N.C.'s nomination, but it is now Mr. Mbeki's to lose. Given the A.N.C.'s tremendous popularity, so is the presidency.

The uncharismatic Mr. Mbeki is a choice designed to soothe whites and foreign governments and investors. He was influential in persuading Mr. Mandela to adopt a conservative economic plan that ties the country's economic future to outside investment. Ironically, the main threat to South African stability after Mr. Mandela leaves may arise from this decision, which emphasizes the investment climate over the needs of poor blacks.

have been willing to wait. But it is an open question whether they will extend that trust to Mr. Mbeki; who has no grass-roots base and is seen as aloof.

Further, Mr. Mbekl has made unsavory alliances to preserve his power. He outmuscled the respected Cyril Ramaphosa to become Mr. Mandela's heir, and to do it forged an alliance with Winnie Mandela, the A.N.C.'s most dangerous demagogue. He bas been blamed for the Government's failure to lobby Nigeria publicly before the hanging of Ken Saro-Wiwa and eight other opposition figures last November. He is obsessed with press criticism. But this is epidemic among politicians, and he is careful to note that the Constitution guarantees freedom of

Mr. Mbeki's basic commitment to democracy is not in doubt, and bis missteps have been no worse than President Mandela's, which do not get much attention abroad. The Government's worst misstep - still reversible - is a clause in the new Constitution allowing Parliament to alter the Bill of Rights with a two-thirds majority vote. The Constitutional Court is reviewing this clause, and will probably ask Parliament to rewrite it. The most important reason for optimism about post-Mandela South Africa, however, has nothing to do with Mr. Mbeki. It is that Mr. Mandela is preventing the emergence of a cult of personality. His Government is creating real democratic institutions, respecting the independence of the Central Bank, the judiciary and the press. He is laying a solid foundation for a lasting democracy, one that does not depend on who comes oext.

Editorial Notebook

Signs of Bad Times

For urban sociologists, Grand Central Terminal nowadays offers an arresting rush-hour spectacle. Commuters sprinting by ticket windows glance reflexively upward at a vast emply space that until recently was occupied by a not have been clearer: "I'm giving top priority to better big board that posted arrivals, departures, track numbers and destinations, all in legible white letters on rotating black shutters. The station is being renovated and the board has gone. Arrivals and departures are now listed on tiny television-like screens in obscure corners of the vast station. Station authorities promise that larger electronic signs will be installed in a few years to compensate for loss of the big board. I confess to admiring the station's restoration, But I also hope that the people in charge take the problem of signage seriously. Over the years, New York has been almost aggressively indifferent to travelers who need plain, easily visible directions on how to reach their destination. A decade, ago, for example, the Port Authority and the Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Commission promised to improve the signs to and from Kennedy and La Guardia Airports and the various tunnels and bridges to New Jersey. Yet according to American Automobile Association engineers, airport signage is still erratic and furtive. At crucial turns in heavy traffic, motorists look in vain for trailblazers, the little medallions bearing symbols of airports, bridges and tunnels.

The literate and less literate are equally baffled by New York signage. A former Yale President, Benno Schmidt, confessed in a Times Op-Ed article in 1985 that, even though he was a New Yorker, "Every time I go up the Harlem River Drive in search of the Henry Hudson Parkway, my pulse quickens with fear that I will wind up on the George Washington Bridge. Parkways north of the city remain a maze. Long !sland is inscrutable. "

This is an old complaint, shared by tourists and

A Landmark Vanishes to hear it echoed by no less than the city's new Transportation In Grand Central Commissioner. Christopher Lynn. On the telephone, be could residents alike. So I was pleased and simpler signs." He has his work cut out for him. Nothing is more basic than street signs, but even the busiest intersections In midtown Manhattan are often missing signs on the corners. I have heard craning bus passengers shout, "Can somebody say where we are?" and hope for an answer. Moreover, with impressive ingenuity, street signs are often located out of range of street lamps, so they can barely be read after dusk. In subways, the maze of letters and numbers is so confusing that even native New Yorkers frequently give inaccurate directions to baffled strangers. After using the subways and buses in Paris, London and Berlin, have concluded that mass transit in New York is as difficult to fathorn as the maze of colored lines on the maps in every subway car. Above ground - whimsically, and for no apparent reasons - motorists will find signs reading "To Javits Center" (which is way over on the West Side) on random corners on the Upper East

A curious aspect of this urban blight is that it could be ameliorated at modest cost to City Hall. Wistfully, hopefully, fatalistically, this New Yorker suggests the following to Commissioner Lynn and other reformers: 1. Embedding street numbers and names on corner buildings, costs to be shared with owners; 2. Generously scattering signs showing directions to Lincoln and Javius Centers, to major museums, and to East and West Side drives;

3. Offering prizes to designers for a more coherent subway map: 4. Restoring the big departure board at Grand KARL E. MEYER

Our Welfare System Is Hardly a Total Failure and let them voluntarily give to whomever and whatever they

To the Editor:

A July 24 front-page article quotes Senator Pete V. Domenici as saying that welfare is "a system that has failed in every aspect." The system has produced some behaviors by welfare recipients that we as a society may find objectionable. But it does not follow that the system bas failed in every aspect.

In terms of its original goal - to provide relief to children - It has succeeded. It has belped raise many poor people above the poverty threshold. That we have come to define welfare in terms of the ability to get off the rolls and into a job ultimately says more about the reasonableness of our expectations than about the success or failure of the sys-OREN M. LEVIN-WALDMAN

July 24, 1996 The writer is a resident scholar at the Jemme Levy Economics Institute at Bard College

Defending the concept of anonymity and the journalist Joe Klein's adherence to the convention in the writing of his novel, "Primary Colors,"

Joyce Carol Oates (Op-Ed, July 22)

suggests that Blaise Pascal, the 17th-century mathematician and philosopber, invented the definition of God as

"a circle whose ceoter is everywhere

But the very same phrase occurs on a 16th-century astrolabe in Milan.

a device used by astronomers and astrologers. The instrument depicts

Hermes Trismegistus, the "thrice great" Hermes, or Thoth, as he was Whether he was the author or the object of the definition is unlikely to be established, given that his very existence cannot be ascertained. Nor did the astrolabe's maker sign the device; both the saying and the per-soo who engraved it are anonymous.

medieval works. Historians of art and literature play a great game of assigning oames to the oameless or else devise desperate pseudonyms

for them. Yet whether or not names

So it is with many ancient and most and circumference nowhere."

called in ancient Egypt.

To the Editor:

Annandale-on-Hudson, N.Y.

The System Coerces To the Editor:

People like Bob Herbert (column, July 22) either evade or are unable to understand that the morality that welfare statism rests on - sacrificing the producers to the less- or unproductive - is evil. When the government's monopoly on force is used to rob an individual of his earnings, which he has an inalienable right to keep, it is nothing less than vicious. "Those who talk about welfare as essential to a 'compassionate society' are not making sense," writes Jared Taylor in "Paved With Good Intentions." "A nation that forces itspeople to give to the poor has written off compassion and has turned to coercion.

People in need are not the responsibility of society at large.

The only moral recourse is to leave people free of statist coercion

Democratic Imperative

value.

To the Editor:

To the Editor: As.a New York State Assemblyman, I urge President Clinton not to sign the welfare reform bill. To me and 24 of my Democratic legislative colleagues who also signed this letter, no conceivable amendments would make the bill acceptable to us or, we would hope, to the President. The House and Senate versions of the bill attack principles the Democratic Party bas held and struggled for for decades: that the Government bas an obligation to care for the needy; that children in dire circumstances are a national responsibility: that if provided with an opportunity to work, people will work; that immigrants are welcome to our shores.

A President seeking the endorsement of the party once again, and seeking the active support of its rank and file, should not sign a bill so inimical to the beliefs of so many Democrats. With the President speaking out for a truly Democratic agenda, the ugly noise over the Republican welfare bill will fade into the oether reaches of opportunistic politics, whence It came. And we Democrats can regroup and focus on re-electing our EDWARD C. SULLIVAN President. New York, July 25, 1996

Women Base Their Votes

On More Than Abortion

Judging from "The G.O.P.'s Problem With Women' (Week in Review,

July 21) and "Some Moderate Wom-

(news article, same day), both parties' candidates still believe in the gender gap myth rather than grasping the truth that would keep them from sinking on "women's · American women are not of one

The news media have it that the abortion issue is driving women away from the Republican Party.

.But in a telephone poll we commissloned in February of American women on the issues, only I percent of the 1,000 women surveyed said that abortion is the most serious issue facing the nation.

mind and do not base their vote on en Are Taking a New Look at Dole'

To the Editor:

Colombia Cases Cast No Cloud on President

to believe.

In the Beginning There Was Anonymity

To the Editor:

Cootrary to your July 24 news article "Two Coovictions in Colombia Cast New Cloud on President," the sentences that were imposed on two of my former political associates by independent judges clarify this singtloo in a positive manner.

Io fact, the investigation by the House of Representatives coocluded that I did not participate in any acts curred during th presidential campaign relating to a solicitation of money from people with ties to drug trafficking.

My defense attorney demonstrated that if such acts did occur, the purpose of those involved was not to finance the presidential campaign but rather to take advantage of their position for their own personal gain.

In accordance with Colombian law, people convicted of illegal enrichment are subject to prison terms of 5 to 10 years and a fine equal to the increase in personal wealth derived from the illicitly obtained money.

Re "Burmese Win Observer Status in Southeast Asia Group" (news article, July 22): It is no surprise that regimes like Indonesia and Singapore support this military dictatorship. Yet even though members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations have said they are not interested in the restoration of democracy in Myanmar, formerly Burma, Western governments still argue that their policy

If Myanmar is the test of the West's commitment to supporting must be coordinated with Asean's.

That the sentence imposed on Santiago Medina included a fine of more than $3.3 million and the sentence Imposed on former Senator Maria Izquierdo included a fine of $50,000 demonstrates that the money of the drug chiefs entered their coffers, not the presidential campaign. If they had acted solely as intermediaries of the campaign, they would not bave been personally enriched.

are attached shouldn't affect how we react to their achievements. In prg-ing that we respond to tha creation

rather than to its creator's name,

Ms. Oates appeals to an honorable tradition much older than she seems

University Park, Pa., July 24, 1996

The writer is a professor of art history at Pennsylvania State University.

ANTHONY CUTLER

I agree with you that it is not logical that a person directly tied to drug trafficking, Jorge Luis Ochoa, the No. 2 man in the Medellin cartel. should be sentenced to only five years in prison. That is why I have proposed to the Colombian congress a reform of the laws enacted during the last government. My proposal substantially increases the penalties for narcotics trafficking. money laundering and illicit enrich-ERNESTO SAMPER PIZANO,

 President Bogotá, Colombia, July 24, 1996

post-cold war democratic movements, our governments are failing

so far. Companies like Pepsico, whose Burmese partner recently led an anti-democracy rally, should leave now rather than wait until

United States officials realize the obvious. Myanmar's elected representatives had sound reasons for calling.

for sanctions against their own coun-

The writer is coordinator of the Bur-

REID COOPER

Ottawa, July 24, 1996

ft is a concern - 55 percent said they thought that abortion should be banned or restricted to cases of rape, incest or danger to the mother's life - but is not the driving force behind their vote. Issues like crime and a decline in moral values ranked much higher.

On welfare reform, 7 out of 10 women favor conservative solutions. And when asked if they would prefer to stay at home to be full-time mothers, 8 of 10 said yes.

A majority was also in favor of tax credits so they would be able to stay at home. Women are concerned about their children. They want to be able to choose quality education and to have authority over wbat their children are being taught in school.

ma-Tibet Group, Ontario Public In-terest Research Group. Women want to know where the candidates stand on these issues and which candidate they can believe. The answers will determine how women vote in the 1996 Presidential election. The news media and political leaders ought to pay attention to women's positions instead of to a

CARMEN PATE Vice President of Communications Concerned Women for America Washington, July 25, 1996

Kathy, Mary, Marvin To the Editor:.

It is obvious that Kathy Duggan ("I Earned This Divorce," Op-Ed, July 25) has no real problems to spend time on Solutions abound for her perceived predicament. Call the former partner "my ex" or "Mary (no venomous adjective attached)." Go to court for a decree dissolving the partnership - it is called a Marvin case in-California.

. The real problem is that there is no money or property to fight over, the downside of a short marriage to a nonrich person. Better luck next time Incidentally, you do not have to go to court to get that divorcin' feeling. Give a lot of money to someone you. despise (the lawyer surrogate) and then roll on cut glass (the court surrogate). RICHARD J. STALL JR.

Los Angeles, July 25, 1996 The writer is a lawyer.

School Prayer Proponents Reject U.S. History

On Burma, the West Fails Test of Democracy

To the Editor:

To the Editor:

"School Prayer Politics" (editorial. July 24) is right in observing that the constitutional amendment proposed by Dick Armey, the House majority leader, "is not merely unnecessary, it is dangerous."

One cannot overestimate the bitterness of the conflicts engendered if a school prayer amendment were to be debated in each of the 50 states or if the introduction of religious practices were to be debated in the thousands of school districts around the country. Such conflicts are inherently irreconcilable.

It is a mistake to suggest that proponents of the Armey amendment are 'trifling" with the Constitution. They are not conservatives: they do not seek to conserve the American past but to abrogate it. They are trying to convince us that the separation of church and state is a recent and perverse invention of the Supreme Court.

The Times welcomes letters from readers. Letters must include the writer's name, address and telephone number. Those selected may be shortened for space reasons. Fax letters to (212) 556-3622 or send by electronic mail to letters@nytimes.com, or by regular mail to Letters to the Editor, The New York Times, 229 West 43d Street, New York, N.Y. 16036-3959.

But they have forgotten that in 1796 the Senate ratified a treaty declaring that "the Government of the United States of America is not in any sense founded on the Christian religion." Religious values have contributed to the moral life of this country. Those who advocate a constitutional amendment gutting the establishment clause threaten America's moral character. ROBERT S. RIFKIND President

American Jewish Committee New York, July 24, 1996

229 West 43d St., N.Y. 10036-3959 ARTHUR OCHS SULZBERGER, Chairman Chief Executive Officer LANCE R. PRIMIS, President Chief Operating Officer

DAVID L. GORRAM, Senior Vice President Deputy Chief Operating Officer DIAME CHAKER Senior Vice President Chief Financial Officer KATHARINE P DARROW, Senior Vice Presiden LEONARD & FORMAN, Senior Vice President LAURA J. CORWIN, Secretary EICHARD G THOMAS, Trensurer

Foreign Affairs THOMAS L. FRIEDMAN

Antiportal systems

BARM BON

I Failure

Who

WASHINGTON What is so frightening about the explosion of T.W.A. Flight 800, the U.S. barracks in Saudi Arabia and now the bomb at the Atlanta Olympics is that we seem to be dealing with a new kind of terrorist: "Anonymous" - the real Anonymous, the one who matters, the person who with a small pipe bomb or a single shoulder-held rocket can disturb the sleep of an entire globe, can jangle the nerves of governments high and mighty and yet prefers to savor it all alone — anonymously.

And what is doubly frightening is the thought of Anonymous operating in the information age. All he needs is a bomb in the right place - and the Internet, 500 cable channels, MSNBC, CNN and Sky Television will do the rest, carrying his deed m every corner of the globe in real time. And so from the remotest village in the Australian outback to the capitals of the world, everyone will know of Anonymous's work, everyone will be part of the reaction. The irony that we all know, and can all be unnerved by, an unknown terrorist is what really characterizes this new age. Never have more people been more fully informed, and more deeply rattled, by someone they cannot identify and for causes they don't know. When the crudest form of technology, a pipe bomb, can team up with the highest forms of technology, the information superbighway, and when the unknown can team up with the all-knowing, you have a very disturbing combination.

"Neg-

11 11 5

I did not read about the Atlanta bomb in my newspaper; or hear about it from television or radio. I got up Saturday morning, flipped on my computer and was about to read the Middle East news on the Internet when I came across the news from Atlanta on America Online.

"When World War I broke out, people spoke about 'The shot that was heard around the world.' That was a metaphor for the political significance of the assassination of the Archduke in Şarajevo, which started the war." said Stephen Cohen, a leading expert on conflict resolution. "But it was only a metaphor. Because that shot wasn't actually heard around the the most treasured square of more world. Now the shots are literally or less natural landscape on the conheard around the world, even if they timent resisted by several million have no political meaning. Now the tourists every summer. sheer noise of violence is louder than any political message it might bear. The only message is fear."

Indeed, one of the ironies of this new age of terrorism is that even the terrorists are being drowned out by the noise they make. Why do they prefer to be anonymous? Because police technology is now so good, some terrorists prefer to do their deeds, enjoy the results and avoid responsibility or apprehension. But their desire to escape anonymously reduces their terrorism to little more than a cruel noise, which overwhelms any political motive they might have. It doesn't lead us to thinking about any problem, except terrorism. The Unabomber was anonymous until he could no longer stand that his purpose was hidden by the deafening noise of his bombs. So he published the manifesto that ultimately led police to his door.

When terrorism dare not speak its name.

And that's why even speculating about the meaning behind any of these acts of violence becomes very difficult - especially when the U.S. is involved. When you have terrorism in Belfast or Israel, everyone knows the motive. But when terrorism involves the U.S., motive becomes so much more difficult to sort out, because the U.S. is now such a global power that reaches into so many lives in so many corners of the world that the motive could be anything. Someone could be mad at McDonald's or Coca-Cola. Someone could be mad at how U.S. TV covered his country in the Olympics. Someone could be mad at Atlanta's Mayor. Someone could just be mad.

But sooner or later — maybe very soon — investigators will no doubt identify Anonymous in Atlanta and Long Island. Normally that would make us feel a bit more secure. If we can give a face and logic to an act, somehow it will make sense and thereby relieve anxiety. But the anxiety and loss of freedom triggered by these acts, even when the perpetrators are identified, will remain after their apprehension. Because that anxiety isn't just linked to the solving of a particular crime or political problem, but to our increased vulnerability generally. An anonymous terrorist with the right bomb in the right place can lower the quality of life for an entire globe. To be a world-class Olympic athlete. you need to train for years to prepare your mind and body for the ultimate compension. To be a world-class, world-shaking terrorist now, you need only a pipe bout, a bag and the World Wide Web. No name required.

the south edge of this little town, just across from the Yankee Jim Trading Post and the Bear Country -Restaurant, stands a massive stone arch marking the north entrance of Yellowstone National Park. The cement plaque reads, "Created by Act of Congress March 1, 1872," testimony to the fact that here beyond lies a piece of demarcated terrain, 22 million acres of woodland and meadows and geyser basins, holding special status: the world's first national park. Almost 125 years later, it's still Loiter beside that arch on a hot midsummer morning, and you can see them arriving - groups in tour buses, couples in Japanese sedans, families in station wagons with aluminum lawn chairs lashed to the roofs. They're all drawn here by the conviction that Yellowstone is somehow extraordinary, its attractions distinct from what can be seen in eastern Wyoming or along the interstate that leads to Salt Lake City. Still, not many of those visitors recognize, as they pass through the Gardiner gateway, that they're crossing into an island

But they are. At least for some species - including the grizzly bear, most imposing of all the native fauna - Yellowstone is an insular world set apart from what surrounds it.

The island at issue isn't Yellowstone proper, but a larger and more organic entity known as the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem. The ecosystem encompasses both Yellowstooe and Grand Teton parks, plus portions of seven national forests and more, constituting an amoeboid parcel of largely undeveloped landscape that totals more than 15 million acres. All around that parcel lies an ocean of human impact in the form of ranches and highways and towns, suburbs

David Quammen is author of "The Song of the Dodo: Island Biogeography in an Age of Extinctions.

acing implications not just for Yellowstone but for every other parcel of protected natural landscape on the continent, from Baxter State Park in Maine to Joshua Tree National Monument in Southern Califoroia. Why menacing? Because insularity is conducive to extinction.

Islands are, all too often, where species and populations die. Call it the island syndrome. One authoritative tally offers these figures as a mere sampling: Within the past four centuries, 171 species and subspecies of bird have gone extinct; of those extinctions, 155 occurred on islands.

Like islands, they are places where species go to die.

That's 90 percent - despite the fact that only about 20 percent of the planet's bird species are islanddwellers. Clearly, island birds face a much higher probability of extinction than mainland birds do. ft's true also among animals and plants overall: Island species are more readily extinguished than mainland species.

Why do island creatures go extinct? The reasons are complicated, but at their base lie two simple factors: population size and population fluctuation. All populations fluctuate size, from year to year, in response to the good conditions (gentle weather, abundant food) and the bad conditions (drought, harsh winters, famine) they encounter: and small populations are more likely to fluctuate to zero when conditions are bad, since zero is never far away.

With less margin of security, a small population is also more vulnerable to the various forms of buman persecution and natural catastrophe that can deliver a coup de grace. Therefore, small populations face a greater risk of extinction than big populations. And island populations - including those trapped within ecological islands, such as a park surrounded by development - tend to be small.

Within the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem, for instance, there are no more than 300 or 400 grizzly bears, utterly isolated from grizzly populations elsewhere. Three hundred is probably too small for comfort, and so this Yellowstone population shares at least some of the Jeopardy of the most famous of all extinct Island birds, the dodo. An important corollary of the island syndrome is that small Islands generally support fewer species than blg islands do. Why? Because they support bigger populations of each species, and therefore endure fewer extioctions. Biologists refer to that as the species-area relationship.

mentioned, for the national parks, designated wildernesses, wildlife reserves, and other forms of protected natural landscape set aside in our country or any other. One of the main premises behind establishing those parks and reserves is that, by protecting in perpetuity a patch of landscape, we can protect in perpetuity the ecological community within it. We can save species. But four decades of modern scientific thinking about the species-area relationship, combined with recent research by a fellow named William Newmark, suggest that such protection isn't necessarily perpetual.

Sometimes it's only temporary. Insularized populations go extinct, even when the island is protected by act of Congress. In a paper published in the journal Conservation Biology last year, Mr. Newmark reported that 29 mammal populations have disappeared from national parks in western North America due to no other factor than the island syndrome.

The red fox is missing from Bryce Canyon National Park in southern Utah. The mink is gone from Yosemite. The river orter, the spotted skunk and the ermine are absent from Crater Lake National Park in Oregon oot hunted out, not polsoned out, but apparently squeezed out by the sheer insularity of their situation

Mr. Newmark listed all 29 cases, with documentation, and noted a telling pattern: the smaller the park, the more mammal species lost. His conclusion: "Areas considerably larger than most parks in western North America will need to be managed If the historical mammal faunal assemblages within the parks are to be reestablished."

The Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem is one such larger area, and so far it seems to have suffered no Island-syndrome losses. But the grizzly bear, with its big territorial demands and small population, is at risk. By the time your great-grandchildren visit Yellowstone, It could be gone.

Meanwhile, even the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem grows ever smaller and more tattered. Timber sales reduce the wooded acreage of its national forests, a major gold mine is threatened just outside the park's northeast corner, and habitat is being lost to housing sprawl (in some cases, for environmentalists who insist on living "in the country") on private lands. As the Yellowstone island becomes smaller, the prognosis for the big bear becomes gloom-ut it isn't just Yellow-stone and it isn't just the grizzly. All over the world, the exigent needs and demands of people have left natural landscapes reduced and fragmented. Nature itself, in the form of richly diverse ecological communities, has been separated from humanity and compartmentalized, the compartments being those smallish reserves, refuges and national parks that we feel we can conveniently afford to set

The minatory message of the species-area relationship, and of William Newmark's work, is that this approach won't do. For the long term, it won't work. Nature can't be compartmentalized. Nature isn't convenient. Nature is inherently

Senator Alfonse M. D'Amato, seeing a dangerous vacuum of leadership,

are seeking to fill it the only way

Congress cannot do. Building an international coalition against the purveyors of terror and fearsome weapons requires Presidential leadership,

But what is really necessary bere,

Congress can, through legislation.

Liberties

MAUREEN DOWD

Plagues, Comets, Values

It's hard to tell who is more obsessed with disaster, Republicans or Hollywood executives. One group is scrambling to avoid it, while the other is scrambling to peddle it.

Michael Eisner Is said to have a bad case of "Twister"-envy, and everybody else here is rushing around trying to rock the screen with a natural disaster or, better still, an unnatural one, caused by slimy, retro space aliens zapping Earth with blue

We're talking floods, iofernos, comets, collapsing tunnels and pestilence. We're talking earthquake-meets-volcano and spews hot lava on Beverly Hills boutiques.

'Somebody in a script meeting told me, 'We've finally figured out how to build a story line around meteorsaid Marty Kaplan, a screenwriter. He described one screenplay making the rounds. "10 Plagues," about a crusading district attorney who can handle the onslaught of locusts, floods and frogs, but gets upset at the prospect of the slaying of the first born, because that hits too close to home. (No doubt the studio would plan a Passover release.)

Hollywood and Republicans share the same problem: With the cold war over bot millennium jitters upon us, new bad guys are required.

Hollywood is villainizing the weather, viruses and aliens.

Bob Dole is villainizing Hollywood. In the old days, candidates used to get money from Wall Street and attack Wall Street. Now they go to Hollywood for the same reasons - to court it for cash or attack it for trash.

Absent any other content to his Presidential race and unable to get any traction mocking Bill Clinton's character, Mr. Dole is returning to the theme of the last effective speech he made. Last summer, he came to a fund-raising dinner here and lashed the entertainment industry for producing sex-and-violence filled "nightmares of depravity."

At that time, Mr. Dole, a C-Span

Bob Dole's summer blockbuster?

devotee who is fuzzy on popular culture, conceded he had not seen movies he was criticizing or recommending. He made the mistake of clting Republican Arnold Schwarzenegger's "True Lies" - which had plenty of gunplay. not to mention a really creepy misogynist sex scene - as an example of a film with good values.

This time, Mr. Dole's staff is going to make sure he sees the movie before praising it. Accompanied by William Bennett, the values czar who has crusaded against gangsta rap and tawdry talk shows, Mr. Dole plans to attend a 3:30 P.M. showing of "Independence Day" tomorrow at Grauman's Chinese Theater on Hollywood Boulevard.

On Tuesday, according to his communications director, John Buckley, the candidate will give "Hollywood 2 - the sequel," a speech lambasting the movie industry for not making more "uplifting" movies like the alien invasion megahit. (Never mind the fact that about 700 million people get killed and every weapon in the U.S. arsenal is deployed. Never mind that the heroine is - once again - a stripper and that it is filled with 50'sstyle ethnic and gender stereotypes. Rather, let's focus on the John Wayne clarity and patriotism and the war hero President.)

The laconic Mr. Dole has formed a bond with the voluble Mr. Bennett, the former Education Secretary and drug czar who knows how to grab public attention on the spicy topic of restoring a sense of sbarne to society.

This partnership is working better than the Liddy-and-Bob Traveling Medicine Show. Mr. Dole spent a couple of weeks trying to use the same soft TV talk show format that worked so well for Mr. Clinton and his sax in the summer of '92, bringing along his wife, Elizabeth, to soften up his image. But she was "wound too tight." as one campaign aide conceded, especially after she could not intercede to save her husband from his weird confrontation with Katie Couric.

The candidate did a warm-up for his West Coast trip in his Republican radio address yesterday by attacking the entertainment, recording and fashion industries for "glamorizing drug use" and encouraging heroin chic. Noting that beroin use bas skyrocketed, he bemoaned the deaths of River Phoenix and Kurt Cobain. Wheo he got to the death of Smashing Pumpkins' Jonathan Melvoin, he unwittingly called him Michael.

But aldes to Senator Dole, who have been fretting that the 73-year-old retired majority leader seemed culturally out of touch, were still excited that he actually spoke the words "Smashing Pumpkins." It was, they said, a breakthrough moment.

Appeasement as a Way of Life

By John R. Bolton

ar European allies are professing anger at a recent Congressional measure that would penalize any foreign company investing more than $40 million a year in the Iranian or Libyan oil and gas industries. The Europeans appeal to "free trade," but they miss the point; this dispute goes far beyond economics.

The real problem is that the West is divided and aimless in the face of real, direct and growing threats to the lives and security of its citizens. Although receot Congressional debate focused on Iran's and Libya's support for terrorism, the support of these and other nations for the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction - nuclear, chemical and biological - is even more pressing. Congressional measures, however

John R. Bolton, president of the National Policy Forum, a Republican study organization, was an Assistant Secretary of State in the Bush Adlaudable, do not constitute adequate international leadership. That can come only from the President of the United States. So far, the field of battle is largely empty.

The supineness of our European allies toward Iran and Libya has been a painful thing to watch. Hugo Paemeo, the European Union's represectative in Washingtoo, recently spoke of "countermeasures" against United States sanctions, but the rea question is when the Europeans will take effective measures against the real enemy: outlaw regimes that threaten their national interests.

The Europeans oppose sanctions and other such "extraterritorial" measures, but they offer little to resolve the threat of mass destruction posed by Iran and Libya (and Iraq, Syria and North Korea). Citing the Iranian role in the recent exchange of Lebanese prisoners for the remains of Israeli soldiers, the Europeans argue that they have rendered Iran less dangerous by keeping up a critical dialogue" with it and selling it high-technology equipment. But this argument demonstrates only that some Europeans have never lost faith in appeasement as a way short leap to the even greater issue of life. It is clear that Iran is cynically manipulating gullible (or equally cynical) Europeans to advance its development of weapons of mass destruction. Iran has made the "critical dialogue" an end in itself, and many Europeans bave acquiesced in the charade for financial gain. But Euroblindness is not the only problem, and perhaps not even the Europe's blindness on Libya and Iran.

main one. No serious analyst expects the European Union to lead on this issue. Whatever the difficulty of defining American national interests, weapons proliferation offers a clear case for asserting Presidential lead-

Populist pressures here have led Congress to take on part of the problem, terrorism, and it would be a of proliferation. Lawmakers like persistence and determination. It means taking risky political positions, like whether (and when) to take military measures against the proliferators. It means undertaking the arduous work of wreoching reluctant allies into line. It means leading an American public oo an issue that now seems obscure, but that could quickly become tragically immediate. So far President Clinton has attended a substance-free summit meeting on terrorism, but he has not seriously confronted the Western allies, choosing instead to act as though the Constitution left foreign affairs to Con-

Directly opposing weapons proliferation and terrorism requires a long-term American commitment, starting at the top. For now, I'm not holding my breath. Neither are the

FILM

Like Emma, Gwyneth Paltrow Sets Her World Astir

By MARGY ROCHLIN

Los Angeles ERHAPS not since infancy has 23-year-old Gwyneth Paltrow been so much the center of her own universe. In the last three years, she has received fawning reviews for playing mostly ancillary characters in so-so movies. When she ventures out in public with her boyfriend, curious onlookers gather, if not precisely because they know who she is, but because the man who is gazing at her so adoringly is Brad Pitt. This month, she swans through her first leading role, in "Emma," based on the Jane Austen classic, making it look easy to be an American passing as England's most beloved heroine in a film overflowing with acclaimed British actors.

In celebration of this occasion, a media assault is under way, making her the most deified young actress since, the deification of Matthew McConaughey last week.

And now it even seems that everyone in the restaurant at the Four Seasons Hotel in Beverly Hills wants to greet her. In the next hour, a manager, a lawyer and three publicists will, one by one, approach Ms. Paltrow's table, each time causing her to spring from her chair. Upon spotting her friend Catherine Keener (who gives her own much talkedabout performance in the independent film "Walking and Talking"), Ms. Paltrow reacts like a wound-up sorority sister. "Sweee-tie!" she cries. Then Ms. Paltrow and Ms. Keener cup each other's faces with their hands, press foreheads, rub noses and begin squeating merrily.

That Ms. Paltrow can engage in this profusion of cooing and still seem like a genuinely nice person is a feat in itself. On the other hand, with the exception of not being able to drive a car with a stick shift ("Too scary," she confesses), it seems nauseatingly clear that there is little Ms. Paltrow cannot do.

In "Emma," the story of a sweetnatured but much-indulged rich girl who tries to organize everyone's life but her own, Ms. Pall row plays plano and sings harmony. She shows herself to be a skilled archer. All her lines are spoken in a tinkly, pitchperfect English accent. A stunt double, brought in to do a tricky maneuver with a horse-drawn carriage, was rendered useless when Ms. Paltrow took over the reins and got it right on her first take. 'After a while," says Douglas Mc-Grath, who directed and wrote the screen adaptation of the Austen novel, "I started wondering If maybe I should put stunts in the movie just to see if she could do them. I thought to myself, 'What about having her drive a motorcycle over 12 burning oil barrels? Would that be wrong for the period?"

Ms. Paltrow's reputation for precociousness Isn't new. For that, you'd have to rewind back to 1993 and the highly acclaimed performance she turned in as Ginnie, an amoral grifter in Steve Kloves's "Flesh and Bone." She had little dialogue, but each time her haunting character slinked on to the screen, Ms. Paltrow's more seasoned costars - Meg Ryan, Dennis Quaid and James Caan - seemed to noticeably recede. Only she seemed worthy of attention.

Back then, film critics eagerly anticipated her leap to title roles, ready to anoint her as the next big thing. Instead, Ms. Paltrow took an alternative route, accepting mostly supporting roles in 6 films shot in roughly 36 months

"I was in no rush to be the star of a movie, because there is so much responsibility placed on your shoulders," Ms. Paltrow says, dragging oo what will be the first of an endless chain of Camel cigarettes. "I wanted to learn, to do smaller parts, really diverse things, things that are opposite from the last role you've done." For a while, she seemed to be specializing in weakly written fringe characters who, by all rights, should have been totally forgettable. With "Moonlight and Valentino," Ms. Paltrow took the diffident Lucy, whom she is too coolly beautiful to completely inhabit, and managed to make audiences see her as raw with self-loathing. She somehow converted Patsy, Thomas Jefferson's daddy-loving daughter, into one of the most interesting aspects of Merchant-ivory's otherwise bland "Jefferson in Paris."

After that came "Seven," starring Morgan Freeman and Brad Pitt as homicide detectives on the trail of a serial killer. As Tracy, Mr. Pitt's spouse, Ms. Paltrow tried hard to work her magic. But, ultimately, her dutiful wife was so clearly marked for doom that Ms. Paltrow might as well having been wearing a sign that said Plot Device.

"I really got beat up over that one," Ms. Paltrow says of "Seven,"

Even before she got her first leading part, all eyes were on

Gwyneth

Paitrow.

although the pundits reproved her not because they didn't like her work but because they felt she was squandering her sizable gift. ("The film treats her in ways you wouldn't treat a dog," Janet Maslin wrote in The New York Times.) In the end, Ms. Paltrow says, the fuss forced her to come to terms with how she will make professional decisions in the future

"What I realized is that I don't really care what anyone thinks," she says. "I read the script and thought, 'If she's not full and doesn't have a soul, then the movie won't work.' Then I thought, 'I'm the only one who can get this right,' which is egotisti-

Or merely confident. The golden offspring of a theatrical family (her mother is the actress Blythe Danner; her father is the television writer and producer Bruce Paltrow, who created "St. Elsewhere" and "The White Shadow"), Ms. Paltrow's tutelage began early on. Her summers were spent in Massachusetts, in the Berkshires, watching Mom take cur tain calls at the Williamstown Theater Festival. "As soon as I could read, I was running lines with her,' Ms. Paltrow recalls. "My earliest memories are of climbing on the artistic director's lap and crawling in and out of rehearsals."

By the time she was 12, she'd gone from her observation post in the wings to doing summer stock herself. In 1991, Ms. Paltrow dropped out of the University of California, Santa Barbara, and began acting full time. It is part of the growing Paltrow legend that ber first film assignment came about when the director Steven Spielberg, a family friend, tapped her to play young Wendy in his 1991 film "Hook."

As it happens, Ms. Paltrow had already made her screen debut earlier that year in "Shout," a precomeback John Travolta vehicle, which Ms. Paltrow categorizes as "so bad, it's amazing." Her one speaking line consisted of a single word. "Re-bec-co." Ms. Paltrow recites, pretending to give as much importance as one can to three dinky syllables.

But the screenwriter and director Paul Thomas Anderson ("Mortal Combat") saw prospect in the radiant blond day player. "It didn't matter that she didn't have anything to say," he says. "She still made moments for herself." Two years later, when he cast his movie "Hard Elght," which will be released in January, he chose her to be Clementine, a self-destructive cocktail waitress and prostilute.

"Gwyneth isn't afraid to do anything." says Mr. Anderson, laughing about Clementine's strip-mall bouwardrobe ("acid-washed jeans") and penchant for applying makeup by the pound. "She is totally not afraid to be unglamorous or despicable or sad or funny or stupid."

Though Clementine is a liar and a cheat, Ms. Paltrow could still summon nothing but affection for the disgruntled chippie. "I love her," she says, "because she's strong, crazy and has her own code of morals." Then again, Ms. Paltrow's minimum emotional requirement for the women she portrays always seems to boil down to whether or not they at least attempt to exert control over their own destiny.

Which is perhaps why Ms. Pal-trow's voice goes flat when discuss-ing "Kilronan," a psychological thriller co-starring Jessica Lange that was recently completed.

"Jessica is amazing, she's brilliant in this movie," says Ms. Pal-trow, struggling to find the right diplomatic take. In the film, Ms. Lange plays an enraged mother-inlaw who torments her son's malleable bride, played by Ms. Paltrow. "But I'm just kind of this victim, which is good because it taught me that I never want to do that again." Then reflecting on the experience, Ms. Paltrow cranes her lovely neck to the right, sticks out her tongue and makes a soft, retching sound.

While it is moments like these that remind one that Ms. Paltrow is still in her early 20's she also has poise and dignity to spare. This year, at the Academy Awards, she made perhaps the classiest showing of all the ingénues in shiny slip dresses who traipsed up the red carpet. Throughout the long evening, she grinned and waved excitedly, appearing to be having too much fun to mind that most of the fans were screaming for her boyfriend, Mr. Pitt, whom she met while making "Seven."

"I was just so proud of him, just so happy that we were there in that capacity," she says of that night. Mr. Pitt had received a best supporting actor nomination for "12 Monkeys. 'Also, I probably looked like I liked it a lot more than I do. It's just that my dad always tells me, 'll's silly when people go to these things and look bent out of shape. So smile! Be gracious! Or just don't go.' "

1 Mel Torme piece

10 Gratified

14 Takeoff

19 ——poly

20 Fruit tree

26 Havens

29 Clear

5 One who can take a —— Digest (old flying magazine)

27 City near Horseshoe

22 The "C" in C. S.

23 Bulls and Bears

28 Follows illegally

30 "Don't Worry

31 Uganda'a Amin

33 Triple witching

47 "Orfeo ed Euridice"

49 Mountain-climbing

- marché

32 Withered

41 Fill (up)

45 Rallet's

46 Spurious

48 Double-reed challenges

noocaring

54 Starting point

59 Act rudely on the dance floor

60 Amphitheaters

61 "- Johnny!"

62 Hens, in a way

63 Pants material

65 Intensive care

conditions

66 Throughout, in

69 Partner of won

(1932 song)

71 Watered stock

76 Kind of help

77 Downwind

78 Facilitation

70 "--- Muchachos

81 Fortas and Burrows

68 Lowly ones

64 Illustrious

53 Abecedarian phrase

55 Stockholder

52 Symbol of

When Mr. McGrath met Ms. Paltrow, he was Immediately struck by the fact that she was at the same stage of life as his willful, well-bred protagonist. ("You know, it's harder than you'd think to find an actress the exact right age," says Mr. Mc-Grath, "You think 'O.K .: Drew Barrymore is Emma?' I don't think so.") Ms. Paltrow also had the right measure of vitality, polish and dramatic technique to hold his picture together. Of course, convincing the rest of the cast, most of them British. that this relatively unknown Yankee with the hunk boyfriend could pull It off was another story.

"They were just ill at the idea," Mr. McGrath says, "At the reading, the entire group assembled, and you could see them slumped in their chairs. But I'm telling you, the minute she started, she became the part right in front of them, and every one of those English spines straightened right up."

But Ms. Paltrow talks about her evident talent for wholly absorbing her characters the way she does about almost everything, which is to say as if it is all part of a great and lucky accident.

When you do a character like Emma, so many things are handed to you," she says, noting that she has read every Jane Austen novel, except "Persuasion." "All of a sudden you completely understand this person and why she feels what she does, even though under the same set of circumstances, you would never behave like her. I just loved how Emma was a complete solipsist, And I loved how she pulls out of it and really learns from her mistakes. She's a good girl, she's just mixed

Toward the end of "Emma," there is a pivotal moment when Ms. Paltrow's character realizes she has fallen in love with her good friend Mr. Knightly (Jeremy Northam) and may lose him to another woman. Within a matter of minutes, Ms. Paltrow deftly takes her Emma through seismic shifts of moods: panic, adoration, sadness, horror. It's a funny, poignant scene, just one more piece of evidence to suggest why she is worthy of the tizzy she has been generating in Hollywood.

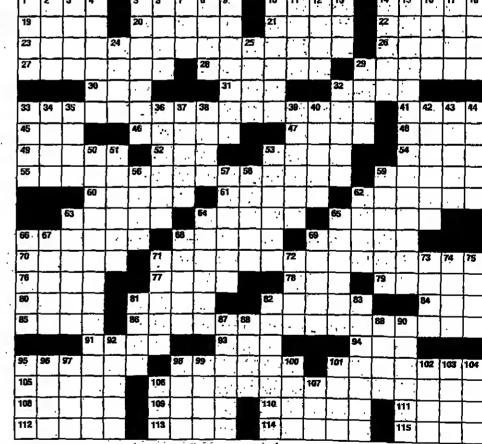

Even Ms. Paltrow, who says she dislikes seeing herself on screen, can muster praise, albeit faint, for her work in the film. "As mammals," she says, wrinkling her forehead, "I don't think we're supposed to see how we behave or what we look like in all kinds of situations. But I'm getting better at it.'

MARKET SAVVY

BY NORMAN S. WIZER / EDITED BY WILL SHORTZ

105 Words never 106 Street name

108 Certain secondhand items 109 Impressioo

110 Off the wall 111 Prince of opera 112 Code subject 113 in the vicinity

114 Privations 115 Trims, as a tree DOWN 1 Abbr. on a letter to

3 Loads 4 Forbes 400 sort 5 Corporate split 79 Come out the same 6 South American 80 Eurasian duck 1940's inflation

source

17 Hot spot 18 Event suffix

16 Compiègne's river

2 Hood

fighter: Abbr. -82 Villa features 8 Poverty, so to 84 Bibliographical 9 Double-cross 85 Maneuverable 10 Manx language 86 Book value

91 Start for "Around" 11 Reporter's news and "ideas" in song 12 Treaty subject 93 Comedian Bill, to 13 Computer acronym friends 14 Ransack 15 Spot market

94 Raven maniac? 95 Country with its shape on its flag 98 Bursts of energy 101 Like Sibelins titles

24 Fine-tune 25 Vocal fanfare 29 Old-time comic Lew 32 Go piece

33 Juvenile protection 34 Dear, in Tuscany

35 Comic dictionary compiler Evan 36 Chance happening 37 Musical medievs 38 Prelate's title: Abbr. 39 Like juicy turkeys

40 1964 Disney boy and others 42 Slows.down 43 Private reply 44 Wails 50 Odd lot

51 Bank patrons 53 Still 56 Filiahold 57 Don't sit oo the fence

58 Prudential competitor 59 Brownie 62 Spoils 63 Happy face

64 Most op-to-date 65 Help revise 66 Nickname for Sarah 67 Pulliness 68-Explorers'

69 Fan sounds

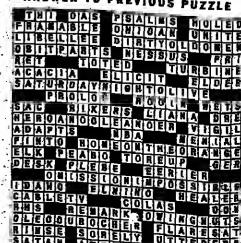

Wray's "King Kong" co-star 92 li can be wild 95 It can be wild 96 European river that 72 Site of some Sargent connects a network of canals

73 River to the Caspian 97 Mouthpiece? .74 Barry of "Bat 98 "No Ordinary Love" singer 75 Audition 99 Appeal 81 Whizzes 100 Kind of curve

82 Sit on one'a hands? 101 Affectionate 83 Has dreams 102 Othello's ancient 87 Eyepiece, in jargon 103 Knock off 88 Mold · 89 Years on end

104 For the lady 106 Success 90 Campbell's variety 107 Scottish dissent

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

Ms. Paltrow and Brad Pitt in "Seven"-The critics thought that in this film the actress was squandering her considerable talent.

Foreign Ministry takes a diplomatic approach

GROUP of 27 young diplomats came away with a different vision of Israel recently, as they completed a three-week seminar aimed at helping them prepare for the next

Topics on the agenda for the diplomats - who eame from such diverse countries as Fiji, Singapore, Ghana, Mexico and Lithuania - were the changing face of diplomacy in the 21st century, the Middle East peace process and learning more about Israel and the Jewisb people. Along the way they also got a glimpse at the workings of the Israeli Foreign Ministry.

"We are a young country and we don't have a very long tradition in diplomacy, but [because of] the intensity of our diplomacy in the past 40 years our diplomats are very experienced and can share that experience with others," said Yitzhak Eldan, head of the Foreign Ministry Department for Training and Human Resources Planning, which helped organize

"Most of the participants were from small countries and wanted to see how a small foreign ministry deals with multilateral diplomacy," he added.

In addition, there were a number of brainstorming sessions held on topics such as the effect of a diplomatic career on family life, which gave Israeli participants a chance to hear new ideas, said Noach Gelber, who co-directed

Several other countries have held workshops and seminars for first time Israel has sponsored such a program. The Israeli Foreign Ministry came up with the idea last year after organizing a successful conference for direc-tor generals of foreign ministries.

JUDITH SUDILOVSKY

It is doubtful whether such a seminar would have been possible before the peace process, which opened the doors to diplomatic relations with various countries, said Gelber. Now the ministry plans to make the young-diplomat workshop an annual program, as a way of improving connections and keeping up the momentum of diplomace relations, he added.

This view of Israel was new for the young diplomais," said Gelber. "Now they see it as more of a normal country, not just what they see in the news. These are people who will some day be in [influential] positions and at least when people speak of 'The Golan Heights' they will know what the Golan Heights really means."

Although public relacions was not the purpose of the program, said Gelber, by simply doing a good job they were in fact showing the diplomats "Israel the Beautiful."

Indeed, many of the participants spoke of the importance of having explored Israel themselves and of having gained a better idea of the security issues involved in mak-

It has shown us close up the history and development of the peace process," said Jose Miguel Vasconez of the Foreign Ministry young diplomats but this is the of Ecuador. "We now have an idea of the complexity of the issues involved."

Avil Ramirez, director general of the Foreign Ministry of Nicaragua noted the significance of actually touring the country.

Being in the Golan Heights, you realize the strategic importance for security, and being there you realize how important peace said Ramirez.

In addition to meeting with Israeli officials and specialists -including Israeli Arab leaders the group met with Jordanian and Egyptian officials to discuss the peace process. Their meeting with Palestinian Authority officials was to have taken place on the same day, but a terrorist anack in the Jordan valley occurred and so it had to be canceled.

"Before I came here people told me the Israelis would try to brainwash me but there was no brainwashing," said Worwornyo Adogla. from Ghana. "If they had not brought Arab leaders to speak with us I would have thought they were trying to brainwash us, but now I have seen and can think for myself."

The issue of peace was only one part of the program and many of the participants said they had eome in order to exchange ideas with colleagues about the new role of diplomats in the post-Cold War world.

We have a changing world situation now," said Adogla. Diplomats now need to be involved in environmental, economic, and technological issues. A diplomat has to have administrative as well as negotiating

In addition, she said, as new

MEIN ROWNEN@96

technology brings the world closer together at faster speeds, a diplomat has to go beyond the headlines to give his or her government a more in-depth analysis of what is happening in any given country on a number of topics ranging from politics to econom-

The participants also heard lectures on human rights and the moral and ethical role of diplo-

One of the main things which most impressed Alvero Olivera, who works in the Middle East division of the Brazilian Foreign Ministry, was Israel's preparation for the global economy.

"They made a very good case for an international economy," he said. "I saw how to prepare an economy for a competitive market, Israel has a lot to show us and there are a lot of joint projects we could do in many fields."

Passing the toxic buck

EARTHLY CONCERNS D'YORA BEN SHAUL

THE disposal of toxic waste in tsrael has been a serious problem for a very long time. Over the past few years. there has been a significant improvement in controlling waste, but it is still far from satistactory.

Five years ago, thousands of tons of loxic waste that were known to have been produced by industry failed to reach the country's toxic waste disposal facility at Ramat Hovay in the Negev.

Today, virtually all toxic waste from industry is accounted for. However, the toxic waste site itself is now almost as big a problem as the one it was designed to solve.

Twenty years' worth of hacklogged materials sit in often-leaking containers at the site.

The poisonous materials that seep into the soil are a threat to the Negev Aquifer and a potential health hazard to communities several kilometers away.

This year, at long last, an incinerator capable of handling toxic waste will be installed at the site. But even with the incinerator working maximum capacity it will require several years to clean up the backlog, not to mention the hundreds of tons that arrive every year, It is obvious that the facility's capacity needs to be enlarged.

While much improvement has been seen in the collection of toxic waste from industry, toxic waste from agriculture and from households and small businesses has hardly been addressed.

Public-spirited citizens sometimes save used hatteries that pollute the groundwater with metals such as nickel, cadmium and lithium, but once they have collected them no one in the government seems to be able to arrange any transport to the toxic waste dump. Citizens are advised to

"just throw them in the garbage."
Organization is needed to ensure the disposal of hatteries. paint, solvents, used motor oil. pesticide containers, and left-over pesticides at a facility.

Another source of toxic waste pollution is in the agricultural

Part of the problem is that responsibility for pesticides is divided among the Agriculture. Health, Transport and Labor and Social Affairs ministries. As a result, no one is really in charge or very much responsible for the problem. A simple walk down the wadis will quickly prove to anyone that far too many kibhutzim and moshavim still toss away old pesticide barrels and containers, sometimes with several liters of leftover poison. In this sector, a lot more needs to be done. Indeed, tests on water supplies have repeatedly shown that the quality of our drinking water is not good and is getting

As for Ramat Hovay, it's a long way from where most of us live and perhaps so are the pesticide laden wadis and the leaking garbage dumps that drain heavy metals into the soil.

But our drinking water comes a long way before we get it, picking up contamination on the way. It is high time that the government paid some attention to this vital

But now, since the Environment Ministry is just a poor satellite of the Agriculture Ministry, we are even lacking the strident environmental voice that inveighs against

Defendants granted the right not to attend trial

In the Supreme Court, siming as a High Court of Justice, before the President Justice Aharon Barak, and Justices Mishael Cheshin and Dalia Dorner, in the matter of Berkey Pathe Humphries (Israel) Ltd., and others, petitioners, versus the State of Israel and others, respondents (H.C.7357195, 1479196).

THE petitioners are being tried with others in the Tel-Aviv Magistrates Court on several complicated charges, involving the testimony of 48 witnesses for the prosecution alone. The court fixed the hearings for three times a week, warning the defendants of their duty to appear.

The petitioners, all represented by counsel, seriously interfere court' with their business affairs. The court dismissed the application on the ground that the legislature drew no distinction between "white collar" defendants and others who had to live on a "bare daily wage". It added that it would consider any properly grounded application for a defendant's release from a particular session, or some sessions, presented timeously. The petitioners then applied to the Supreme Court, sitting as a High Court of Justice, to grant their request.

JUSTICE DORNER delivered the first judgment of the court. The petitioners submitted, she said, that a defendant was not required to anend his trial unless it was necessary as, for example, for purposes of identification. Alternatively, they argued that they should be released from attending in the present case.

The respondents contended that the defendant's attendance was for the court to decide; moreover, where the image of justice demanded he sit on the defendants' bench, he should not be released from so doing even if his absence would not impair his defence. The defendant had a basic right to attend ASHER FELIX LANDAU his trial, she continued, and the public interest also demanded his so doing. The questions arose whether he was entitled to waive this right and, if his so doing required the court's consent, what criteria were to be

His right and duty to attend, she said, were laid down in section 126 of the Criminal Procedure Law (Consolidated Version) of 1982, under which no person shall be criminally tried in his absence "save as otherwise provided in this Law." Section 128 permitted moved the court to release them from appear his absence if, inter alia, he so requested and ing on the grounds that their attendance was "- was represented by course and, in the cause him no injustice. Citing precedents, she held it was clearly for the court to decide as to the defendant's attendance. Section 128 struck a balance between the defendant's waiving his basic right to attend his trial (see Kestenbaum's case-C.A. 294/91, The Jerusalem Post of May 11, 1992) and the public interest in his attendance to enable the prosecution to prove its case (for example, in regard to identification) and, in the main, to ensure the defendant's fair trial. It was for the court to find that bal-

.The respondents' submission requiring the peotioners to sit on the defendants' bench to preserve the "image of justice" was unacceptable. The defendant's basic right to make his choice was enshrined in section 5 of the Basic Law: The Dignity and Freedom of Man, of 1992. That right could only be denied in a Law befitting the State's values. for a worthy purpose, and only to the extent necessary. Citing, inter alia, Miller's case (H.C.4541/94 - the Post of November 20, 1995), she held that sections 126 and 128 above fulfilled these requirements. The above right was enjoyed equally by all defendants - rich and poor alike.

She added that a defendant represented by competent counsel was presumed to enjoy adequate protection. In the absence, therefore, of a contrary indication, his application to be excused attendance should be granted unless the circumstances demanded other-

She proposed, therefore, that the petitions be allowed, and the case be remitted to the Magistrates Court to be reconsidered on the basis of the above principles.

JUSTICE CHESHIN concurred. The magisimportant feature of the "image of justice" in her decision. However, he rejected that factor as a separate element in the present context only for the reason that, objectively, sections 126 and 128 provided the necessary balance for protecting the rights of both the defendant and the prosecution. The demands of justice, therefore, were fully satisfied.

He was wary, he added, of the tendency to cite the Basic Law: The Dignity and Freedom of Man, at every possible opportunity. emphasising that it was designed to test the validity of later statutes. Citing Genimaat's case (M.A.[C] 537/95, and F.H.[C] 2316/95 - the Post of December 11, 1995) he agreed it could be invoked in interpreting prior Laws where such a problem arose, but sections 126 and 128 presented no such difficulties. Unnecessary and improper reliance on Basic Laws could result in weakening their real value and significance.

JUSTICE BARAK also concurred with Justice Domer. Citing many Israeli and other precedents and legal texts, he emphasized it was not only the defendant's duty, but also his right, to attend his trial. He could waive his right, but the safeguards provided in section 8 of the above Basic Law, and those laid down in sections 126 and 128 of the Criminal Procedure Law, were the demands of society. irrespective of the defendant's wishes. Only the court, therefore, was empowered to find the proper balance between the several inter-Dealing with upholding a constitutional right, and citing the Bank Mizrachi case (C.A.6821/93), the Post of January 8, 1996). he held that requiring a defendant to sit on the defendants' bench was not a proper demand in the public interest, A criminal trial was designed to discover the truth and not to demean the defendant

The President then cited several examples illustrating the many acceptable reasons why attendance. In his view, a defendant's wish to prevent the collapse of his business, an interesi connected with his basic right of occupation, should be protected by the court.

Citing Genimaat's case (F.H.2316/95, above), he then asserted that the Basic Laws protecting human rights created a new normative reality in Israeli law, felt particularly in criminal law and procedure. They were often quoted out of context, but were of great importance in interpreting other Laws. He agreed with Justice Cheshin as to the danger of relying upon them unduly. However, as happened also with the Contracts (General Part) Law. of 1993, which was also received with great suspicion, the Basic Laws would eventually find their proper place in Israeli iurisprudence.

For the above reasons, the peurions were allowed, and an order made as proposed by Justice Domer.

Ze'ev Sharf, Sharon Hal-Gilad and Pinhas Gladkov appeared for the petitioners, and Nava Ben Or, Director of the Criminal Division of the State Anomey's Office, appeared for the State.

The judgment was given on June 25, 1996.

Japan's 'fiery horses' charge into 21st century

TAOMI doesn't look like a man-eater. Yet because she was bom in 1966, the Year of the Fiery Horse, Japanese tradition says she is destined to devour her husband and bring bad luck and conflagrations to any house unlucky enough to receive her as a

"Certainly this is something that comes up when it's time to get married. You know any prospec-tive husband's family will mention it," she said. Naomi, and around a million other hapless young Japanese, share the fate of having been born Japanese zodiac, a 60-year cycle that combines the 12-year animal zodiac of China with the five elements of wood, water, earth, metal (gold), and fire.

Adding the traits attributed to each animal with the properties ascribed to each element yields a detailed, and complicated, reading of each year.

The Fiery Horse Year, or "Hinoeuma," has fire as its element, summer as its season, red as its color, and the horse as its animal. Over time, this came to be seen as a year of fire and calamity. with people born in it strong-willed and occasionally violent, like their animal namesake.

In contrast, while 1996 is the Year of the Fire Mouse" and shares many of the same properties, possible disaster is neutralized hy the timid nature of its guiding animal. "Whenever I have a disagreement with anybody, especially at work, you can always bet that my boss will say. Of course, you're Hinoeuma," Naomi said. Being bom as a Fiery Horse is little more than a curiosity for men. Although in some rural areas of Japan they are said to be ridiculous and easily confused, more widespread belief has it that they may e more successful than average. Even so, when the dire year last rolled around in 1966. Japanese parents appear to have done their utmost to avoid burdening their children with this stigma. The overall birth rate plunged to around 1.36 million from 1.82 million the year before, then surged to 1.94 Health and Welfare Ministry.

1The youngest herd of Fiery Horses is rebelling against the dark image of their birth. Because fewer people were born then, I actually feel like some kind of special, limited-edition goods," one man said.

Most agreed, noting that their smaller numbers had eased competition in school entrance exams and job hunting. The Association's opening meeting, held recently in a computer venue in downtown Tokyo, could hardly have been more modern, or more ordinary. Many sat mesmerized in front of computer terminals, surfing the Internet or studying the "Hinocuma Homepage," which debuted recently in both English and Japanese. For Hinoeuma women, the curse seems to be fading. Several used the meeting to announce autumn weddings.

Minimum LOTTO 1st prize - tomorrow TTO makes more millionaires Laugh all the way to the bank

Bank workers to discuss strike possibility

GALIT LIPKIS BECK

Finance Ministry director-general David Brodet, is calling on any body with a particular interest or view to submit its opinions and recommendations on paper by August 6. Some of the respon-dents will be asked to appear before the committee in the comlasted three hours, with the group

kets, the committee will also consider structures for savings in the economy, incentives for and taxation of savings and policy formation for the money, capital and

Its recommendations must be submitted to Finance Minister

Dan Meridor by September 12.

Farmers

group attacks gov't agriculture

policy

DAVID HARRIS

AGRICULTURE Center director-general Simha Assaf attacked the government's economic plan for the sector at the weekend. The cabinet-approved budget cuts for 1996 and 1997

believes that by reducing the number of farmers, wages in the sector will begin to rise, said

"In 1987 there were 53,000 employees in agriculture. Now that figure stands at 30,000, with wages continuing to fall. This policy is a terrible blun-

For current information on securities in Israel

1.494 / 1901

der," he concluded.

the indicate

Assaf.

government

foreign currency markets.

deciding on a plan of action. In addition to the capital mar-

Its first meeting, held on Friday,

ing weeks.

THE heads of all of the major banks' workers' unions are scheduled to meet today to decide whether to engage in a general strike to protest United Mizrahi Bank's firing of the four workers' representatives responsible for a newspaper advertisement calling on customers to withdraw their deposits from the bank. Meanwhile, 2,200 UMB workers will continue the strike they began yesterday. The workers are striking in response to the layoff of 250 workers and the standstill in negotiations with the bank's management regarding organizational changes, personal contracts and a wage agreement for 1995.

At the end of last week, UMB management sent dismissal leners to 250 workers, including four representatives of the workers' committee, and decided 10 go ahead

THE Bank of Israel is to announce its monthly monetary policy today, amid unprecedented pressure from business circles.

market activists and politicians on

Governor Jacob Frenkel to reduce

Last month, in response to new indications of inflationary pressures, the central bank stunned many observers when it raised its short-term lending rate by 150 basis points, setting its basic price

Since then Frenkel's tight-money policy has been attacked.

at times viciously, by a colorful coalition ranging from industrialists, like Koor CEO Benjamin

Gaon, to champions of the underprivileged classes, like Foreign Minister David Levy. and from

INDUSTRY and Trade Minister

Natan Sharansky left for the US last night for his first overseas

During the tour of the US and Canada, Sharansky will complete negotiations on a free-trade agreement with Canada. The pact.

will come into force in January.

Talks between the states began in 1994, as the parties became increasingly aware of the mutual business potential. Under the agreement, virtually all trade of industrial products will be tax free. Current bilateral trade stands at some $330 million annually. Businessmen in both billion by the year 2000.

countries say that could reach $1

While in the US, Sharansky will participate in detailed trade talks.

These will include discussions with senior government officials visit as minister.

of credit at 17 percent.

interest rates,

with its reorganization program. Management said the letters were sent last week after an advertisement in the Hnrzofeh Zionisi-religious daily, which many of the bank's veteran customers read regularly. urged customers to withdraw their deposits from the bank "before it is too late." The ad alleged management created a situation

"which may result in the bank's closure." A UMB spokesperson said the bank is willing to cancel 246 of the letters of dismissal, on the condition that the workers' committee admits submitting the ad was a mistake, halts the strike at the bank and agrees not to engage in sanctions during negotiations. However, the spokesperson said management would not reverse its Market waits for today's interest rates announcement

DAVID HARRIS and

Jerusalem Post Staff

Labor leaders, like former finance minister Avraham Shohat, to Likud MK Silvan Shalom.

Pressure on Frenkel accelerated in the wake of the recent lurbulence in the bond market, which compelled the governor to inter-vene in trading by introducing the so-called "safety net" mechanism.

by which the central bank buys surplus government bonds.

Meanwhile, the newly formed

Treasury committee for structural changes in the capital markets will meet twice this week to formulate a long-term plan to bolster on free-trade agreements between the Palestinian autonomous areas

Other issues that both sides have agreed to consider are customs users fees, government purchases

In Washington, Sharansky will continue the negotiations on an agriculture agreement begun in

The minister will meet the president of the World Bank, with whom he will discuss the possibility of increasing Israel's involvement with the bank's activities. He will also propose an education-based project in which Israel would take a lead.

During the visit, Sharansky will head the fifth biannual meeting of the US-Israel Science and Technology Commission, also in and import/export regulations.

The committee, headed by the markets.

and the US.

Washington.

You have life, health and

Sharansky leaves for US on first ministerial overseas visit

DAVID HARRIS

decision to fire the heads of the workers' committee.

The bank fired workers' committee chairman Sara Leizerovitz and three other representatives responsible for the publication of the advertisement.

In reaction, Leizerovitz, who continues to serve as head of the workers' committee, said the firings were illegal, and dismissed outright management's proposal to return to the negotiating table.

"It is illegal to fire a member of the workers' committee during a strike," she said. We will not return to work until an agreement is reached. Every attempt to open the bank without reaching an agreement is irresponsible. The customers are worried and are likely to withdraw large funds, and thus lead to the collapse of the bank."

The workers' committee intends to hold an explanatory meeting for the workers today and to discuss future measures.

In an attempt to reduce some of the damage to customers, UMB management has opened a telephone hotline - (03)-567-9520 so customers can request information.

The Bank of Israel's Supervisor of Bank's Ze'ev Abeles said that while it is not the central bank's responsibility to intervene in disputes of this kind, "if the workers continue to engage in sanctions the central bank will have no option but to intervene in order to prevent legal complaints" against the bank, in which the Yuli Ofer and Muzi Wertheim group has recently bought a con-

BUSNIESS BRIEFS

Tempo Ltd. will begin running the Soldiers' Association's lottery, according to a recently signed agreement between the two

The agreement, which will expire at the end of 1999, gives Tempo full control of printing, distributing and marketing the lottery cards, as well as distributing the prizes. In exchange, the Soldiers' Association will receive progressive royalties.

Fifty-eight discharged soldiers and officers, including four colonels, were absorbed into the industrial sector in the first half of 1996, a 23 percent increase compared to the same period one year ago, the Industrialists' Association recently reported.

Spokesmen from the association attributed the growth to a joint effort between the IDF and the association to direct discharged soldiers and officers to jobs in the industrial sector.
Since 1991 approximately 1,000 discharged soldiers have found

Agriculture Minister Rafael Eitan said yesterday that his ministry will "subvert" the government's proposed efforts to raise water prices for farmers. Eitan said he will consider a rise in the price of pure spring water only if the price of sewage water is reduced to "almost nothing."

The government has proposed increasing water prices by seven to 15 agorot per cubic meter of fresh water and seven to nine agorot Jennifer Friedlin for treated sewage water.

Tourism, exports, retail sales slow in May-June work in industry.

to a further slowdown in the economy, according to figures published by the Central Bureau for Statistics yesterday. Among its bi-monthly indicators, the CBS reported growth in retail sales shrank to an annual rate of 4 percent to 5%, compared to 10% to 13% in the pre-

RETAIL sales, exports, and tourism in May and June all point

17% between November and February.
Similarly, exports, excluding diamonds, remained largely unchanged from March to June

vious two months and 15% to after an increase between September and February. The number of tourists arriving by air has been falling since December, with the number of. tourist nights dropping since January.

The trade deficit for June, excluding diamonds, gasoline, ships, and airplanes, was almost unchanged at some $760 million, that after a fall in April and May.

There was also a slowdown in investment in capital goods, to an annual rate of 9%, from 10% to 11% in March and April From July to December, the figure reached 20% to 23%. Construction materials registered a 14% drop in growth between March and May, compared to the same period in 1995. Industrial production bucked the trend somewhat between to production in the previous eight months. Industrial exports registered a 2% increase in May and June, following a slowdown since February.

Golii Lipkis Beck odds:
The Purchasing Managers
Index for June has increased to 51.3%, similar to the index registered in February, Dun & Bradstreet (DB) and the Association of Purchasing Managers announced yesterday.

The companies said the rise was mainly due to seasonal factors. DB said the index reflects an increase in local market consumption, especially in food and sum-mer products like air-condition-

The index is calculated according to ten components which are calculated as a percentage. A result above 50% reflects an improvement in performance. while a result below reflects a worsening in performance compared with the previous month. The rise in the June index reflected an increase in production output, which rose to 55.7% compared with 50% last month. The bigher index also reflected an increase in supply of raw materials, to 50% compared with 47.4% in May.

According to DB, the rise in production output was accompanied by a rise in local market orders. But foreign customer orders continued to suffer, falling to 47.4% compared with 64.5% in

Union Bank launches foreign residents service

GALIT LIPKIS BECK

UNION Bank has entered the international private banking field with the establishment of two centers, in Tel Aviv and Netanya, to serve the needs of foreign residents.

Yitzhak Merlin was appointed to head the division. which will operate with the assistance of sophisticated international data communication systems.

Noam Pintov, deputy general manager of the bank, said the centers are intended to offer foreign residents maximum investment opportunities in international markets, as well as portfolio management and exclusive credit cards. The bank intends to set up a mutual fund specifically for foreign residents once the capital market

"The services will be provided at full discretion. We will offer credit for real estate and other investments in Israel and also other financial services," be said.

The opening of the two centers is in the framework of Union Bank's strategy to compete in the private banking field, a sector which over the last few years has become popular with all of the Pintoy said the bank would compete with the large banks "both in type of services provided and professionally. Union Bank recently opened a center in Tel Aviv to offer local residents private banking services.

Nesher opens new Ramle cement plant despite slowdown

Jerusalem Post Staff

NESHER, the country's sole proment decided to go ahead with ducer of cement and a wholly plans for the facility in expectaowned subsidiary of Mashav, has invested $18 million in the construction of a new cement production facility at its factory io Ramle, despite the current slowdown in infrastructure projects.

Yesterday, the company reported it has completed construction of the facility, which has an annual production capacity of one million tons of cement. The new facility will increase Nesher's total cement production to seven million tons a year. Nesher general manager Yitzhak Davidi said the new facility is intended to supply all local demand for cement in the coming years. He said manage-tion of receiving a "record quantity of orders," despite the temporary slowdown in demand. The drop in demand led to a 5.6 percent erosion in cement prices in the first quarter. Nesher's sales are affected directly by the level of construction.

The cement facility was purchased from F.L.S., a Danish company which is considered among the most advanced in planning and establishment of facilities of this kind in the world. Nesher operates cement plants in Haifa, Ramle, and Har Tuv and is also engaged in imports. Mashav, its parent company, is jointly owned by Clal and Koor.

SILICOM Ltd.'s (Nasdaq) second-quarter net income jumped to $141,000 compared with $2,000 in the same period last year, the company announced yesterday. Second-quarter sales also soared, rising 72%

Spokesmen at the Kfar Sava-based company attributed the results to Silicom's having boosted sales in Europe and the US by beating the competition in bringing out the latest in high-speed connectivity products for linking portable computers to local area networks. The company's latest PC Ethernel card, which works at 100 megabits per second, is 10 times faster than its market predecessor, said Michael Cohen, the company's financial manager.

which combine hardware and software to enable portable computers, including notebook, laptop and hand-held computers, to interface with

טרגט TARGET (מטרה) Mutual Fund for Foreign Residents

Date: 24.7.96 Purchase Price: Redemption Price:

145.08 Purchase Price: 142.95 Redemption Price: לאנד כיא siq irmiel לאונד פיא aiq irma and the U.S., including property insurance. high-yielding U.S. government-backed Shouldn't you also have debentures. portfolio insurance? MEYERSON A Publish a Train! Company NASDAQ Symbol: MHMY If... Broken es Deuters in Securities Enforcesses the uncertainties of the stock market keep you from 30 Montgomery Street City, New Jersey 97302, USA you are afraid to sell stock you currently own because you believe it may rise in value Jeffrey E. Meyerson, V.P. you are considering purchasing a stock bur are 1-201-332-3313 concerned with downside risk... Fau: 1-201-352-1265 Retail Customer Inquiries: A protective put option can insure your stock position by Eric J. Logan, V.P. capping your downside without limiting your upside.

portfolio, call Douglas Goldstein, Director of Securities, at (02) 244-963, or send this coupon. Please contact me about insuring my portfolio. Name Address Phone (day) (cvening)

How does is work? What does this insurance cost? For answers to these and other questions about insuring your Past performance is no guarantee of future results. Qualified investors only CommStock Trading Ltd.

Ramat Gan: Beit Silver, 7 Abba Hillel, Tel. 03-575-8826/27

Jerusalem: City Tower, 34 Ben Yehuda, Tel, 02-244-965; Fax, 02-244-876

Send to Box 7777, Jerusalem 91077, fax. 02-244-876.

Want to keep in close touch with your securities till 11 PM? DIAL 03-5129111 FROM 8 AM TO 11 PM.

-201-332-4801 - 1-800-888-8118

Silicom's second quarter net income up

Success attributed to increased exports

COMPANY RESULTS JENNIFER FRIEDLIN

to $1.37m. from $797,000.

"Silicom has come out with a couple of innovative cards and we were the first out" with them, Cohen said, "Even though some of the compenuon has come out with some of the same [products] now as well, it's very good to be recognized as having been the first. It's good for a couple of bonus points."

The company, founded in 1987, is engaged in the design, manufacture, marketing and support of modular, miniature connectivity products

PRIME סרוים Mutual Fund for Foreign Residents 24.7.96 Date: 109.42

107.98

March and May, with an annual growth rate of 3% to 4%, similar FIBI to buy NIS 50m. in indexed gov't bonds GALIT LIPKIS BECK FIRST International Bank will hold a tender for the purchase from the public of NIS 50 million worth of index-linked state bonds today. This is the first time that any bank has invited the public to participate in a tender to sell it bonds. The tender is similar to the Bank of Israel's security net measure, which is based on the discriminating tender

The central bank's security net, which involves the purchase of inflation-linked bonds, was first introduced last week in an attempt to moderate the exceptional fluctuations in bond prices on the Tel Aviv Stock

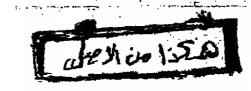

The bank said it will accept offers for the sale of Galil and Sagi bonds with a two- to four-year redemption period. The offers can be made until midday today.

SPATE MONEY MARKETS Patah (foreign currency deposit rates) (20.6.96) 3 MONTHS

Shekel Foreign Exchange Rates* (26.7.96) CHECKS AND

TRANSFERS BANKNOTES Buy Currency besket U.S. dollar German mark Pound starling French trace 3.5998 3.1924 4.9699 0.6368 2.9414 1.9251 2.6493 0.4859 0.5021 0.5022 0.7126 2.3209 2.5148 0.7185 2.0980 4.6700 4.0696 5.1716 3.24 2.04 0.65 2.99 1.96 2.50 0.57 0.57 2.36 2.65 1.07 2.13 4.67 0.97 4.8910 0,8264 2.8947 1.8945 2.6072 0.4781 0.5513 0.7012 2.2840 2.4748 0.7052 1.0318 Nonwegian krone Danish krone Finnish mark Canadian dollar Australian dollar S. African rand

2.5030 *These rates vary according to bank SOURCE: BANK LEUMI

Key Representative Rates

US dollar ... NIS 3.1680 --- %

Sterling NIS 4.9307 --- %

Mark NiS 2.1463 --- %

Precious

metals futures

close high

Acrive. technology, generating more than $200 million in annual sales, a number that will rise to $2 operators expected to invest HK$6b.

New telecommunications system planned

HONG KONG (Reuter) - The six operators licensed on Saturday to develop a new generation of mobile telecommunications services in Hong Kong are expected to invest an aggregate of HK$6 billion, government officials said. The Sino-Bridsh Joint Liaison Group tJLG), the diplomatic task force guiding the handover of Hong Kong to China in mid-1997, had spent more than a year thrashiog out differences over the award of the licenses for Personal in Hong Kong.

"We're talking of an investment of around HK$6 billion in aggregate over the next few years and will create more than 2,500 new jobs in the industry. Hong Kong's Secretary for Economic Services, Stephen Ip, told a news conference.

The PCS issue is just one of a host of subjects to have become tangled up in the often turbulent

Sino-British handover process. The licenses had been due to be awarded by the Hong Kong govemment in August 1995 but China vetoed that by insisting it needed the handover.

Stock indexes up in wake of expected interest rates drop TEL AVIV STOCK MARKET

FELICE MARANZ

183.10 Maof index Two-Sided Index

of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's party, told the Saechsische Zeitung Bonn should scrap more part-time work to give more people the chance of some training. as part of the government's austerity pro-Argentina ousts architect of economic plan

Sharp rise in east German unemployment looms

(ABMs) to west German Jevels by 2000.

Currently 1.16 million east Germans, or 15 percent of the workforce, are without a job. About 200,000 east Germans are io ABMs, compared to 75,000 in the west.

The total cost of the schemes is DM10 bil-lion annually. Finance Minister Theo Waigel plans to cut back ABMs in the east

Domingo Cavallo unpopular for cutting benefits COMMODITIES ROUNDUP

PRECIOUS metals futures closed higher on Friday with the price moves being made by midmorning and later trading being quiet. Silver received a boost on fund buying, and then moved higher as stops sent the September contract sharply higher.

August gold closed flat at $385.70. October platinum closed up $2.90 at $404.70 and September palladium closed up $0.15 at $132.50.

High grade copper futures closed lower as the market reacted negatively to an increase in stock levels on the London Metal Exchange. Traders had expected LME copper stocks to post another drawdown of approximately 2,000 to 4,000 metric tons, Instead they were increased to 226,775 metric tons. COMEX September copper futures closed down 115 basis points.

After one of the slowest days of trade in quite some time, wheat. found some activity to pressure the market to new session lows at the close, but corn condinued to lag, traders said. Sources said fund selling and the lack of friendly news pressured the wheat to new session and weekly lows, but short covering ahead of the weekend helped the nurket lo end in mid-

Corn futures closed lower, just above session lows. Although the market did make new weekly lows, it didn't have the same pressure on the market as did the wheat and soybeans and it produced the most quiet trade on the day. Sources said the weather this week is considered beneficial for pollinating corn crops and kept and September corn ended down

1.00 cent at $3.5000 per bushel. Fund selling pushed the soy complex futures lower just before the end of Friday's session, although mild short covering prevented the market from ending on its lows. Soybean futures closed sharply lower, with November settling just above the important support area of $7.25 at $7.26 1/4. Forecasters increased their chances for rain this past weekend in the Midwest, which may bave contributed to Friday's late fall,

December conon futures settled bigher after the market turned around to make day's highs on the close on buying that could have been prompted by concerns over two typhoons headed for growing areas in southeastern China, one analyst said. Speculator boying and probably light fund buying pushed the market to the session high of 73 cents, with the December contract closing up 38 points at 72.95. October world sugar futures settled bigher on the day on buying by commercial traders and speculators, traders said. The October contract settled 17 points higher at 11.90 cents after trading in a range of 11.68 to 11.94 cents. September coffee futures settled higher amid mixed trade, a floor trader said. Early speculator buying brought the contract higher, but commercial trade selling kept the price in abeyance. The September contract settled 110 points higher at $1.0405 after trading in a range of $1.0210 to September cocoa futures settled slightly lower on the day on spread trading, a floor trader said. London's dip on its close may have also lessened support for New York trading, he said. The September cocoa futures contract sertled $3 lower at $1.358 after trading in a tight range of $1,353 to $1,362.

Study: World grain land shrinking

WASHINGTON (Reuter) -Expanding cities around the world have helped shrink the acreage used per person for food production by 30 percent since 1950, a report by a Washington study group said on Saturday.

The Worldwatch Institute said the land used for grain production has fallen to 0.30 acres per person last year from 0.57 acres

The 1995 Seure was equivalent to about a quarter of an American football field or a sixth of a soccer pitch, the institute said in a report titled "Shrinking Fields."

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) -The man who was the father of Argentine President Carlos the so-called "economic miracle" that brought stability and growth Menem on Friday replaced to Argentina earlier this decade Economy Minister Domingo was the darling of foreign Cavallo, the architect of economic reforms, after clashing over investors, but was increasingly belt-tightening measures that drew widespread opposition. While praised abroad for ecounpopular at home for his unrelenting economic austerity during

BONN (Reuter) - Unemployment in east Germany could rise to over 30 percent if the Bonn government goes ahead with plans to cut back job creation schemes in the region, a Christian Democrat member of parlia-ment warned on Saturday.

Joachim Schmidt, CDU member for the east German state of Saxony and a member

Rumors he had clashed with nomic austerity that shrank infla-Menem on Wednesday and threattion from 5,000 percent five years ened to resign sent financial marago to below zero now, tough benefit cuts at a time of high unemkets reeling with investors fearing ployment has fuelled anger from the fiscal austerity plan would be the public, church, labor, and

Friday, after reports of his departure swept through the Argentine capital, the Buenos Aires stock market fell 4.1 per-

His dismissal came exactly two weeks after announcing deficitcotting measures that slashed family allowance benefits and abolished tax exemptions on food vouchers that are a key part of the pay packages of two million

The normally pro-Peronist CGT labor federation called a general strike for August 8, and thousands marched to the Plaza de Mayo square across from the presiden-tial palace on Friday to protest the measures.

You're a cadaver, Cavallo," Carlos Santillan, leader of the public sector workers union from the poor province of Jujuy, shouted to the crowd of thousands. minutes after Cavallo's dismissal was announced. An opinion poll this week showed more than 56 percent of Argentines wanted Cavallo out, little more than a year after Peronists won a landslide re-election on a combination of Cavallo's economics and Menem's charisma. Despite Cavallo and Menem's frequent clashes, theirs was seen as a marriage of convenience. Menem needed Cavallo to manage the economy, and the minister needed the president's political skills to be able to convince Argentines to take the bitter medicine he dished out.

Schmidt said cuts in support for the east

Saxony's economics minister, Kajo

Schommer, suggested in another newspaper interview that the firms that were employing people in ABM schemes could consider should depend on developments in the labor

Cavallo was the only member of the cabinet appointed by Menem when he first took office in 1989 to remain at the president's side for so long.

He was foreign minister until 1991, when he was moved to the Economy portfolio and launched the Convertibility Plan, which pegged the peso to the dollar to slash inflation: However, he has been unable to bring unemployment down - it is currently at 17.1 percent - and has been slow to drive Argentina out of recession.

Economists admire Menem and Cavallo for their dogged determination to show fiscal discipine. But their attempts to crack down on tax evasion, esomated at $24 billion a year or more than half the budget, have failed.

amid expeciations that the Bank of Israel will announce a 0.5 to 0.8 percentage point reduction in interest rates today, when it reveals its monetary policy for

STOCK indexes rose vesterday

The Maof Index rose 1.85% to 183.10 and the Two-Sided Index

rose 1.87% to 172.85. Of 989 shares trading across the exchange, nearly four times as many shares rose as fell. Some NIS 67.9 million worth of shares changed hands, NIS 24.1 m. below last Thursday's level and about NIS 5m. below this month's average daily trading level.

Gaining Maof-listed shares included banks. Bank Hapoalim rose 4.25%: Bank Leumi rose 3.5% and Israel Discount Bank rose 2.25%. To rein in inflation, the Bank of Israel has lifted the rate at which it lends to banks four times this year, most recently raising the rate 1.5% points to 17% on June 27.

Consumer prices rose a higher than expected 7% in the first six months of 1996, a rate that exceeds both last year's inflation and the government's target rate of 8% to 10% for the year. There are expectations that the Bank of Israel will cut interest rates," said Eitan Shtarkman, a fund manager at Rantat Ganbased Zeier Avlagon. Even so, he added, "a 0.5% to 0.8% cut isn't much of a decrease."

Share prices also gained after the Bank of Israel bolstered investor confidence by implementing a "safety net" to buy government bonds. Shtarkman said. Last Tuesday, the central bank bought NIS 250 million worth of long-term government bonds from provident funds, which manage partially tax-exempt savings accounts. The purchase created a floor for bond prices and helped the funds meet redemption orders.

Bank of Israel Governor Jacob Frenkel said the bank would implement the safety net as much as needed.

Increases in share prices "are a response to last week's bond announcements," said Shtarkman. "There's a sense that the provident fund situation is relaxing."

Japan, US still differ on insurance trade

Countries are striving to meet July 31 deadline

VANCOUVER (Reuter) - Japan and the United States remained far from a deal late on Friday to resolve a dispute on insurance after two days of talks, a US official said.

political opponents.

The presidency announced that

Cavallo, 50, a Harvard-trained economist, will be replaced by

Central Bank President Roque

Fernandez, who like Cavallo is a technocrat and who vowed to con-which is why I asked for his resignation," Menem told a news

Cavallo completed a phase.

tinue the free market reforms.

"We're far apart still," said the trade official, who declined to be identified. Japanese officials have also said that little progress was made in the talks in Vancouver. At issue in the talks is implementation of a

1994 bilateral agreement to open Japan's $382 billion insurance market. Washington accuses Tokyo of reneging on the agreement by moving to deregulate the , ty. any gains to a nunimum, the agreement by moving to deregulate the September, wheat closed down; personal aggident and health care insurance 9.25 cents at $4.3450 per bushel sectors dominated by American and European

Mortgage Barries

Name of the control o

companies. The two countries are negotiating in the hope of reaching a deal by the July 31 dead-line set last month by President Bill Clinton and Japanese Prime Minister Clinton and Japanese Prime Minister Ryutaro

While still hoping for a deal by the dead-line, officials said their two days of talks did not give them reason for increased optimism. Trade analysis have speculated that the dead-line could be pushed back, although officials said it was premature to discuss the possibili-

Ira Shapiro, a senior negotiator from the US Trade Representative's Office, is leading the firms before opening up the buge life and casu- US side. Eisuke Sakakibara, director-general alty insurance sectors dominated by Japanese of the Japanese Finance Ministry's internation-

TELAVIVSTOCKS

Trade & Services
Property, Bullding
Industrials
Name Price Scho
Tenned 102.50 0.5

al finance bureau, is Japan's top negotiator on

The two sides had further contacts on Saturday. Yesterday, they were due to begin discussing a dispute over trade in computer chips which is also supposed to be resolved by

Wednesday. Insurance will likely be discussed further over the coming days and when Japanese Trade Minister Shunpei Tsukahara and US Trade Representative Charlene Barshefsky meet tomorrow in Vancouver, officials said. The US official said some progress had been made on insurance in recent weeks but that Japan had been slow to offer proposals for "significant" deregulation of the life and casualty sector.

MORNING

0.3 12379
0.3 2127
0.3 2127
8.0 2127
8.0 157
8.0 152
2.0 2661
0.5 1700
2.2 220
2.2 220
2.3 84822
1.3 2545
0.5 4179
0.3 8825
0.5 15445
0.5 679
1.0 28332
1.5 1545
0.5 883
1.5 1506
0.5 1545
0.5 809
1.3 1684
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.5 1545
0.7 1087
0.9 185
0.9 185
0.9 185
0.9 185
0.9 185
0.9 185
0.9 185
0.9 185
0.9 185
0.9 185
0.9 185
0.9 185
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193
0.9 193

1.0

THE PEOPLE YOU CAN TALK TO.

ISRAEL DISCOUNT BANK

Two-sided trading

AFTERNOON

Microsoft to cede control of technology

SEATTLE (Reuter) - In an effort to dispel concerns generated in part by its vast industry power, Microsoft Corp. said Friday it would give up control of a key set of programming technologies.

Company executives said they would invite a group of customers, software developers, and other industry executives to meet to help determine a way to move control of the company's Active's technology to an independent

The technology, a set of standards that allows computer pro-grammers to create software applications out of small movable 'objects," is a key part of the Redmond, Wash.-based company's huge push to transform itself to focus on the Internet.

Microsoft has long boasted of its commitment to "open" standards, including its Windows operating systems as well the the ActiveX object-oriented technolo-

But executives at rival companies frequently point out that Microsoft's control of the standards it develops can give its own software developers an advan-

Moreover, Microsoft's position as the arbiter on whether products from rival companies meet its standards have sparked clashes in the past, and some big developers are reluctant to submit to Microsoft's approval process for fear of giving up trade secrets.

"We think we need to bring a into the picture and give them greater input as to the direction of said ActiveX. Fitzgerald, a program manager in Microsoft's Internet division. "Anybody who has qualms about Microsoft's ownership of the technology - those qualms hopefully will be addressed," he

He said Microsoft had never before given up control of such a large piece of intellectual proper. ...

Jesse Berst, editorial director for industry newsletter Windows Warcher, said the move illustrated Microsoft's rapid transformation in response to the Internet challenge. And he said the move could rival Netscape Communications Corp. on the defensive.

"It definitely clears the way for ActiveX to be more widely accepted in the broader community and for there to be less suspicion about Microsoft's ulterior mouves," Berst said.

At the same ome, Netscape has been raising eyebrows by adding proprietary extensions to its market-dominating Internet browser, he said.

This could be a case of Microsoft trying to appear more open than Netscape," he said. Microsoft said hundreds of companies sell products using billion by 2000, according to one bunch of those other stakeholders Six Hong Kong

Communications Services (PCS)

to approve all contracts straddling

The failure of giant Hong Kong Telecommunications Co Ltd -

57.5 percent held by Britain's Cable & Wireless Plc - to secure one of the six permits had raised

Speculation had been rife in Hong Kong's markets that the cool state of Sino-British relations in the lead-up to the handover may be hampering British companies bidding for large projects. Hong Kong Government officials declined to comment.

"I'm not going to buy into conspiracy theories. I don't think it is appropriate to single out nationality issues here." the director-general of Hong Kong's Office of Telecommunications (OFTA), Alex Arena, told the news confer-

The six chosen submitted the best proposals, Arena said. Anyone that had lost clearly ranked outside the six," Ip said he believed the six operators would begin their services in a matter of a few months....or maybe by early 1997." Each was awarded a 10-year operating license subject to a midterm review to ensure the licensee was fulfilling pledges made in the license lender.

License-holders require OFTA's permission to transfer the iv't bonds

:xports

June

Bailey sets world mark in 100m

OLYMPICS ROUNDUP

ATLANTA (AP) - Spurred on by determination that terrorist bombers must not win, the Olympics went ahead Saturday. The immediate reward was a world record 100-meter run of 9.84 seconds by Canada's Donovan Bailey.

But before Bailey claimed the title of world's fastest human, a capacity crowd of 85,000 in Olympic Stadium suw defending champion Linford Christie of Britain disqualified for two false starts. The race started seven minutes late after Christie at first refused to leave the track.

The enthusiastic crowd also saw a photo finish in the women's 100, with defending gold medalist Gail Devers edging Jamaica's Merlene Otley and American teammale Gwen Torrence. Devers and Olley both were timed in 10.94 and Torrence in 10.96. Before Devers, the last woman to repeal as Olympic 100 champion was Wyomia Tyus in 1964-68.

Another of the day's winners was British rower Steven Redgrave, who became only the fourth athlete to capture gold medals at four straight games.

Redgrave won his race while rain and heavy clouds were adding to the gloom after a bomb killed one person and injured more than 100 early 5aturday in a downtown park meant to bring the fun and spirit of the Atlanta Games to everyone. A Turkish relevision cameramen died of a heart attack while running to film the explosion's aftermath,

Quickly, heavily armed soldiers were deployed at competition sites. Tougher security checks caused delays and long lines as spectators put aside their fears and came out anyway. Patrols gave

ATHLETICS

Men 100 GOLD-Donovan Balley, Canada SILVER-Frank Fradericks, Nami BRONZE-Ato Boldon, Trinklad

SILVER-Jonathan Edwards, Britain BRONZE-Yoelbi Quesada, Cuba

Women 100 GOLD-Gail Devers, United States

Javeim GOLD-Heli Rantanen, Finland SILVER-Louise McPaul, Australia BRONZE-Trine Hattestad, Norway

SEVER-Meriene Ottey, Jamaica BRONZE-Gwen Torrence, United States

BEACH VOLLEYBALL

Women GOLD-Jackle Silva and Sandra Phres, Brazil SILVER-Monica Rodrigues and Adriana Samuel, Brazil BRONZE-Natalie Cook and Kerrl Pottharst Anst, CANGE-KAYAK

CANCE-KAYAK
Stalom Men Canoe Singles
GOLD-Michal Marūkan, Slovakia
SILVER-Lukas Polleri, Czech Republic
BRONZE-Patrice Estanguet, Franca
Wannen Kayak Singles
GOLD-Stepanka Hikgertuva, Czech Republic
SILVER-Dana Chladek, United States

BRONZE-Myriam Fox-Jerusalmi, France

Gail Devers of the US (right) storms across the finish line first, followed by Jamaican Merlene Ottey (center). Mary Onyali (left) finished seventh in a closely-contested 100m race Saturday. IAP)

extra scrutiny to suspicious objects reported at various places around the city. But there was general agreement with the decision that the games should go on.

Bailey broke the 100-meter record of 9.85 set by American Leroy Burrell in 1994.

Back at the main stadium,

Bailey, a Canadian born in overtook Frankie Jamaica, available as we went to press.

SATURDAY'S OLYMPIC MEDALISTS

BHONZE-Australia
Women Sprint
GOLD-Felicia Ballanger, France
SILVER-Michelle Ferris, Australia
BRONZE-Ingrid Haringa, Netherlands
DIVING Women Platform
GOLD-Fu Mingxia, China
SILVER-Annibu Walter, Germany
BRONZE-Many Ellen Clark, Unlined States

SILVER-David Weightman and Robert Scott,

Austrana BRONZE-Michel Andrieux and Jean-Christophe

BRONZE-Mitchel Andrieux and Jea Rolland, France Coxtess Four GOLD-Australia
SRLVER-France
BRONZE-Britain
Single Sculfs
GOLD-Xeno MiueBer, Switzerland
SRLVER-Derek Porter, Canada
BRONZE-Thomas Lange, Germany
Double Sculis
GOLD-Davide Tizzano and Abbagnale, Italy

three attempts.

Men Team Pursuit GOLD-France SILVER-Russia BRONZE-Australia

Israelis at the Olympics

WEIGHTLIFTER Vacislav Ivanovsky failed to advance in the 99kg category yesterday when he missed lifting 175ke in the snatch after Windsurfer Gal Friedman, who began the day third overall, was scheduled to compete yesterday in Savannah. However, the event was delayed by a lack of wind in the afternoon, and no results were Fredericks of Namibia, who took his second consecutive Olympic silver medal in 9.89. Ato Boldon of Trinidad won the bronze in 9.90. American Kenny Harrison set an Olympic record of 18.09m in winning the triple jump gold medal. Britain's Jonathan Edwards, the world record holder, won silver with 17.88.

With their two track and field golds Saturday, the Americans led

Norway BRONZE-Frederic Kowal and Samuel Barathey,

GOLD-Megan Still and Kate Sletter, Australia SILVER-Missy Schwen and Karen Kraft, US BHONZE-Christine Gosse and Helene Cortin,

Double Sculls
GOLD-Marole NicBean and Kathleen Heddle

BRONZE-frene Eljs and Eeka van Nes,

SHOOTING

Men Skeet
GOLD-Ennio Faico, Italy
SILVER-Mirostow Rzepkowski, Potend
BRONZE-Andrea Benali, Italy
Smell-Bore Raire 3-Posttion
GOLD-Jean-Plana Ansat, France
SILVER-Sergey Belizev, Kazolistan
BRONZE-Wolfram Waibel Jr., Austria
WEIGHT LIFTING

91kg (200.5 pounds) GOLD-Aleksey Petrov, Russia SILVER-Leonidas Kokas, Grece

BRONZE-Other Caruso, Germany

Silven-Silken Laumann, Canada BRONZE-Trine Hansen, Denmark

France Women Coxiess Pair

Post Sports Staff

Russia had 14 after weightlifter Alexei Petrov's victory in the 91kilogram division.

the overall gold standings with 18.

SPORTS

Petrov had won the 1995 world championships, but then tested positive for a banned substance. His lifetime suspension was lifted after a former girlfriend confessed to slipping the substance into his food. France had 10 golds thanks to three Saturday.

Olympic Medals Table Through Saturday

G S B Toj

United States	18	201058754104244100310023223222110000003111	7	45
Russia	184087753333333332222711111111	10	é	30
France	17	5	12	27
France China	Ř	ĕ	6	23
Australia	ž	7	10	24
Halv	ź	ź	Ĕ	18
Doland	ź	3	ž	12
Company	ູ	70	45	20
Germany	ູ	Ņ	15	20
Cuta	્ર	*	ź	17
nungary	ž	~	ž	٠ň
Japan	3	4	ž	9
South Korea	3	4	2	9
New Zealend	3	ij	!	Š
Iretand	3	Ŭ	1	4
Turkey	3	O	1	•
Canada	2	3	3	В
Beigium	2	Ī	2	5
Ukraine	2	0	3	6
South Africa	2	ō	1	3
8razii	1	2	4	7
Belarus	1	3	2	B
Romania.	1	2	3	- 6
Britain	t	2	2	5
Greece	1	3	0	4
Kazakstan	1	2	1	4
Finland	1	2	à	3
Czech Republic	1	1	ī	3
North Korea	1	1	1	3
Slovakia	,	ń	•	5
Virrostavia	i	ň	i	5
America	1	ň	ń	7
Conta Dica	;	×	×	- 4
Econolos	7	×	×	- 4
Cuitodand	:	×	×	- 4
Switzerand	ż	ŭ	4	,
Duigana	×	3	*	4
Spain	Ă	•	4	્ર
Austra	ŭ		!	2
Morway	ŭ	!	!	2
Sweden	0	1	. 1	2
Jamaica	. 0	1	ō	1
Nambia	, Ö.	j	761616315752211132314232010111110000421110007	. 1
Uzbekislan	- 0	· 1-	.ō	1.
Netherlands	0	0	7	7.
Denmark	0	0	1	1
Georgia	D	Ø	1	1
Australia Italiy Poland Germany Cuta Hungary Japan South Korea New Zealand Indexy Canada Belgium Ukraine South Africa Brazil Belanus Romania Britain Greece Kazalestan Finland Czech Republic North Korea Slovakia Yugoslavia Amania Costa Rica Ecuador Switzerland Bulgaria Spaln Austria Norway Sweden Jamaica Namibia Uzinekistan Netherlands Denmark Georgen Mexico	111110000000000000000000000000000000000	1.0000	1 1	450722482841099544856378654433322111117322221117111

YESTERDAY AT ATLANTA

Two athletes stripped of medals

化二甲烷二甲基磺胺邻亚磺磺基氯基磺胺

Two Russian athletes were stripped of their medals in swimming and wrestling after testing positive for drugs, the International Olympic Committee said.

Andrei Korneev, bronze medalist in swimming's 200-meter breaststroke, was disqualified after testing positive for the banned stimulant bromantan. Zafar Gouleiev, B Greco-Roman wrestler who won bronze in the 48-kilogram class, tested positive for the same substance and also was disqualified. AP

Denmark wins gold in rowing event Deomark won the Olympic gold medal in men's lightweight coxless fours with a time of 6 minutes, 9.58 seconds. Canada won the silver in 6:10.13. The bronze went to the United States io 6:12.29. AP

Swiss, Romanians tops in double sculls

Michael Gier and Markus Gier of Switzerland won the gold medal in the men's lightweight double sculls in 6 minutes, 23.47 seconds. Maarten van der Linden and Pepiin Aardewijn of the Netherlands won the silver in 6:26.48. The bronze went to Anthony Edwards and Bruce Hick of Australia in 6:26.69.

In the women's lightweight double sculls, Constantina Burcica and Camelia Macoviciuc of Romania won the gold medal with a time of 7:12.78. Teresa Z. Bell and Lindsay Burns of the United States won the silver in 7:14.65. The bronze went to Rebecca Joyce and Virginia Lee of Australia in 7:16.56. AP

Germany No. 1 in quad sculls
Germany won the gold medal in men's quadruple sculls with a time of 5 minutes, 56.93 seconds. The silver went to the United States in 5:59.10. The bronze went to Australia in 6:01.65. Germany was also tops in women's quadruple sculls with a time of 6:27.44. Ukraine was second in 6:30.36. Canada won the bronze Romania, Netherlands row to glory The Netherlands placed first in men's eight rowing with a ome of 5 minutes, 42.74 seconds. The silver went to Germany in 5:44.58.

The bronze went to Russia in 5:45.77. In the women's event, Romania was lops with a time of 6:19.73 seconds. Canada took silver in 6:24.05. The Belarus snatched the bronze in 6:24.44. AP

Pakistan pushes for victory

LONDON (Reuter) - Pakistan squandered what could prove a crucial chance io its push for victory in the first Test by dropping England captain Mike Atherion in a tense last session at Lord's yesterday.

in 6:30.38. AP

Atherton, who has the ability to save the game for England after Pakistan first innings 340 (Inzamem-ul-Haq 148, Sased Arwar 74)

England first irvings 285 (G.Thorpe 77, N.Knight 51; Rehman 450, Wagar 450)
Pakistan second linings (overnight 162-3)
Sased Arwar & Russell b Mulbally 88
Shedeb Kabir & Russell b Cork 33 jaz Ahmed Ibw b Cork Aushtaq Ahmed c Thorpe b Brown nzamam-ul-Haq c Eatham b Cork Salim Malik not out Wasim Akram not out Extras (b-4 lb-14 nb-1)

Total (or five wickets declared) 352
Fall of wickets 1-136 2-136 3-151 4-279 5-308
Bowling: Cork 24-4-86-3, Brown 16-2-60-1, Safstum 20-4-63-0, Multilly 30.2-9-70-1, Hick 7-2-16-0, Faltram 16-4-89-0. England sectorial inverge N.Knight Div b Wager Austrection not out Austream not out Extras (to-2 nb-1)

Total flor one wicked Fall of wicket: 1-14 Bowling (to date): Wasim Alvam 10-4-12-0, Wager 7-1-25-1, Mushing Ahmed 10-4-16-0, Rehman 6-2-18-D. Malk 1-0-1-D.

they were left facing an improbable target of 408 to win, was missed by wickerkeeper Rashid Lanf from a leg glance off pace-man Ata-ur-Rehman. England's captain, on 19 at that time, continued to resist stubbornly until the close on the fourth day when he was 24 not out and with Alec Stewart, unbeaten on 46, had steered his side to 74 for one. Today is the final day.

Hill wins German Grand

HOCKENHEIM. Germany (AP) - Damon Hill won the German Grand Prix yesterday in a tight battle, with Jean Alesi conting in second_ Hill needed just 1 hour. 21 minutes, 43.417 seconds to take the 45 lap race that saw a thrilling bartle between the winning Briton and Austrian Gerhard Berger, who was leading until his motor blew up with just three laps to go. The 35-year-old Hill, who has never won before at Hockenheim, now pulls even with local favorite Michael Schumacher to win his 20th Grand Prix in the Formula One auto racing competition.

The win also gives Hill 10 more points in the world championship standing, putting him at 73, ahead of his leammale Jacques Villeneuve, who came in third and now has 52 points.

Knicks sign veteran forward Buck Williams

THE New York Knicks' renovation project added another plank over the weekend with the signing of veteran free agent forward Bnck Williams to a multi-year contract

"Buck's a pro's pro. He is one of the classiest and most respected players in the NBA," general manager Ernie Grunfeld said in a release. "He will fit in very well with our club to add veteran depth to our front line. He's a very good rebounder and defender and has tremendous playoff experience, including two NBA Finals."

Terms of the deal were not announced.

BASEBALL SCOREBOARD

5ATURDAY'S NL RESULTS: Cincinnati 7, New York 5 San Francisco 7, Atlanta 5 Colorado 10, Chicago 6 Philadelphia 2, Pittsburgh 1 St. Lonis 6, Montreal 3 San Diego 20, Fiorida 12 Los Angeles 6, Houston 5 (11)

SATURDAY'S AL RESULTS: Baltimore 14, Cleveland 2 Texas 6, Chicago 4 (10) New York 5, Kansas City 4 Toronto 6, Oakland 4 California 7, Milwankee 0 Boston 9, Minnesota 5 Seaule 13, Detroit 7

The decision Post's Jewish Olympics Trivia Quiz will be held LIVE on Channel 1's IBA news. on Friday, August 2 at 4:30 pm. The winners' names will be published.

in the August 4 edition of The Jerusalem Post.

RATES

PRICES ARE AS FOLLOWS - All rates include VAT: Single Weekday - NIS 117 for 10 words FRIDAY AND HDLIDAY EVE - NIS 175.50 10 words (mirumum), each additional word NIS 17.55.
MDNDAY, WEDNESDAY and FRIOAY (package) - NIS 257.40 for 10 words
(mirimum), each addulonal word - NIS

25.74.
WEEK RATE (6 insertions) - NIS 351.00 for 10 words (minimum), each additional word - NIS 35.10 FDUR FRIDAYS (packaga) - NIS 444.80 for 10 words (minimum), each ad-444.80 lor 10 words (minimum), each additional word - NIS 44.46.
MONTHLY (24 insertions) - NIS 702.00

tor 10 words (minimum), each additional word - NIS 70.20. Rales are valld until 31.10.98. DEADLINES offices: Jerusalem - weekdays: 12 noon the day belore publication; for Finday and Sunday:

6 p.m. on Thursday. Tel Aviv and Haila - weekdays: 12 noon, 2 days before publication; for Friday and Sunday: 4 p.m. Thursday in Tel Aviv and 12 poon Thursday in Haifa. DWELLINGS General

WHERE TO STAY

SELECTION OF APARTMENTS and rooms for tourists throughout Israel. HA-VIVA. Tel. 02-244-415.

DWELLINGS Jerusalem

HDUSE AND GARDEN, 2 1/2 rooms, Rehavia, Jurnished, $1000. Tel. 02-736640.

RENTALS

BEAUTIFUL SELECTION OF 3-4 room spacious apariments available from August 1 and September 1. Furnished/un-lumished, long term, Talbieh, Rehavia, Nayot, Old Katarron, Gwat Oranim. From S850. EVA AVIAD REALTDB. Tel. 02-518404, Fax: 02-611729.

CENTRAL, DUIET, LUXURIDUS, 3 1/ 2 rooms, lulty equipped, short/long term irom Oct. 10. Tel/Fax: 02-630564.

HEART OF REHAVIA 2.5 rooms, cozily turnished, ground floor, small garder, 5700. Tel 02-422257 (NS).

JEWISH OUARTER, APT., 2 large rooms, patio, long-term, $800. Adeka, Tel. 052-575-183, 03-530-342(w), 03-635-

LONG TERM/ UNFURNISHED: Lev Rehavia: 4. luxurious; Abu Tor (Aminadav): 5, beautiful, Furnished: Givat Ora-nim: 4, beautiful duplex, terrace. T.A.C. Tal. 02-631764.

REHAVIA, 3.5, FURNISHED, balcony modern kuchen, air conditioning, 3rd floor, $950 Irom Sept. Tel. 050-235582 (NS).

TALBIEH, 4, FURNISHED, 1sl. gar-den, immediale until Occember. Tel. 02-617990.

DWELLINGS

Tizzang and

Jerusalem

SALES ARNDNA, UNDER CONSTRUCTION, built on Arab house, 4 and 8 rooms, high standards, magnificent view. Exclusive to AMBASSADOR. Tel. 02-618101.

BARGAIN! GIVAT HAMIVTAR, villa, 270 sq. m., view, garden, southern, immediate, $575,000. Exclusive to Shiran through ANGLD SAXON, Tel. 02-251161.

EFRAT " A GDOD PLACE TO LIVE." houses, cottages, apartments- new and second hand (also rentals). "Miriam Realty," Tel. 02-9931833.

EIN HEMED, NEW privata neighborhood in Jarusalam Hills, superb cottages/2 tamity homes, beautiful countryside. Tel. 050-407-169.

GERMAN COLDNY, 2, quiel, caniral, basement, garden, underground Immediate, "ISRABUILO" Tel 02-

GERMAN CDLDNY, 3, quiet, central, new building, parking, balconies. Imme-diale. "ISRABUILD" Tel 02-666571. GIVAT CANADA, TURNKEY apartment, sensational Jerusalem view, 4 + en-largement, privata entrance, Shiran exclu-sive through CORRINNE DAVAR, Tel. 02-

GREAT DPPDRTUNITY, WDLFage, parking, $495,000 " ISRABUILD", Tel. 02-665-571.

> SPECIAL FOR RELIGIOUS HAREDI AREA, GUSH 80, 5 gigantic rooms +

KIRVAT MOSHE, GOOD location 3 spacious and comfortable, must sell! Keys at NARKISS REALTY AND INVEST-MENTS, Tel. 02-249249.

KIRYAT SHMUEL, 4, SPACIDUS and quiel + dinette + terraces + view of Knes set + elevator, BEN ZVI, Tel, 02-630066. LAST DPPDRTUNITYI ARNONA, 4 rooms, 1st lloor, elevetor, storeroom, 2 balconies, Excellent location! Keys with ABU TOR REALTY, Tel. 02-734-207.

MUST SELL! KIRYAT SHMUEL, 4, 1st floor, renovated, closets, balcony with a view, parking, $282,000, exclusive to Shiran through ANGLO SAXON. Tel. 02-

OLD KATAMON, IN renovated neigh-borhood! 3, ground floor, excellent condi-tion + balconias. Pariect for investment and/or elderly, must sell this week! TZI-

PENTHDUSE, EXCELLENT LOCA-TION, new building, marvelous view, lutly lumished. Tel. 050-407169.

RAMAT ESHKDL (RAMAT HAGO-LAN), a findf 4, 3rd floor, neat and well-lit, $206,000. Shiran exclusive through IDAN, Tel. 02-734834.

RAMAT ESHKOL, MEVD TIMNAH. (4 rooms). 120 sq.m., 2nd Roor, must sell. Excusive to Shiran through AM GAR. Tel.

WEIGHTLIFTING

REHAVIA, PRIME LOCATION, will sell either 280 sq.m. (net), or 1 180 sq.m. (net), 7 steps. Tat. 050-284175, 03-5379918.

RAMAT SHARET, DIRECT from buildert No agentsi 5 + storeroom + balconies parking + prestigious finish + anormous garden. $430,000. Tel. 02-462-7059. SHA'AREI HESED, DNE storey + building rights. Across from Knesset. No agents. Tel. 02-377-386.

WHERE TO STAY JERUSALEM LDDGES LTD. * Short lern rentals * Bed and breakfast * P.O.Box 4233, Jerusalem 91044, Tel. 02-611745, Fax: 02-618541.

THE JERUSALEM INN at the City Center - Double or large lamby rooms, prv. battroom, T.V.Tat, quality furnished. Tet. 02-252-757, Fax 02-251-297.

Tel Aviv

HOLIDAY RENTALS

DWELLINGS

BEAUTIFUL HOLIDAY APARTMENTS tourists/businessmen, short/long term. "Dynami," Tel. 03-5-68003, Fax: 03-5469867.

BEAUTIFUL APTS/SUITES Gan Ha'in near sea, tourists/ businessmen, short/ long-term, Tel. 03-6969092, 050-358-972.

RENTALS AZOREI CHEN, 5 rooms, furnished

luxurious, fully equipped new kitchen quet, immediate, Tel. 03-699-1206. BAVLI, 3, EXCLUSIVE, FULLY lurnished, elevator + parking, $850. Tel. 03-

FOR TOURISTS! NORTH Tal Aviv, furnished room, immediate availability. Tel. 03-604-9344.

OPERA TOWER, EXCLUSIVE!! Furmished/unlumished apartments, long/ short-term. KAV-HAYAM, Tel. 03-523-

RAMAT AVIV GIMMEL. beautiful 5 rooms + balcony, $1400, long term. YAEL REALTOR (MALDAN), Tel. 03-6426253. TOURISTS/RESIDENTS, LOVELY FURNISHED apartment, air condition near Dizengoff, sea. Tel. 03-699-1157.

SALES

NEVE AVIVIM, 5 ROOMS, AC, study, fixtures. Tal. 050-565980, 03-5106891, 03-5100-22/9

DWELLINGS Sharon Area RENTALS

HERZLIYA, BEAUTIFUL MODERN

penthouse, 5, quiet straet, elevator, Realtor (IAaldan). Tel. 03-6425253.

RA'ANANA, EXCLUSIVE LOCATION, new cottage 250/300 sq. m. Many extras. Immediate. "King David" Real Estate. Tel. 09-7744561. SALES

ASSIFIEDS

CAESAREA, NEW HOUSE , 300 sq. m. built of 550 sq. m. of land, corner, swir ming pool, enclosed parking, beautifi Available 9/96. Tel. 08-343777.

CAESAREA- COTTAGE DN larga block of land. Tel. 08-363288. DWELLINGS Halta and North

SALES

MAGNIFICENT BEACH FRONT APARTMENT, Beach Towers, 3 + balco-ny, Regba kitchan + appliancea, appor-ture 1 Tet. 04-8261210/ 052-419104. REALTY

> General PLOTS

FRDM PRIVATE, PITUAH ZICHRON YAAKOV, plots are being plasmed in land release scheme + tabu. $10,000 + payments. Tel. 03-5257889/70, 04-864082. SERVICES Tel Aviv COUNSELING/HEALING

FOR A HEALTHY 200Y & a happy mind, have a professional massage of shietsu. Tel. 03-5602328.

SITUATIONS VACANT Jerusalem

GENERAL

REOVIRED, HIGHLY CAPABLE

graphic designer, fluent Freehand, Photo-shop, Pagemaker, PowerMac. Tel. 02-SITUATIONS VACANT Tel Aviv

CARPENTERS SEEKING PRDFESSIONAL CAR-PENTER for dynamic studio, min. 2 years expenence. Tel. 03-6634871, Ruin or

GENERAL DANISH, GERMAN + GREEK, speak

HOUSEHOLD HELP FORGET THE REST!! We are the best!! The biggest and oldest agency in Israel. For the highest quality inve-in jobs phone Au Pair International, 03-8190423.

ers wanted! High salary! Call Sigal, tel. 03-5758255.

IMMEDIATE JOBS AVAILABLE, friendless families, best conditions, the agency with a heart for the Au Paire. Call Hisma Tel. 03-9659837.

IMMEDIATELLI S700 + ROOM AND board for pleasant, mature au pair, per-manent position. Tel. 03-5234086.

HOUSEKEEPER, CODKING, 5 DAYS a week, good conditions, live-out. Tel. 03-6420251.

HOUSEKEEPER WITH EXPERIENCE

+ live-In, central region, good conditions, + Filipinos for the elderly. Tel. 03-68898 68-SEEKING SERIDUS, RESPONSIBLE au pair for housework + 1 child, live-in. Tel. 03-8294099:

WARM FAMILY SEEKS South Airican au-pair, live-in, central Tel Aviv, 5750 + 200 NIS, immediata bonus. Tel. 03-6201195. 052-452002

OFFICE STAFF ENGLISH SPEAKER, 5 days, full-time, computer knowledge. Tel 03-544-2323(Benny/llane).

EXPERIENCED SECRETARY/WP. ENGLISH mother tongue, fluent He Tel. 03-673-2000.

TRANSLATOR HEBREW-ENGLISH, INCLUDING typing. Half time job. Preference to a candidate with experience in Insurance. Apply to P.O. Box 2033, Tel Aviv, 61019.

TEACHERS

ENGLISH SPEAKER, PART-TIME, for Kindergarien, Ramat Aviv area. Tel. 03-6417775. TRANSLATORS

EXPERIENCED TRANSLATOR FROM Dutch to Hebrew or the opposite, for technical material. Prefer Permanent Army. Send resume to Translator, POS 25499 Tel Aviv.

SITUATIONS VACANT Sharon Area

HOUSEHOLD HELP

GCOD COOK, IN Herzliya Pituah, once a week (Wed.). Tel. 09-576420. SEEKING FILIPIND AU-PAIR, live-in, in Netanya, good conditions. Tel. 08-

PURCHASE/SALES General

FOR SALE

CASH! WE purchase gold, diamonds, coms, watches, antiques. Tel. 03-510-6769, 052-502809... PURCHASE WE PURCHASE ANTIQUES, old furniture, and household conter 6831724; Home: 03-888191.

PURCHASE/SALES Jerusalem

ADMIRAL 10 KG. clothes dryer, brand new, unused, unopened and untouched top of the lone. Tel/Fact 02-537132 (NS).

FOR SALE

MISCELLANEOUS

Outside Israel

LOTTERY LOTTO AUSTRALIAN POWERBALL, scratch tickets, (this offer is void where prohibited by law), multi-millions, world's best - since 1985. Free brochures, A.L.S., GPO Box 7A, Melbourne, 3001, Australia. Fax: +81-3-95272088.

VEHICLES

General

UNRESTRICTED PEUGEOT. 306XT, AUTDMATIC, red, 1995, 7,2000 km. Tel. 02-610-205, or Mon + Thurs. 03-575-8636.

VEHICLES Jerusalem.

MOTORCYCLES SUZUKI GS 500E, 1992, red, 39000 km., + carrier, side guards alarm. Excelent condition. Tel 02-9991557 (H), 02SUZUKI 500 CC, 1993 for sale, excel-lent condition. Tal. 02-631266, 02-UNRESTRICTED

ARIE PALDGE - QUALITY CARS: buying, setting, leasing, trading. Tel. 02-6523735, 050-240977. VEHICLES

Tel Aviv

PASSPORT MITSUBISHI GLXI, SUPERLANCER, station, 1998, N.I.S. 48,000. Tel. 03-5334023 (NS).

VDLVO, 855, 1995, atation, 7 seats, 35,000 km. Must sall to Oleh. Tal. 03-6991269.

onaice. Drive Carefully

......................... Real Estate & Investments in Israel 1996

Just before Rosh Hashana The Jerusalem Post will-publish special supplements, devoted to real estate and investments in Israel.

The supplements will be published in the International Edition of August 12, 19 & September 2 and in the daily paper on September 13

For more information and to advertise in these supplements, please contact: Udi Bash 03-6390333 Fax: 03-6390277

HISTORY

JERUSALEM

in the heart of TALBIEH stands an historic home of artistic, architectural splendor with breathtaking views of the old and new city. Two luxurious, spacious, modern apartments with classic old-world charm and all amenities

100 meter living/dining room...ideal for dignitaries, embassy, personal or corporate 253 sq. m. -$1,395,000; 203 sq. m. -$1,245,000

For Inquirles: Arthur J. Calm Tel/Fax: 972-2-665-654

WHAT'S ON

TELEVISION

6:30 News 6:45 Exercise Hour 7:00 Good Morning Israel 7:30 Atlanta '96

8:00 Animais 8:30 Barak the Wonder Dog 9:00 Geya, Gal and Gili 9:15 Kalimaru 9:30 The Little Memaid 10:00 Little Women – animated version 10:30 Vacation Studio 13:00 Animais 13:35 Kalimaru

13:50 Atlanta '96 16:59 A New Evening 17:32 Heartbreak High 18:15 News in

19:31 Adanta '98 20:00 Mabat News 20:45 Summer with Dan Margatt - new current aftars five interview program 22:00 Atlanta '96 00:00 News 00:05 Atlanta '96 till 6:30

10:00 National Geographic nature films
11:00 Hanan and Natan (rpt) 11:30 Tnck or Treat (rpt) 12:00 Tush-Tush 13:00 A Matter of Time 13:30 The Fresh Prince of Bel Air (rpt) 14:00 Ttck Tack 14:30 Alf Together Now
15:00 Super Duper 15:30 Make a Wish 16:00 The Bold and the Beautiful 17:00 News magazine with Raif Reshef 17:30 Half the Tribe 18:00 Santa Barbara 19:00 Baywatch
20:00 News 20:30 Mr. Bean — British correcdy series 21:05 it's a Deal 21:40 Klezmer Festival — Sive broadcast from Safed 22:40

dy series 21:05 it's a Deal 21:40 Klezmer Festival - live broadcast from Safed 22:40 My Friend Robert - Israeli drama filmed in New York 23:45 Stags 00:00 News 00:05 Stags, continued 00:15 Trouble in Mind (1985) - Futuristic melodrama about en excop who gets himsell involved with a bunch lidds whore just come to the big city. Starring Kris Kristofferson and Lori Singer. (111 mins.) 2:10 On the Edge of the Shelf

15:03 Bonkers 15:30 Here's Lucy 15:55 Olympic Games 19:00 News in Franch 19:10 Olympic Games 22:00 News in English 22:20 Olympic Games 8:35 Closedown

8:00 TV Shop 14:00 The 700 Club 14:30

8:00 TV Shop 14:00 The 700 Club 14:30 Knickerbocker Holiday (1944) — a printer in New York provokes the public to fight for their rights. Stairing Nelson Eddy, Charles Coburn and Shelley Winters. (85 mins.) 16:05 Urban Pessants 16:30 Dennis the Menace 16:55 Mask 17:20 Poppless 17:45 Magnum 18:40 The A-Team 19:30 World News Tonight (Arabic) 20:00 CNN Headline News 20:30 Top Cops 20:55 Extreme 21:45 Snowy River 22:25 The 700 Club 23:05 Larry King Live 00:00 TV Shop 2:00 Quantum Shopping 3:00 TV Shop

CABLE

16:00 Cartoons 16:30 Zohara and the

WHERE TO GO Notices in this feature are charged at NIS28.08 per line, including VAT. Insertion every day of the month costs NIS620.65 per line, including VAT, per month.

Conducted Tours
HEBREW UNIVERSITY, Tours of the Mount

Scopus campus, in English, daily Sun-Thur, 11 a.m. from Brodman Reception. Centre, Sherman Administration Bidg. Buses 4a, 9, 23, 26, 28, For into, call 882818,HADASSAH, Visit the Hadassah installations, Chagall Windows, Tel. 02-416333, 02-776271.

Museums
TEL AVIV MUSEUM, Susan and Anton Roland-Rosenberg Collection 24 master-pieces by modern artists, Fauvism, Wild Beasts, Josef Beuys: Drawings and Objects, Prints: new acquisitions, New Horizons: Sculptura. Yaacov Dorchin: Blockad Wall, Face to Face. The Museum Collections, HELENA RUBINSTEIN PAVILION FOR CONTEMPORARY ART, I Am Vivu Artist Artists Artists Violence: 20 posters.

You Arists Against Volence: 20 posters. Hours: Weekdays 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Tue. 10 a.m.-10 p.m. Fri. 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Sat. 10 3 p.m. Meyerhoft Art Education Center, Tel. 6919155-8.

HAIFA WHAT'S ON IN HAIFA, dial 04-8374253.

GENERAL

ASSISTANCE

English ARABIC PROGRAMS 18:30 Sports Magazine 19:00 News

E CHANNEL 1

EDUCATIONAL TV

CHANNEL 1

CHANNEL 2

JORDAN TV

M MIDDLE EAST TV

■ ITV 3 (33)

JERUSALEM

TEL AVIV

Arabic HEBREW PROGRAMS

playing in local theaters.

Zohar and singer Lolik (who's in the free shows too), at 8:30 p.m., and Once There Was a Hasid's

Song at 9:30 p.m in the Seraya, and the Reim Duo

FILM FESTIVAL

HELEN KAYE

ISRAELI film fans need to look for those words

in the film calendars because the Blue & White

Council and the Israeli Film Foundation have joined forces for a two-month Israeli Film Festival in local movie theaters. Featured movies include classics like Casablan and Sapiches, later hits like Banot, award winners like Tcl Aviv-Los Angeles of Lovesick in Ramat Aviv Gimmel and current hits like Gila Almagor's Under the Domin Tree. See the film of your choice for half

DANCE

HELEN KAYE

SARA Levi-Tanai created the Inbal Dance

Theater and a totally new dance language, influenced by her Yemenite heritage, to give expression to Hebrew/Israeli dance. The Inbal Ethnic the price of a regular ticket.

with Uzi Hitman over at Allon House at 9.

KLEZMER

HELEN KAYE

OLD Safed will swing tonight as underway. Choose from among Shuli

Natan and the

Makoya Choir,

Hasidishe Blues

from Jimmy

Lloyd, and groups

like the Budapest

Klezmer or Bres-

lav Klezmer; and

Yiddish Blucs

from Paris. Hourly shows from 6:30 p.m. If you miss someone first time around, you'll get them the second, and it's free. Ticketed shows are Once There

clarinetist Israel

Festival

Klezmer

gets

CRITIC'S CHOICE

'Under the Domim Tree' is among the offerings at the Israeli film festival at 8:30 p.m.

Center presents her reconstructed Song of Songs and The Book of Ruth in a salute to Levi-Tanai.

Tomght at Inbal Hall in the Suzanne Dellal Center

CLASSICAL MUSIC

MICHAEL AJZENSTADT

THERE are only two more opportunities to enjoy the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra's delightful presentation of Lehar's The Merry Widow conducted with style and panache by Zubin Mehta and with a first-rate group of singers headed by the extraordinary Simon Keenlyside as Danilo,

Silvana Dussmann as the woman who loves him and Edith Lienbacher and Sebastian Reinthaller as the lovers who try to enjoy life as much as they can. This is one of the most memorable IPO evenings of the season and no one should miss it

- either tonight or Thursday at the Mann

The summer program of the Israel Vocal Arts

Institute continues tonight with a masterclass given by John Norris at the Enav Center in Tel

Aviv. The rest of the week's master classes are at the Israel Music Conservatory in Tel Aviv and are presented by program director Joan Domemann tomorrow, and legendary mezzo-soprano Mignon Auditorium in Tel Aviv. 8:30.

Dunn on Wednesday, All at 7.

15.45m

dill win

Germand Grand Prix

ين ۱۰

 $\{a_i\}_{i=1}^n$

Knicks sig

veteran form

Buck Willia

COREBOARD

7 (4 77) 242 77.65

1 - 1 - 13

Yelke

100 mm 100 m 100 mm 100 mm

rusulem pat

And the second s

STATE OF THE STATE

See Street See Section of

A THE STATE STATES

.....

■ SECOND SHOWING (6)

BBC WORLD

News on the flour 6:00 World Headlines 5:05 The Money Programme 7:00 News Irom the Olympic Games 10:15 The Money Programme (pt) 11:30 Top Gear (pt) 12:30 Time Out: Food and Dmik (pt) 15:05 Correspondent (pt) 16:15 World Business Report 16:30 Asia-Pacific Newshour 17:30 The Contenders - Atlanta 96 (pt) 18:15 The Money Programme (pt) 19:30 Tomonow's World (pt) 20:00 World News and Olympic Report 22:05 The Money Programme (pt) 22:50 Earth Report 23:30 Time Out: Summer Holiday 00:00 World Business Report

ECNN INTERNATIONAL

News throughout the day 6:30 Financial Report 7:30 Diplomatic License 8:30 Global View (rpt) 9:30 World Sport 11:30 CNN Newsroom 12:30 Headine News 13:00 Business Day 14:00 Asian News 15:30 Business Asia 16:00 Larry King Live 17:30 World Sport (rpt) 16:30 CNN Computer Connection 21:00 World Business Today 21:30 World News 22:00 Larry King (rpt) 23:00 European News 00:00 World Business Today (rpt) 00:30 World Sport 1:00 World Business Today (rpt) 00:30 World Sport 1:00 World News Survey

RADIO

22:00 The Clockmaker (1973, French) - An exterly waichmaker discovers that his son and grifteent have murdered the local tackny manager. Starring Philippe Novet and Jean Rocheton. The first film by director Bertrand Tavemer. (1903 mms.) 23:45 The Silence (1963, Swedish) - The third in lagmar Bergman's Inlogy on faith. The film locuses on two sisters staying in a small hotel in Northern Europe: one a frustrated, introvened lesban; the other, a Irise-lowing mother of a 10-year-old boy. With lingrid Thulin and Gunnel Lindblom. (85 mins.)

22:00 The Clockmaker (1973, French) - An

■ DISCOVERY (8)

6:00 Open University 12:00 Human and Neture (rpt) 13:00 Beyond 2000 (rpt) 13:30 Ulrascience (rpt) 14:00 Open University 16:00 Human and Nature (rpt) 17:00 Beyond 2000 (rpt) 17:30 Ultrascience (rpt) 18:00 Open University 20:00 The American Caesar: The Last Shogun — senes on MacArthur 21:00 Ruby Wax 21:30 Taste of Africa 22:00 Satellite Wars 22:40 American Caesar (rpt) 23:30 Open University

SUPER CHANNEL

STAR PLUS

8:00 Sisters (pt) 9:00 One Life to Live (pt) 9:45 The Young and the Resiless (pt) 10:30 Days of Our Lives (pt) 11:20 Perla Negra (pxi) 12:10 Negra (pxi) 12:10 Negra (pxi) 12:35 Dallas (pt) 13:30 Starting at 1:30 14:05 21 Jump Street 14:55 Sisters 15:50 Days of Our Lives 16:40 Neighbors 17:10 Dallas 18:00 One Life to Live 18:45 The Young and the Restless 19:30 WKRP in Circumstitution Perla Negra 20:50 Marmed with Children 21:15 The Nanny 21:40 Mad About You 22:05 Hope and Glora 22:30 Murphy Brown 23:20 Frzser 23:45 Metrose Place 00:45 Sweet Justice 1:25 Rose O'Neill 8:00 The Selma Scott Show 7:00 Europe 2000 7:30 ITN News Live 8:00 Today 11:00 European Money Wheel 16:00 Wall Street Morrang Report s17:00 US Money Wheel 18:30 FT Business Tonight 19:00 ITN News 19:30 Talking to David Frost 20:30 The Selma Scott Show 21:30 Dateline 22:30 ITN News 23:00 Sport Magazine 00:00 The Best of the Tonight Show with Jay Leno 1:00 The Best of Late Night with Conan O'Bnen 2:00 The Best of Later with Greg Kinnear MOVIE CHANNEL (4)

Unknown Man 17:15 Panorama 18:00 Amores 19:00 News in Arabic 19:30 Doctors Talk 20:00 Malban News 20:45 On Ne Badine Pas Avec L'Amour - classic French Illim set in the 19th century. Members of a noble farmly which has fallen on hard times by to settle in with relatives whom they have not seen since childhood. [87 mlns.] 22:15 Adventures and Challenges 23:25 Lazz into the Night.

15:30 Vacation Time 18:00 Alpine Academy 18:30 Family Relations 19:00 Basic Arabic 19:30 Peterson 20:00 A New Evening (with Russian subtrities) 20:30 Welcome to France 21:00 Medicina Demystified 21:30 Fat Chance – Crimorically Description Biological September 19:00 August 19:00

overweight Rick Zakovatch forms a support group 22-15 Gonna Get Out — short film about claustrophobia 22-30 Star Trek — The Next Generation 23:15 Mother and Son

23:25 Jazz into the Night

FAMILY CHANNEL (3)

■ ETV 2 (23)

11:30 Crazy Salari III (1991) - South African correcty. Aliens end native Alincans continue to study one another (24 mins.) 13:15 The Second Woman (1951) - mystery and romance intertwined (81 mins.) (pt) 14:50 A Bear Named Arthur (1992) (pt) 16:25 Non Ci Resta Cho Pianger (1991, Italian) - a leacher and e servant travel back in time to 1492 and try to prevent Columbus from discovering America (107 mins.) 18:10 Movie News 18:25 Street of Dreams (1989) - a private eve falls in of Dreams (1988) — a private eye falls in love with a beautiful stranger and investigates the murder of her husband, a notorious Hollywood mogul (90 mns.) 20:00 Sarafina! (1992) — Musical about a teacher Sarafina! (1992) – Musical about a teacher in Soweto under apartheri, who teaches subjects forbidden by law. With Whoopi Goldberg, Leleti Khumalo, Directed by Darrell James Rooth. (111 mins.) 22-00 Malice (1993) – life in a sleepy college town is disturbed by a rapist. The dean has to deal with student panic, plus an III wife end a young surgeon who moves into their house, With Alec Baldwin, Nicole Kidman, Bill Pullman. (105 mins.) 23-50 It's Nothing Personal (1992) (rpt) 1-25 Child of Rage (1992) (rpt) 3-00 Leihal Lolida (1992) – teenage attempted murderess in suburbia (89 mins.) (rpt)

CHILDREN (6)

JERUSALEM

Decison 11 a.m., 7:15 TEL AVIV

6:30 Cartoons 8:05 Maya the Bee 8:35 Mot 9:00 Detective Hush Hash 9:40 Avenger Penguins 10:15 The Children Irom Oz 10:50 VR Troopers 11:25 Family Ties 12:05 The Ren and Stimpy Show 12:45 Animaniacs 13:30 Harry and the Hendersons 13:30 Hugo 14:00 Chiquittas 14:50 Looney Tunes 15:10 Comic Strip (rpt) 16:45 The Children trom Oz (rpt) 16:45 The Children trom Oz (rpt) 16:55 The Ren and Stimpy Show (rpt) 18:30 Harry and the Hendersons (rpt) 19:00 Hugo (rpt) 19:30 Three's Company 20:00 Married with Children 20:25 Roseanne 20:50 The Ren and Stimpy Show 21:05 Big Brother Jake 21:30 Drop the Dead Donkey

CINEMATHEQUE Undernose 5 * Labor

Crieman Heade Unernose 5 * Labor Pains 7 * Dreams of Innocence 7 * Personal Goels 9:30 Black Spot in the Desert 9:30 G.G., Gil., Jerusaleim Mail (Mains) * 788448 Mission Impossible 11 a.m., 1:30, 4:30, 7:15; 9:45 * Fipper 11

8:00 Aerobics 5:30 Namy and the Professor 7:00 Mr. Betvedera 7:30 Cooking Secrets of the CIA 8:00 Video Fashion News 8:30 Gabrielle 9:30 Santa Barbara 10:30 The Bold and the Beautilut 11:00 Oprah Wintrey 12:00 Remington Steele 13:00 Cooking Secrets of the CIA 13:30 Video Fashion News 14:00 Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles 14:30 Black Beauty 15:00 Lost in Space 18:00 Home and Away 16:30 Charles in Charge 17:00 Mf A'SH 17:30 Striker - detective series 19:30 The Bold and the Seautilut 20:00 Santa Barbara 21:00 The Twilight Zone 21:30 Hearts Alire 22:00 Grace Under Fire 22:30 Barnaby Jones 23:30 Videotashion News 00:00 Oprah Wintrey 1:00 Hooperman 1:30 Home and Away 2:00 The Sullivans

8:30 Bodies in Motion 7:30 Basic Training 18:00 Bodies in Motion 18:30 Dangerous Games (rpt) 17:00 Game To Order. Israeli basketball (rpt) 18:00 Soccer 19:00 Oangerous Games 18:30 Hot Wheels 20:00 Horses - youth league championship (rpt) 20:30 Gillette's World 21:00 Indycar racing 22:00 Larger Than Life - sumo wrestling 23:00 Game to Order: English Soccer 00:00 Baseball - Game of the

8:45 Olympic Gymnastes (rpt) 7:00 Good Morning Atlanta 7:30 Olympic Track and Field 8:00 Good Morning Atlanta (rpt) 8:30 Good Morning Atlanta (rpt) 9:00 Olympic Gymnastes (rpt) 10:00 Olympic High Jumping 11:00 Olympic Track and Field (rpt) 13:00 Team Sprit - team sprits 14:00 Group Gymnastics (rpt) 15:00 Olympic Track and Field (rpt) 15:30 Olympic Track and Field (rpt) 15:30 Olympic Track and Field (rpt) 15:30 Olympic Volleyballive 21:30 Olympic High Jumping 22:00 Olympic News Summary 22:30 Olympic Track and Field (rpt) 23:00 Olympic Weight

■ VDICE OF MUSIC

6:08 Moming Concen 9:05 Michael Doherty: Metropolis symphony (Baltumore SO/Zinman); Colin MicPhee: Tabuh-Tabuhan: contemporary works 12:00 Light Classical – works by Schumann, on the 140th anniversary of his death; Inst movement of Piano concene in A minor (Luput; Toccata in C (Horowitz); Scherzo Irom Symphony no 3 "Fihrenish" (cond. Rahbani): excepts from Album für die Jugend (Vardi); March Irom Camaval; first movement Irom Symphony no 1 (cond. Rahbani) 13:00 Claudio Arrau, piano – Schumann: Kreisleriana; Albeniz: Ibena book 1 14:06 Encore 15:00 Cycle of Works – Beetroven's piano sonatas 18:00 Early music 17:00 Voice of Music in Upper Galilee – Irve broadcast from Klar Blum. Works by Joachum Raff, Hermann Goetz, Goldmark, Reinecke, Clara Schumann ±18:30 Evening Sounds 18:30 Voice of Music in Upper Galilee – live broadcast from Klar Blum. Cate Concent ±20:15 Evening Sounds 20:30 Voice of Music in Upper Galilee – live broadcast from Klar Blum. Cate Concent ±20:15 Evening Sounds 20:30 Voice of Music in Upper Galilee – live broadcast from Klar Blum. Bach: Choral Prelude; Beethoven: Grosse Fuge ±23:00 Sounds to End the Day

EKDZ4Z

CRYPTIC CROSSWORD

ACROSS

8 Maybe a source of information for me (4) 9 Trick by bowler in Derby, say (3)

Scripture (6)
11 Kid that bites? (6)

10 A major departure from

12 Paper to watch-The Scotsman (8)

13 Office girl, thirty, hands post to be sorted (9,6) 15 Hononis can't be even after this match (4-3)

17 After midweek, get engaged for marriage (7) 20 With which one bristles with purpose (8,7)

23 Discoloured limb shows

26 Frequent some open land

25 Formidable man equal to 27 Start in the middle, Jack

28 Time to take our journey

two sailors (6)

DOWN

surely? (6,2,7)

large shop (10,5)

1 Fairly splendid result (6)

2 All women do (3,5) 3 French launch God movement-not here

4 Mounting scaffolding (7) 5 Raging storm penetrated

7 A crazy person rejected this fish (4) 14 Almost indisposed (that is ..

6 Delay to exhibit (4,2).

spelled correctly) (3) 16 What a story Juliet could reveal (3) 18 Set free, I rebel at new arrangement (8) 19 Ship is great, if unwieldy

(7) 21 Earnings arrive in reverse order (6)

22 Over three miles to the alliance? (6)

24 Take up implement for plunder (4)

SOLUTIONS

BEDROOT BOUNCER
A A N O R N A A TOBACCO OUTGROM
H N D N A R R D TRAVERSED AGILE
D N N I I E A BADGE INOBNERAL
SOAPOPERA DRAVE
E T N P R C
TERSE PREIGHTER
T O R A S E I U
LAPLAND HANDSUP
E N I E O C T L
SHYMBER TRAVERE

Yesterday's Quick Solution

ACROSS: I Hares, 4 Breadth, 8 Thieves, 9 Easel, 10 Eiger, 11 Lissome, 13 Awed, 15 Trille, 17 Raglet, 20 Leap, 22 Appeals, 24 Proud, 26 Posed, 27 Oglnion, 28

DOWN: 1 Hottset, 2 Ruing, 3 Several, 4 Bustle, 5 Ewerz, 6 Despoil, 7 Haive, 12 Idea, 14 Well, 16 Impasse, 18 Applied, 19 Tidings, 21 Escort, 22 Ample, 23 Addle, 25

EMERGENCY PHARMACIES

Jerusalem: Center Pharm, 20 Yad Harutzim, 673-1475; Balsam, Salah e-Din, 627-2315; Shualat, Shualat Road, 581-0108; Dar Aldawa, Herod's Gate, 628-

Tel Aviv: Bavli, 1 Uziel cnr Toledano, 604-0552; Kupet Holim Clalit, 7-9 Amsterdam, 523-2383, Till 3 a.m. Tuesday: Jabotinsky, 125 Ihn Gvirol, 548-2040. Till midnight: Superpharm Ramet Aviv, 40 Einstein, 641-3730; London Ministora Superpharm, 4 Shaul Hamelech, 696-0115. Ra'anana, 986054. Netanya: Magen, 13 Weizmann, 822985. Krayot area: Nivpherm Shavit, Shavit Center, Kiryat Ata, 844-3778. Hatta: Magen David, 13 Geula, 862-5205. Herzilya: Clal Pharm, Beit Merkazim, 8 Magkit (cnr. Sderot Hagatim), Herzilya Pituah, 558472, 558407. Open 9 a.m. to midnight. Tel Aviv: Bavli, 1 Uziel cnr Toledano, 604-

Pinush, 558472, 558407. Open 9 a.m. to midnight.
Upper Nazareth: Clal Pharm, Lev Ha'ir Mali, 570488, Open 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.
DUTY HOSPITALS
Jerusalem: Hadassah Ein Kerem (internat, surgery, orthopedics); Misgav Ladach (obstetrics); Bikur Holim (pediatrics, ENT); Shaare Zedek (ophthalmology).
Tel Aviv: Tel Aviv Medical Center Dana Pediatric Hospital (pediatrics); Tel Aviv Medical Center (internal, surgery).
Netanya: Laniado.
DOI ICF POLICE

FIRE FIRST AID 101 Magen David Adom In emergencies dial 101 (Hebrew) or 911 (English) in most parts of the country. In (Engish) in most parts of the country, in addition:

Ashdod 8551333 Kiar Sava 902222
Ashdod 8551333 Kiar Sava 902222
Beartheba 6274767 Petah Tiskar 9912333
Bear 6332444 Rishor 9451333
Ellar 6332444 Rishor 9642333
Jerusalem 623133 Tel Aviv 6480111
Tomas 792444
Mobile Interesive Cere Unit (MCU) service in the area, around the clock.

Medical help for tourists (in English) 177-022-9110 The National Poison Control Center at The National Poison Control Center at Rambam Hospital 04-852-9205, 24 hours a day, for information in case of poisoning. Eran — Emotional First Aid. 1201, also: Jerusalem 561-0303, Tel Aviv 546-1111 (childran/youth 696-1113), Haile 867-2222/3, Beersheba 649-4333, Netanya 625110, Karmiel 988-8770, Kfar Sava 767-4555, Hadera 346789.

Wizo hotilines for battered women 02-651-4111, 03-546-1133 (also in Russian), 07-637-6310, D8-855-0508 (also in Amharic).

Amharic), Bape Crisis Center (24 hours), Tel Aviv 523-4819, 544-9191 (men), Jerusalem 625-5558, Harta 853-0533, Eilet 633-1977. ah Medical Organization - Israel Cancer Association support service 02-624-7678).

/30, 10
HAIFA
CINEMA CAFÉ AMAMI = 8325755 II
Postino 7:15, 8:15 * Shanghai Triad 9:15
ATZMON 1-5 = 8673003 Mission Impossible@Sense and Sensibility@The Birdcage@Primal Fear 4:15, 6:45, 9:15 *
American Quilt 4:30, 7, 9:15 CINEMA
CAFÉ MORIAH = 8242477 Trainspotting
7:30, 9:30 CINEMATHEQUE = 8383424
Dave 7 * Jefferson in Paris 9:30
GLOBECTTY To Die For 7:30, 10 * Fipper
11 a.m., 1:30, 5 * Cutthroat Island 11 a.m.,
1:30, 5, 7:30, 10 * Mission Impossible
@Babysitiers 11 a.m., 1:30, 5, 7:30, 10 *
Babe (English dalogue) 7:30 * Babe (Hebrew dislogue) 11 a.m., 5 DRLY=
8381368 Restoration 7, 9:15 PANORAMA
1-3 = 8382020 Cutthroat Island 4:30, 7, 9:30 * Little Princess 11 a.m., 1 *

Prister St. Mission Impossible 5, 7:30, 10 * Primal Fear 7:15, 10 * The Birdcage 5,

Mother the General 4:45 * Executive Decison 11 a.m., 7:15
TEL AVIV
CINEMATHEQUE 2 Sprinzak St. = 5772000
A Summer in La Goulette 5, 7:35, 9:45 * Until Death: Lord Moyne 5 * Dona Fror 7:30 The Cellutoid Closet 9:30, 11:30
OIZENGOFF = 5172923 Cutthroat Island@White Squall 11 a.m., 1, 5:15, 7:45, 10 * Leaving Las Vegas 1, 3, 5:15, 7:45, 10 * Leaving Las Vegas 1, 3, 5:15, 7:45, 10 DRIVE IN Before and After 10 * The Golden Mail Gang 8 * Sex Film 12 midnight GAN HA'IR = 5279215 71 Ibn Gabirol St. Priscelle 2:30, 7:30, 9:45 GAT Stolen Hearts 2:30, 5, 7:30, 9:45 GAC HOD 1-4 * 5226228 Hod Passage, 101 Dizengoff St. To Die For 7:30, 10 * Filipper 11 a.m., 1:30, 5 * The Babysitters 11 a.m., 1:30, 5, 7:30, 10 * American Culft 10 * Babe (English dialogue) 7:30 * Babe (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 5 * Fargo 5, 7:30, 10 * Mission Impossible 11 a.m., 1:30 LEV 1-4 = 528268 Trainsporting 12:15, 2:30, 5:15, 7:45, 10 * Little Princess 11 a.m., 1, 2:45, 4:30, 6:30 * Shanghai Triad 8, 10 * Antonia's Line 3:15, 5:15, 7:30, 10 * Lemon Coffee 11 a.m., 1:30 LEV 1-4 = 528268 Trainsporting 12:15, 2:30, 5:15, 7:30, 10 * Lemon Coffee 11 a.m., 1:30 LEV 1-4 = 528268 Trainsporting 12:15, 2:30, 5:15, 7:30, 10 * Lemon Coffee 11 a.m., 1:30 LEV 1-4 = 528268 Trainsporting 12:15, 2:30, 5:15, 7:30, 10 * Lemon Coffee 11 a.m., 1:30 LEV 1-4 = 528268 Trainsporting 12:15, 2:30, 5:15, 7:30, 10 * Lemon Coffee 11 a.m., 1:30, 5, 7:30, 10 * Lemon Coffee 11 a.m., 1:30, 5, 7:30, 10 * Kansas City 10 * Babe (English dialogue) 11 a.m., 1: 3, 5 + 5:15, 7:30, 10 * Kansas City 10 * Babe (English dialogue) 11 a.m., 1: 3, 5 * The Derez Family 10 * The Little Princess 11 a.m., 5, 7:30 * My Mother the General 1:30 RAV-CHENT 5282288 Dizengoff Center The Rock 7:15, 9:45 * Jumaniji 11 a.m., 1, 3, 5 * Tel Aviv Stories 4 * It Takes Two 11 a.m., 1, 3, 5 * Tel Aviv Stories 4 * It Takes Two 11 a.m., 1, 3, 5 * Tel Aviv Stories 4 * It Takes Two 11 a.m., 1, 3, 5 * Tel Aviv Stories 4 * It Takes Two 11 a.m., 1, 3, 5 * Tel Aviv Stories 4 * It Takes Two 11 a.m., 1, 3, 5 * Tel Aviv Stories

CINEMA

Filipper Babe 11 a.m., 1, 4:30, 7 * Fargo White Squall 9:30 RAV-GAT 1-2 * 6674311 The Rock I1 a.m., 4:30, 7, 9:30 * Johnny Mnemonic 9:30 * Jumanji 11 a.m., 4:45, 7 RAV-MOR 1-7 * 6416898 The Hunchback of Notre Damé (English dialogue) 7:15, 9:30 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 1, 5 Notre Deme (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 1,5 * Toy Story (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 1,5 * Tip Story (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 1,5 * Tip Juror 9:15 * It Takes Two 11 a.m., 1,5 * Tip Juror 9:15 * It Takes Two 11 a.m., 1,5,7 * Restoration 7,9:30 * The Rock 11 a.m., 4:30, 7,9:30 * Stolen Hearts 7,9:15 * Junianji 11 a.m., 1:15,4:45,7,9:15 * Leon 1 * Johnny Mnemonic 7,9:20 * Swan Princess 11 a.m., 1,5 * Now and Then 11 a.m., 5 RAV-OR 1-3 * 8246553 Stolen Hearts Tip The Hunchback of Notre Dame (English dialogue) 7,9:15 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 1,5 * Swan Princess 11 a.m., 1,4:45 * It Takes Two 11 a.m., 4:45,7 * Tip Juror 9:15 * Leon 1

a.m., 1,4:45 * It Takes Two 11 a.m., 4:45, 7 * The Juror 9:15 * Leon 1
AFULA
RAV CHEN * 6424047 Mission Impossible 7, 9:30 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (English dialogue) 7, 9:30 * The Golden Mail Gang 11 a.m. * The Rock 7, 9:30 * Jumanji 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) Takes Two 11 a.m. logue) takes Two 11 a.m., 5

(Maria) * 78348 Mission Impossible 11 a.m., 130, 4:35, 7:15 * Cutthroat Island 11 a.m., 1:30, 4:30, 7:15; *5:45 * Flipper 11 a.m., 1:30, 4:45, 7:15 * Cutthroat Island 11 a.m., 1:30, 4:45, 7:15, 9:45 * The Britcage 7:15, 10 * The Little Princess 11 a.m., 1:30, 4:45 * The Babysitters 11 a.m., 1:30, 4:45 * 7:15, 10 * To Die For 7:15, 9:45 * Primat Feer 10 * Babe (English dialogue) 7:15 * Babe (Elebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 1:30, 4:45 * JERUSALEM THEATER 20 Marcus 5t. ≠ 617167 Nelly et M. Arnaud 7 * Flift 7, 9:30 RAV CHEN 1-7≠ 792799 Credit Card Reservations* 794477 RawMecher Building. 19 Ha'oman St., Tatpot The Hunchback of Notre Dame (English dialogue) 7:30, 9:45 * The Rock 11 a.m., 4:45, 7:15, 9:45 * Johnny MnemonicoSiolen Hearts 7:30, 9:45 * The Jurior 9:45 * Leon 1 * Jumaniji 11 a.m., 1. 5, 7:30, 9:45 * The Jurior 9:45 * Leon 1 * Jumaniji 11 a.m., 1. 5, 7:30, 9:45 * The Mission Impossible 11 a.m., 1. 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) Swan Princess 11 a.m., 1, 5 * SEMADAR = 618168 Trainspotiting 6, 10 * Shanghai Triad 6 * Lennon Coffee 4 MEVASSERET ZION G.G. GIL Mission Impossible 11 a.m., 1.5, 7:15, 9:45 * Fargo 9:45 * My Mother the General 4:45 * Executive Decision 11 a.m., 7:15 TEL AVIV STAR = 950904 The Juror 7:45, 10 * Toy Story (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 5:30 * Johnny Mnemonic 11:30 a.m., 7:45, 10 ARIEL

ARIEL Little Glants 6
ASHDOD
G.G. Gil. # 3647202 The Babysitters@Flipper 11 a.m., 5, 7:30, 10 *
The Rock 7:15, 10 * Swan Princess (Hebrew datague) '11 a.m., 5 * Johnny Mnemonic 10 * it Takes Two 11 a.m., 5,
7:30 * White Squall 10 * Cuttimoat Island
4:30, 7:15 G.G. ORI 1-3* 711223 The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue)@Mission Impossible 11 a.m., 5, 7:30, 10 * Babe (English dialogue) 7:30 *
Babe (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 5
ASHKELON
G.G. Gil. # 729977 Mission
Impossible@The Babysitters@Flipper 11

G.G. GIL * 729977 Mission impossible@The Babysites@Finper 11 a.m., 5, 7:30, 10 * Cutthroat Island 5, 7:30, 10 * White Squali 10 * Babe (English disloque) 7:30 * Babe (Hebrew disloque) 11 a.m., 5 RAV CHEN * 711223 The Hunchback of Notre Dame (English disloque)@Restoration 7:30, 9:45 * The Hock 7:15, 9:45 * The Juror 9:45 * Jumanji@Swan Princess@The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew daloque) 11 a.m., 5 * Leon 11 a.m. 5, 7:30

Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 5 * Leon 11 a.m., 5 * Leon 11 a.m., 5, 7:30 HADERA
LEV 1-4 Babe (Hebrew dialogue) 10:30 a.m., 12:30, 4:30 * Babe (English dialogue) 6:30 * White Squall 7:30, 10 * Toy Story 10:30 a.m. * Mission Impossible 4:45, 8, 10 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 10:30 a.m., 12:30, 4:45, 6:30 * Trainsporting 8:15, 10 * Jumanji 10:30 a.m., 12:30, 4:30, 6:30 * The Rock 7:15, 10

10:30 a.m., 12:30, 4:30, 6:30 * The Rock 7:15, 10
HERZLIYA COLONY CINEMA 1-2 (MANDARIN) *
6902686 Devil in Blue Dress 6, 8, 10 *
Rargo 8, 10 * Lovesick on Nana Street 6
OANIEL HOTEL Neily et M. Arnaud 8, 10:15 * Babe (English dialogue) 6 STAR
589068 The Rock 8, 10:30 * Flipper 11 a.m., 4:30, 6:30 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebraw dialogue) 11 a.m., 1, 4:30, 6:15 * Mission Impossible 5:45, 8, 10:15 *
The Hunchback of Notre Dame (English dialogue) 8:15 * Kansas City 10:15 * Tel Aviv - Los Angeles 1 * Luttle Princess 1:15 * Babe (Hebraw dialogue) 11 a.m., 4
KARMIEL
CINEMA 1-3 * 867277 The Hunchback of Notre Dame (English dialogue) . 7:15, 9:30

Notre Dame (English dialogue), 7:15, 9:30 * It Takes Two 11 a.m., 5 * The Rock 6:45, 9:30 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 5 * Johnty Mnemonic 9:30 * The Golden Mali Gang 11 a.m. + Jumen i 5,9 KIRYAT BLALIK

KIRYAT BIALIK
G.G. KIRYON 1-9 * 779155 White Squall@The Babysitters@Mission Impossible@Cutthroat Island@The Birdcage 11 a.m., 445, 7, 930 * Primal
Fear 7, 930 * Toy Story (I-lebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 445 * Trainsporting@To Die For 7, 930 * Little Princess 11 a.m., 445 *
Babe (I-lebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 445, 7 *
A Bit of Luck 445 * American Quit 930

Eliment 11 a.m., 7 * Who's the Eather 11 * Flipper 11 a.m., 7 * Who's the Father 11 a.m., 4:45 LOD

STAR Jumanji 11 a.m., 5, 7:30, 10 * Mission Impossible 11 a.m., 7:30, 10 * Johnny Mnemonic 7:30, 10 * Toy Story (Hebrew dialogue) 5 NAHARIYA HECHAL HATARBUT Toy Story (Hebrew

NESS ZIUNA G.G., Gil. 1-4 \pm 404729 Mission impossible 11 a.m., 1:30, 5, 7:30, 10 \pm Cutthroat Island 11 a.m., 1:30, 4:30, 7:15, 10 \pm To Die For 7:30, 10 \pm Filipper 11 a.m., 1:30, 5 \pm The Perez Family 10 \pm Babe, (English dielogue) 7:30 \pm Babe (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 1:20, 5

1:30, 5 * The Perez Family 10 * Babe (Engish dialogue) 7:30 * Babe (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 1:30, 5
NETANYA
G.G. Gil. 1-5 * 626452 Mission impossible The Babysitiens 11 a.m., 5, 7:30, 10 * Flipper Cutthroat Island II a.m., 5, 7:30 * Trainspotting Island Tible For 10 * Babe (English dialogue) 7:30
* Babe (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 5 RAV CHEN The Rock 7:15, 8:45 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (English dialogue) 7:30, 9:30 * Stoten Hearts 7:30, 9:45 * Restoration 7:30, 9:45 * The Golden Mall Gang 1 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) Swan Prince of Italian 11 a.m., 5 * The Rock 7:15, 10 * Jumanij 11 a.m., 5 * The Rock 7:15, 10 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 5 * The Rock 7:15, 10 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Engish dialogue) 7:30, 10 G.G. RAM 1-3 * 9340318
The Jurov 10 * American Culti 10 * American Culti 10 * American Culti 11 * Jurov 10 * American Culti 10 * San attani Pamily 5
RA'ANANA
PARK Johnny Mnemonic The Rock 7:30, 10:15 * Mission impossible 5, 7:30. 10:15 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (English dialogue) 7:30, 10:15 * Babe 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30 a.m., 3, 5 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11:30

5
RAMAT HASHARON
KOKHAV Trainspotting 8, 10 * Toy Story
(English dialogue) 6:30 * Toy Story
(Habrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 5
REHOVOT

(Habrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 5
REHOVOT
CHEN 1-4 = 362864 Mission Impossible
5:15, 7:30, 10 * Passover Paver 11:15 a.m., 4:30, 7:45 * To Die For 9:45 * Little Princess 11:15 a.m. * Trainsporting 6:15,
10, 12:15; 6:15, 10 * Babe (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m., 5:30 * Babe (English dialogue) 8 * American Quilit 7:45, 9:45 *
Flipper 11 a.m., 5:15 RAV MOR = 9493555
The Juror 9:45 * Now and Then 11 a.m., 5
* Johnny Mnemonic*The Hunchback of Notre Dame (English dialogue)*Stolen Hearts 7:30, 9:45 * The Rock 7:15, 9:45 *
Cutthroat Island 11 a.m., 5, 7:30, 9:45 *
Tel Aviv Storles 1 * Jumanji 11 a.m., 1, 5, 7:30 * Swan Princess*The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue)*It Takes
Two 11 a.m., 1, 5
RISHON (ETION Two 11 a.m., 1.5 RISHON LEZION

Two 11 a.m. 1. 5
RISHON LEZION
GAL 1-5 = 9619669 The Rock 4:30, 7:15,
10 * Trainspotting@The Birdcage 7:30,
10 * It Takes Two@Swan Princess 11
a.m. 5 * Cutthroat island 11 a.m. 5, 7:30,
10 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (English dialoque) 7:30, 10 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew daloque) 11 a.m. 5 HAZAHAV To 0ie For 7:30, 10 * Flipper 11 a.m. 1, 5 * Mission Impossible 5, 7:30, 10 * The Babysitters
11 a.m. 1:30, 5, 7:30 RAV CHEN =
9670503 The Rock 7:15, 9:45 * Johnny Mnemonic 9:45 * The Golden Mail Gang
1 * Stolen Hearns 7:30, 8:45 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Engish dialogue) 7:30, 9:45 * The Hunchback of Notre Dame (Hebrew dialogue) 11 a.m. 1, 5
* Jumani) 11 a.m., 5, 7:30 * It Takes
Two@Swan Princess 11 a.m., 1, 5 RON Who's the Father 7:30, 10 * White Squall
7:15, 10 * The San'ani Family 7:30 * A
American Quilt 10 STAR= 9619885 Swan
7:30, 10 * Johnny Mnemonic 11:30 a.m.,
5, 7:45 * 10 * The Juror 10 * Barb Wire
11:30 a.m.
Phone reservations: Tel Aviv $252244
Phone reservations: Tel Aviv $252244

Phone reservations: Tel Aviv 5252244
Phone reservations: Halfa 728878All times are p.m. unless otherwise indicat-

QUICK CROSSWORD

ACROSS 1 Mended shoe (5) 4 Brief (5) 10 Suffer (7) 11 Artist's triped (5) 12 Herb (5)

13 Cooked in oven (7) 15 Japanese outcast 17 High-IQ organisation (5) organisation (19 Shoe-ties (5) 22 SE Asian republic

25 Japanese ivory (7) 27 Tree trunk (5)

2 Woodwinds (5) 3 Food (7) 5 Doglike mammal 6 Riding award (7) 7 Taxi driver (5) 8 Rossing (5) 9 Slip (5)

14 Norwegian Capital (4) 16 Conversation (4) 18 Walked in (7) 20 Attribute (7) 21 Fish (5) 23 Subtropical

30 Large building (7) 24 Narrow bay (5) 31 Lazy person (5) 26 Male relative (5, 32 Vendettas (5) 28 Sightlese (5) 26 Male relative (5) 28 Sightless (5)

Peres to propose canceling Labor primaries

MICHAL YUDELMAN

LABOR Party chairman Shimon Peres yesterday said that at the next party convention he plans to propose canceling the primary elections and setting up a body of 7.000 electors to choose Knesset candidates.

He also suggested to Labor executive's meeting forming several committees to critique the government's activities.

Peres encountered unexpected opposition among leading Labor figures, led by MKs Uzi Baram, Avraham Shohat, and Micha Goldman. His plan 10 form committees - and the commillee heads he nominated aroused strong objections among several executive members, who voted against it, protesting they are not a rubber stamp for his decisions. However, this proposal was accepted, though changes in the comminee chairmen might be made over the next two weeks.

The committees include a 36member team in charge of state affairs, headed by Peres himself; an economic team, headed by Shohat; a municipal team, headed by MK Moshe Shahal; a team for religious affairs, head-ed by MK Yossi Beilin; and an information team, headed by MK Shlomo Ben-Ami.

Peres said after the meeting that he did not see the controversy over his proposal as a vote of no confidence in his

"I have tremendous support in the party, and there is no need for each and every person to support me. In the rank and file, I have a massive, undisputed backing." he said.

Peres did not rule out joining

Police order probe

into Labor's claim of 100,000 forged election ballots

MICHAL YUDELMAN

POLICE ordered an investigation yesterday into the Labor Party's complaint of election fraud allegedly involving voting carried out with documents of people who did not take part in the elections.

Labor's Knesset faction chairman Ra'anan Cohen, who lodged the complaint, presented the police with findings of an examination of 7 percent of the ballot boxes, which revealed 800 votes registered in the names of citizens who were abroad on Election Day or did not vote for another reason. Cohen said the sample indicates that altogether some Cohen said he hired a private investigator who, among other things, found systematic forgeries in the haredi section. "There was a system carried out among Natorei Karta. We received a list of more than 2,000 names and identity card numbers of people who did not come to vote, but are registered as though they did, including two who are deceased."

a national unity government, or the possibility that he might run again for the party leadership, but he reiterated he would adhere to the party regulations requiring a leadership contest in

"The problem is not voting confidence in Peres or not, but organizing the opposition to the Likud in the most effective way." Baranı said.

He stressed that there is no argument in Labor over Peres's leadership, but "I do have an argument with Peres's so-called supporters, like Beilin, who want Peres to remain party leader until a year before the next elections. Peres is the leader now, but in 1997 I want to see a new candidate as party chairman. [someone] who will lead the party in the elections of Baram said he opposed the proposal to set up a committee of 36 members for state affairs, noting that he supports a much smaller, more flexible team.

"As for the chairmen of the teams, I think we should hold consultations first and pick people who have already won the public's confidence," he said.

Peres initially had intended to form an 18-member committee for state affairs but, under the pressure of party MKs, agreed to expand it to encompass the entire faction, and Jewish Agency Chairman Avraham Burg and Na amat Chairwoman Ofra Friedman.

also announced Insurance Union Bureau director-general Shaul Paternak's appointment as party director-

Esther Pollard talks with sympathizers at the Hamashbir Lezarchan plaza in Jerusalem, where she began a hunger strike yesterday. She said she would continue it until her husband, Jonathan Pollard, who was convicted of spying for Israel, is freed from jail in the US. 'He can't take it any more. He has been in isolation for seven years with empty promises from our government.' Histadrut plans next step in fight against gov't policy workers in their regions. They have forgotten that it is thanks to the labor council secretaries that they

Kabbalo promised that this decision will not be carried out, even if the labor council secretaries have to

Ramon, who decided two years ago on three pilot regional labor council, couldn't implement it. I am ashamed of the Labor executive members who suggested it. If they want to cut back expenses they should first reduce the Histadrut's redundant sections, many of which are headed by officials with bureaux, drivers and budgets and don't do anything for their living,"

The Histadrut's Likud faction chairman Ya'acov Sharnai yesterday suggested his faction join the Histadrut coalition, maintaining that a wall-to-wall coalition is required in view of the workers' unfortunate situation today.

Even the great hero MK Haim are sitting where they are today."

go to court to prevent it.

HISTADRUT Chairman MK Amir Peretz has called a meeting of the large workers' unions this afternoon to formulate a plan against the government's anticipated economic decrees and privatization program.

The Histadrut has already authorized a labor dispute in most of the public sector and in government corporations as a prelude to a general strike, unless the government revokes the measures slashing child allowances, infringing on pension allocations, reducing health, education, social and other services.

The Histadrut's Parliament yes-terday approved Labor's compromise proposal to resolve the coali-tion crisis with Ram. According to the agreement, Labor will head the Histadrut's trade union section and keep the organization and labor council section. In exchange it will agree to reducing the number of labor councils to 25 regional councils, a third of the present number.

The decision is arousing strong opposition among the labor council secretaries, who branded it as "daylight robbery" and threatened to fight against it.

forum Pinni Kabbalo yesterday accused the Histadrut executive, and especially Labor's members, of selling out the labor council secretaries, who are democratically elected public officials, for cozy executive positions. It is a base, backhanded move intended to wipe out Labor's representatives who were elected by their constituency to represent the lower-income

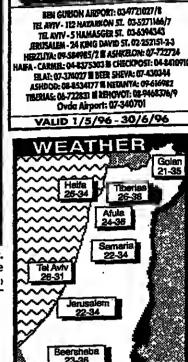

MK Pinhasi petitions against attempt to lift his immunity

MK Rapbael Pinhasi (Shas) petitioned the High Court of Justice over the weekend against Attorney-General Michael Ben-Yair's decision to ask the Knesset again to lift his immunity.

Ben-Yair's predecessor. Yosef Harish, had asked the Knesset to lift Pinhasi's immunity in early 1993 so he could stand trial on charges of attempted fraud. conspiracy, falsifying corporate documents and falsifying his oath. All of the charges related to Shas's 1988 Knesset campaign, during which Pinhasi hired yeshiva students – who are not allowed to work because they receive draft exemptions - and then failed to report this to the tax authorities. He then allegedly submitted a false set of books to State Comptroller Miriam Ben-Porat. The Knesset agreed to lift Pinhasi's immunity in March 1993, but Pinhasi then petitioned the High Court, which agreed that the original vote was flawed and ordered a revote. In the revote, in July 1993, the Knesset reversed itself and decided not to lift his immunity.

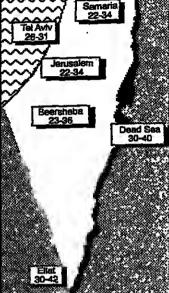

Now that a new Knesset has been elected - and partly due to pressure from the Movement for Quality Government in Israel -Ben-Yair decided to try again earlier this month. Pinhasi therefore petitioned the court. arguing that this is a case of double jeopardy, and therefore illegal.

The petition, by attorney Dan Avi-Yitzhak, argued that once any Knesset has voted against lifting an MK's immunity, this is final. To permit an immunity request to be resubmitted just because the Knesset has changed, he said, would be like letting someone resubmit a civil suit to the same court which earlier rejected it just because a new judge had been appointed.

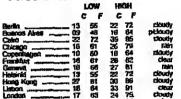

CELLULAR PHONE AVAILABLE

http://www.eldan.co.il/

AROUND THE WORLD

Winning cards

yesterday's Mifal Hapayis daily Chance card draw, the lucky cards were the nine spades, seven of hearts, seven of diamonds, and king of clubs.

Cohen said the Labor Party is not challenging the election results, but demanding that all the forgers be brought to trial. Sarid asks attorney-general not to approve Yatom appointment

MERETZ leader Yossi Sarid yesterday requested that Attorney-General Michael Ben-Yair not approve the appointment of Ehud Yatom to the Oil Refineries' board of directors. Yatom last week admitted murdering the two terrorists in the 1984 Bus 300 hijacking and his part in the conspiracy to cover up the affair. Sarid said the appointment was out of the question "in view of the horrifying revelation of murdering two people who had been captured, even if they were ter-rorists, long after the hijacking was over. To murder two people by a patently illegal order, to smash their skulls with a large stone, who can accept such a thing? This man and this act are the rotten fruit of a security-oriented approach devoid of values. which disgraces the state's battle for its defense and endangers Israelis who fall captive 10 murderous extremist elements in the MICHAL YUDELMAN

100,000 votes were forged.

He said that the fact Yatom was pardoned by then president Chaim Herzog, together with all the GSS people involved in the affair, does not mean he should now be rewarded.

The High Court of Justice has already ruled [in the case of Yossi Ginossar, who was also involved] that what counts is not the conviction, but the crime, when it comes to a public appointment. In this case, there is no doubt that the crime was committed and the disgrace is there, and the appointment is against the accepted norms and basic value of a decent society. Yatom is not worthy of serving as a director for the state."

Liat Collins adds: MK Azmi Bashara (Hadash) is asking Yatom be brought to trial and the files opened for public

"The problem isn't having filed a false report but cold-

One can't know for sure how many other cases there have been of youngsters 'dying on the way to hospital' or being killed in action.

Bashara called for all those involved to be brought to trial. "It's incredible that in a country which considers itself civilized, is proud of being 'the only democracy in the region, and demands its neighbors respect human rights, a murderer like Yatom can continue to work in the civil service and can even be a candidate for a post of school principal," he said. Meanwhile, the family of the two brothers murdered by Yatom said it would seek compensation for their deaths.

Safuot Abu-Jamya said he also wanted Israel to punish Yatom. "We are looking forward to have the murderers punished and for compensation for the harm and the damage which occurred to the family as a result of the crime."

The papers which are presented in an attractive, easy-to-read format, contain lively material on topics of interest to young people: current events, music, sport, science, fashion and more.

They speak English,

but do they read it???

The monthly youth magazines of The Jerusalem Post will encourage your kids to read in English and enjoy it!

The appear once a month (11 issues per year) and are mailed directly to your home.

ZOOM English for children for ages 9-12

YOURS Easy English for ages 12-14 HEY THERE!

for junior high pupils STUDENT POST Advanced Level for secondary school pupils

Intermediate Level

Subscribe NOV and participate in our GIANT DRAW First Prize: summer school in Engiand

> A yearly subscription to each paper

Price includes VAT and postage Special rates available for schools

TO SUBSCRIBE: Fill in the coupon and mail it along with a check to-The lerusalem Post Youth Magazines P.O.B. Box 81, Jerusalem 91000

177-022-2277

DIAL TOLL-FREE AND SUBSCRIBE Payment by credit cards Every day

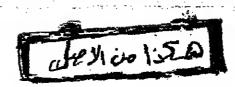

YES. Please send me findicate the publication). ZOOM (children)

YOURS (easy) THEY THERE! (intermediate)

STUDENT POST (advanced)

The magazine is for a reader aged

Drive slower! Drive with care!

blooded murder." Bashara said. he told Reuters. Haifa court won't release suspect in London blasts News agencies

THE Haifa District Court vesterday rejected a petition to release a women suspected of involvement in two 1994 bombings against Jewish targets in London. However, the court did grant her lawyers' request that they be allowed to meet with Attorneys for the 30-year-old woman, who was born in Acre, sold the Haifa District Court, which has banned publication of the suspect's name, that she had no connection to the bombings and should be released immediately.

Police arrested the woman on July 22, when she arrived here to visit her family, and the Acre Magistrates' Court last week ordered her held for questioning until August 3. Security sources have said the GSS is handling the woman's interroga-

Avigdor Feldman, the suspect's lawyer, requested that the court allow him to meet with his client, saying the police prohibition of this is a denial of her basic rights. The court ruled that she will be permitted to meet with her lawyers for 15 minutes in the presence of a police representative.

Islamic militants are suspected of planting the carbomb that exploded outside the Israeli embassy in London in July 1994, wounding 14 people. Twelve hours later a second carbomb went off outside the North London offices of a Jewish fundraising organization, wounding five British newspapers said at the time that a Palestinian widow seeking revenge over the killing of her husband and son planted at least one of the bombs.